ICKES DEFENDS WAY U. S. SPLITS ITS EASY MONEY

Mayors' Committee to Call on Him.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Mayors of fifty-five American cities, many of which are in a desperate financial plight, were told by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes last night of the terms under which the public works money bags will be opened to them at Washington. Mr. Ickes spoke to them in the trustees' lounge at A Century of Progress Exposition, where he had been received during the afternoon with a 19 gun salute.

The mayors and Mr. Ickes seemed to be at odds over the ease with which the $1,750,000,000 allocated for state and municipal projects may be obtained. After working all night the mayors had drawn up a resolution asking that some of the red tape be unwound. The cities could not comply under present terms, they said. Mr. Ickes, who had avoided a round table discussion with the mayors, said that there was no red tape about it and intimated that those who raised this cry were poor sportsmen and themselves entangled in red tape.

Asks Talk with Committee.

Mr. Ickes invited the mayors to send a subcommittee to Washington to show him how the loans could be speeded up.

"We want facts and specifications," he said, "not general accusations. Constant reiteration of the charge of red tape is likely to lead to misunderstanding and irritation. Red tape is an easy alibi."

He spoke of a western governor, unnamed, who had complained, but who had sent in no plans for approval and had dismissed all his engineers.

The mayors accepted the proposal and named a committee to go to Washington. This committee is to consist of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans, new president of the association; Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, vice president, and Paul Betters, secretary of the organization.

Silent on Illinois Projects.

Secretary Ickes' address was devoted to a general discussion of the public works program, and in conversation he declined to talk of specific projects in Illinois. He also said last evening that he had not conferred with Chicago officials during the day.

"There are several Chicago projects pending," he said, "but it is too early to say anything definite concerning them."

The sanitary district's application for a $120,000,000 loan to carry out the sewage treatment construction program ordered by the United States Supreme court and the alternative proposal that the federal government buy the district's canals were subjects that the secretary shied away from.

Largely Up to Mayors, He Says.

"It is now largely in the hands of the mayors of our cities to determine whether the public works program will fully serve its purpose in aiding in the economic recovery of the country," said Secretary Ickes in his address. "Our national treasury is waiting to be drawn upon for hundreds of millions of dollars for useful public works.

"The administration in Washington can approve your projects and advance funds necessary to complete them. We have moved and are moving expeditiously, if circumspectly, but there is a point beyond which we cannot go.

"We can give you money; we can help you to decide what project to undertake; we can aid you in supervising your work, but we cannot decide for you whether you want public works. We cannot force you to move any faster than you are willing to move.

"All we can do is to ask you to 'get on your marks! Get set! Go!' You will have to run the race.

Cities' "Great Opportunity."

"The public works program, contemplating as it does the expenditure of funds in excess of $1,750,000,000 for state and municipal projects, offers the greatest opportunity for municipal improvements in the history of any country. We are willing to advance you as an outright gift 30 per cent of your outlay for labor and material on an approved plan. We ask you to pay for the balance of the project.

"But we are willing to help you to finance your share. We will advance you the remaining 70 per cent upon approved security and by ap-

JURORS GOGGLE AS COURT SEES HER FAN DANCE

Then They Convict Her of Indecency.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Sally Rand, the fan dancer who first gained wide attention at the World's Fair, was found guilty last evening of wilfully performing an obscene and indecent dance in a public place by a jury of twelve men, most of them young. She was sentenced to one year in the county jail and fined $200 by Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry, before whom the jury returned its verdict in the South State street court.

It was the maximum sentence possible under the law and was the second penalty imposed on Miss Rand. On Aug. 8 Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten fined her $25 on the same charge. Both cases were based on warrants sworn out Aug. 4 when Miss Rand was arrested four times after performances at the Chicago theater. The two other cases resulting from these arrests are still pending.

Jurors Watch Her Dance.

The jurors who convicted Sally yesterday watched her go through the steps of her fan dance in court before they retired to decide her fate. Then they deliberated for one hour and fifteen minutes and came in with the verdict of guilty. Judge McGarry awaited Sally's return from a performance at the theater, where she is still appearing, before he accepted the verdict and pronounced sentence.

After the maximum penalty was imposed, Defense Attorney Samuel Berke made a motion for a new trial and asked that he be given 10 minutes to prepare arguments on it. Judge McGarry declared that his instructions to the jury, which he had selected, clearly favored the defendant, and ruled against the new trial.

She's Out on $2,000 Bond.

A stay of 60 days was allowed by the court for the defense to file a bill of exceptions and Miss Rand was released on cash bond of $2,000.

While her bond was being arranged the fan dancer pointed out that she had received a sentence twice as long as that ordinarily given public enemies convicted under the new criminal reputation law.

"If the jury is right, and the dance I do actually is indecent, and the court is right in sentencing me to a year in jail," she said, "all I can say is that every one who is engaged in sculpture, painting, music or dancing ought to quit."

Then she stepped into Judge McGarry's chambers and thanked him "for a fair trial."

Jurors Take Three Ballots.

William M. Gaston, foreman of the jury, said that three ballots were taken. On the first, eight jurors voted for a guilty verdict, three voted not guilty and one did not vote. Twenty minutes later a second ballot showed that the vote was eleven to one for guilty.

"From then on," Gaston said, "it was a matter of our convincing this one fellow. He was young. We all took a hand in talking to him. He maintained that he knew she was nude all right, but that didn't make the dance indecent."

"But we finally convinced him," Gaston went on, wiping the perspiration from his rather fleshy face, "that it wasn't a question of indecency, but of nudeness."

Gaston Defines Indecency.

"You mean that any woman who appears in the nude is indecent under any circumstances?" Gaston was asked.

"Yes, if it's in public that way," he said.

Other members of the jury stood around the courtroom talking and laughing after the trial. They grew serious, however, when asked if there was much disagreement among them.

"The only man who held out any length of time was young, and he wasn't married," one juror said. "He didn't know no better."

Several remarked that the sentence was more severe than they had expected. Assistant State's Attorney Patrick F. Daniher, who prosecuted the case with Assistant State's Attorney John Jarecki, son of County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, was asked how he felt about the verdict. He had made a plea to the jury in the name of "the millions of mothers and children in future generations."

"Well, I'm not really elated," Daniher said, "I'm human, after all. But I've only been in the state's attorney's office two months, and the wife will

CHICAGO TURNS CLOCKS BACK TO STANDARD TIME

Millions of hours of slumber, lost by residents of Chicagoland last April when daylight saving time went into effect, was regained today with the return to standard time. The official hour for setting clocks to sun time was 2 a. m., but the change was generally made last night when householders retired. Offices and shops which operate at night were virtually the only places where the 2 o'clock switch was observed.

For a time it had appeared that Chicagoans would delay going back to old time until the end of October at the request of World's Fair officials who were interested in visitors to the Exposition being given an extra daylight hour for sightseeing. Plans for the extension were abandoned, however, when railroads and other concerns having dealings with New York pointed out the inconvenience to be caused by the disconnected time between the two major cities.

Isaacson, Rock Island county clerk today. As the clerk prepared to hand the license to Mr. Gruendler he shook his head and said, "Nope, don't give it to me, give it to her. I lost a bill of lading once and I'd sure hate to lose this license."

British Planes 'Disable' Fleet in Mimic War

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The question whether warships are impregnable against air attacks becomes a matter of studied investigation in England as a result of the mimic warfare carried out off the Firth of Forth, where land bombers today were credited unofficially with repelling the attack of a battle fleet also armed for war in the air.

The two day experiment was completed earlier than expected due to the vigilance and industry of the "blue" defense force of 90 planes assigned to protect the theoretical naval base at Elie, Scotland. Elie was being attacked by the "reds" with three capital ships, two aircraft carriers, three cruisers, 21 destroyers and 57 planes.

Three Battleships "Disabled."

Tonight it is reported that the defenders claimed that the three battleships were either "destroyed or disabled" by land bombers while attempting to creep within long range of Elie.

Two outstanding facts developed as a result of the tactics. The invading air force concentrated on destroying land airports in order to cripple the bombers. They paid no attention to the naval base itself and its fabled store of explosives. On the other hand, the land planes ignored the aircraft carriers and devoted their whole attention to the battleships, whose guns appeared to be rated as the gravest danger to the mimic naval base.

Therefore there were few clashes in the air. In the bombing exercises the defenders came off decidedly the better. By a ruse they defeated the red air invasion. Dummy airdromes with fake planes deceived the sea pilots, whose bombs were wasted.

Raid Ships at Dawn.

The land bombers, however, executed an admirably concealed raid at dawn. Shielded behind clouds and hidden in the sun, three formations which had spotted the battle fleet carried out successful assaults, some in high altitudes, others sweeping down a few hundred feet above the decks. Bomb releases were indicated by signal lights.

The blues took off repeatedly with fresh charges of bombs throughout the morning. By 1 o'clock this afternoon the war was halted, since the fleet commander recognized that his big guns were out of action and the smaller craft did not have a chance against the defending planes equipped with bombs and torpedoes.

Seaplanes at Disadvantage.

Another conclusion indicated by the results is that sea borne planes, although lighter and faster, are no match in bombing raids with the heavier but slower bombers used ashore. The bombs dropped on the battleships by the land planes were more effective than the missiles released on the airports by the sea aircraft.

There was a decided aspect of unreality to the maneuvers due to the restrictions on aerial combat. It was emphasized, however, that this was the first time such a test had been made and it was taken up with caution. Other exercises of similar nature are expected to follow when today's findings can be tested further.

THIRD FIRE IN HOME OF SENATOR HUEY LONG; CALLS ALL INCENDIARY

New Orleans, La., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Two fires threatened the home of Senator Huey P. Long early today while Mrs. Long was at home alone. Each time a policeman called the fire department and the flames were extinguished. Damage was estimated at $1,700.

This was the third fire this year that has threatened the senator's residence on Audubon boulevard. Police have been unable to account for their origin.

This morning Mrs. Long and two children were in the house; the senator was at a hotel. He said a doctor had told him the foliage around the house was bad for his hay fever.

The first fire today was discovered at 1 a. m. in a clothes basket in the washroom of the house. Firemen put it out, but at 3:30 a. m. they were called back to extinguish another fire in the basement.

Several months ago a fire burned the senator's automobile in the garage.

Long charged in a statement issued later in the day that all the fires had been of incendiary origin. He added: "This is the third time these premises have been set afire in the last few months. Without any question whatever it has been of an incendiary origin, because it could not have occurred otherwise."

Bandit Slain in Wild Chase; 2 Women Hurt

A bandit armed with two pistols was killed by police early today after he had kidnaped three high school students and forced one of them to act as a shield for him in a robbery. Two women onlookers were injured. One was shot twice in the leg and the other was struck by flying glass during the gunman's fight with police in front of 1346 North Lockwood avenue.

Mrs. Grace Rutcuno, 65 years old, 1335 North Laurel avenue, was the woman shot. She had heard the shooting and was standing at the mouth of an alley when two bullets struck her left leg. Miss Josephine Durato, 16 years old, 1731 North Lorel avenue, was cut in the face by glass when a bullet struck the windshield of a parked car in which she was sitting. Both women were taken to St. Anne's hospital.

Kidnaps Students in Car.

The gunman first appeared at Berkshire and Ridgeland avenues in Oak Park. With his two guns he stepped up to a car in which seven high school students, including two girls, were sitting. He ordered all out and then asked for the owner of the vehicle.

Carl Kroger, 18 years old, 6453 Wabansia avenue, a student at Austin High school in Oak Park, admitted he owned the vehicle and at gun point took his place behind the wheel. Two companions, Walter Johnson, 18 years old, of 1417 North Latrobe avenue, also an Austin student, and Warren Weldon, also 18, of 937 Hayes avenue, Oak Park, a student at the Oak Park High school, were also ordered to get into the front seat with him.

With his guns at their backs the bandit sat in the rear seat and directed that Kroger drive.

Invites Boys to Call Police.

After driving several miles, the bandit ordered Johnson and Weldon out of the car at Ridgeland and North avenues, Oak Park.

"You can call the police if you want to," he told them as they left, "I'd just as soon shoot it out with them. I've got cancer of the heart and only have six months to live, so it doesn't make any difference to me."

Meanwhile the other students who had been left where the bandit first appeared, were searching frantically for a police car. At North avenue and Austin boulevard they met Sergt. John Kraczmier and his squad. A moment later another squad from the Austin station commanded by Sergt. John Alcock drove up.

The students got in the two police cars and started on the trail of Kroger and his captor. A few blocks away they spotted the car and gave chase. As soon as Kroger saw the police he leaped from his car. But the bandit took the wheel and kept on until he reached Lockwood avenue and Hirsch boulevard, when he also jumped out.

Chase and Kill Bandit.

The policemen tumbled out of the squad cars and opened fire as the bandit fled down an alley. They chased him through gangways, alleys, and side streets, with bullets flying fast.

Suddenly Sergt. Alcock spied the bandit hiding behind a hedge. He shouted to Policeman James Patterson, who was nearer. At his cry the bandit fled but Patterson shot him three times, killing him instantly.

In the bandit's pocket police found $15 which he had taken in a holdup of the Swan Drug store, 5409 West North avenue.

The other students who were ejected from the car and took part in the chase were Miss Doris Myer, 17 years old, 912 North La Vergne avenue; Miss Helen Dowling, 18, of the same address; John O'Connor, 19, of 1717 Natchez avenue, and James Blake, 4900 Concord place.

HUNT 'MACHINE GUN' KELLY FOR POLICE SLAYING

Auto Used in Murder Is Traced to Him.

George R. [Machine Gun] Kelly, desperate criminal from the southwest was identified yesterday as the owner of an automobile used early Friday morning by a gang of five who robbed four messengers of Federal Reserve bank mail and killed a policeman while escaping.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, after long questioning of suspects arrested in the case, announced the identification of Kelly. He refused to tell who had made it.

"I don't want to put anybody on the spot," he declared. "But if we have to, we can prove in court that Kelly was the owner of the car."

Pal of Harvey Bailey.

This disclosure added intensity to the hunt for Kelly, who has been sought for weeks as one of the confederates of Harvey Bailey, known as the southwest's toughest character, in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire Oklahoma oil operator. Bailey and Albert Bates are now on trial in federal court at Oklahoma City for the abduction.

Messages describing Kelly were broadcast through the middle west and a promising clew to his whereabouts was received last night from Two Rivers, Wis.

City Manager E. J. Donnelly of Manitowoc, Wis., reported that he had seen two men closely resembling newspaper pictures of the missing kidnaper and one of his close associates, Verne Miller, in a Two Rivers restaurant yesterday.

Wisconsin Search Begun.

An immediate hunt through the resort country in the vicinity was started by policemen and deputy sheriffs, spurred on by a promise of a $10,000 reward for Kelly. This amount was offered by citizens of Oklahoma City, who want him brought to trial in the Urschel case. There is also a $5,000 reward for the capture of Kelly's wife, Katherine.

Developments in the mail robbery and murder investigation have convinced the police in Chicago that there is a close system of mutual helpfulness among the gangsters here, in St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, and the focal points of crime in the states of Kansas and Oklahoma.

Winkler the Connecting Link.

It is easy, they pointed out, to trace the connections. The Touhy gang, some of whose most energetic members are now in jail in St. Paul awaiting trial for kidnaping, ranged from the northern end of Cook county through the Wisconsin countryside into Minnesota. Through Gus Winkler, disclosed on Friday as a business associate of the garage man who arranged for bulletproofing the mail robbers' car, the Touhys had an open door into Chicago's north side underworld.

Winkler, who is being sought, began to stand out yesterday as even more of a key man in this weaving together of the ganglands of the several cities. As a companion of Fred [Killer] Burke, who is now in a Michigan prison, Winkler used to roam the west, robbing banks and, so it is alleged, killing where killing would serve the purpose.

Called Friend of Kelly.

Machine Gun Kelly was no stranger to him, the police averred. Bailey and Bates were on good terms with him in the old days, it was added.

Winkler's connections with the old Capone gang, which enabled him to gain control of the north side alcohol business after Ted Newberry was slain, are even better known.

"Winkler can sit in Chicago before a map and tell you whether the Kansas City and Oklahoma gangsters are at home or whether they are laying plots for crimes in Denver, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, or Chicago," said one police official. "If an outside gang wants to come and try something desperate in Chicago, Winkler can furnish a front somewhere to cover them, just as this bunch of desperadoes was sheltered and equipped here.

It Works Both Ways.

"If Chicagoans want to try something in one of the other cities, it's easy for him to give them the directions and the contacts they need.

"It is entirely logical that this killer gang should have come here from the southwest. Those southwesterners are possibly tougher in their methods than the gangsters we have here. Remember how they sprayed machine gun bullets through the Union station in Kansas City not so long ago. They killed five men there. It was the work of the Bailey gang. On Friday they killed Policeman Miles Cunningham here before he had a chance to fire, because they couldn't wait to be questioned about the mail holdup.

"That those fellows should flee into Wisconsin is just as logical. That's where the Touhy mob went after they kidnaped William Hamm, the St. Paul brewer. There are plenty of hideouts for them and lots of roads to leave by if things seem to get too warm."

Accidents Help the Police.

Only accidents that broke up their well laid plots have enabled the authorities to get hold of evidence against such well knit, able criminals. The Touhy mob lost its captain, Roger Touhy, after his car crashed in Wisconsin and he and three companions were arrested and later indicted for the Hamm kidnaping.

All the information about Winkler and Kelly, that is growing larger and more important, came as a result of the wrecking of the mail robbers' car at Adams and Halsted streets, where Policeman Cunningham was shot down.

License plates and documents in the automobile showed it had been purchased by one J. J. Rosenberg, who gave the address 3818 West Roosevelt road. No Rosenberg was found there, but Chief Schoemaker declared last night that the man who had called himself Rosenberg was the notorious Kelly.

Phillips Freed; Bergl Held.

At the Roosevelt road address is the garage of Charles Phillips. He asserted he did not know Rosenberg and could tell nothing. He was released from custody last night, after being questioned for more than twenty-four hours.

Still being held, however, is Joseph Bergl, owner of a garage at 5346 Cermak road, Cicero. The man who installed the bulletproof glass in the killers' car, Joseph Courtney, said that the job had been turned over to him by Bergl's organization. This Bergl denied, at least to the extent of having anything personally to do with the matter. But he has admitted that Gus Winkler was once his business associate and that well known hoodlums kept their cars in his garage.

So when a writ of habeas corpus was applied for in Bergl's behalf yesterday morning, Chief of Detectives Schoemaker went to Judge Harry B. Miller and won the right to hold Bergl at least until tomorrow.

Rites for Policeman Tomorrow.

Arrangements were made during the day for the funeral of Policeman Cunningham. It will be held tomorrow morning from the family residence at 4731 Kiona avenue to St. Edward's church, 4350 Sunnyside avenue. Burial will be in All Saints cemetery. Six policemen will be pallbearers, one of them Patrolman Maurice Fitzgerald, who was with Cunningham when he was killed and who engaged in a gun fight with the killers.

Mayor Kelly and Police Commissioner Allman yesterday visited the Cunningham home and expressed their sympathy for the widow and her two children. Mrs. Cunningham told the mayor she had no immediate relatives in Chicago. She might get one of her brothers to come here and aid her, she said, if he could find a job. The mayor promised to find one for the brother.

MORE KILLING IN DRY ERA

A survey of the number of policemen murdered in the history of Chicago shows that 64 per cent of the slayings have occurred in the prohibition era, dating from 1919 to the present. The official record of police deaths shows, for the fifteen years since 1919, a death toll of 156. Eighty-five policemen were killed in the forty years from the first police killing, occurring in 1878, to 1918.

The killings of policemen are recorded as follows:

Year—	Deaths
1878-1892	23
1893-1907	23
1908-1918	39
1919-1933	156
Total	241

For these 241 deaths there were only 83 convictions of one or more persons for murder. Twenty-two of this number paid or are awaiting the death penalty, while 60 others accused of murder were acquitted. For a total of 58 murders during the period no dispositions of the cases have been recorded.

The astounding record of 156 policemen murdered during the prohibition era, with the resulting 49 convictions, 40 acquittals, and 37 cases not disposed of is shown by a yearly table as follows:

	Deaths.	Convictions.	Acquittals.	No disposition.

LAWYERS TRY VAINLY TO FREE KIDNAP LEADERS

Minor Urschel Defendant Is Released.

BULLETIN.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 24 (Sunday). — (U. P.) — Katherine Kelly, fugitive wife of George (Machine Gun) Kelly, has asked permission to testify in the Urschel kidnaping trial and will appear tomorrow or Tuesday, the Oklahoma News said in a copyrighted story today. The paper said she had written to Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant United States attorney general, pleading for mercy for her parents, the Shannons of Texas, accused in the kidnaping.

She wrote from a hideout in Chicago.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Rulings by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today swept aside demurrers of nine of the twelve defendants in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping conspiracy trial, won freedom for one man, and deferred judgment for two others.

This is the first trial under the "Lindbergh law" passed by congress in June, 1932.

Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates received no consideration today from the judge, who overruled their defense motions without comment.

Bailey, bank robber, machine gunner, and prison breaker, is alleged to have directed the kidnaping plot. Bates and George [Machine Gun] Kelly were named in government testimony as the actual kidnapers. Kelly has not been caught.

One Defendant Freed.

Charles Wolk, one of seven defendants from Minneapolis and St. Paul, was ordered released. Isadore Blumenfeld and Peter Valder will learn Monday morning whether they must leave their cases to the jury. It had been charged some of the $200,000 ransom had passed through their hands.

Four others, Barney Berman, Clifford Skelly, Sam Kornick, and Sam Kozberg—were given no encouragement by the judge. He declared that they may not have known they were handling Urschel money, but that they knew they had "hot" money in their possession.

The prosecution traced $1,800 and $500 of the $200,000 paid for Urschel's release to those four Twin Cities defendants. Their plea is that they knew nothing of the kidnaping but handled the money in a liquor deal.

Rejects Shannon's Plea.

Judge Vaught turned down an attorney's plea for R. G. [Boss] Shannon, his wife Ora, and his son Armon Shannon that they were coerced under death threats by Bates and Kelly to keep the kidnaped oil man on their farm near Paradise, Tex.

"The evidence," the judge said, "shows that the Shannons knew there was a kidnaped man at their home. If they knew he was kidnaped and they guarded him, then they would be just as guilty as if they had kidnaped him, transported him, and collected the ransom. Fear of individual punishments is no excuse for a violation of the law."

"Kidnaping is as bad as murder," the judge said, "if not worse. There is no greater menace in the country today. In interpreting the act under which this case is heard I bear in mind that its purpose is to prevent all kidnaping."

Calls Jail Break Solved.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Dallas Times Herald says the solution of Harvey Bailey's escape from the Dallas county jail on Labor day was made possible through information the desperado gave to federal investigators shortly after his capture at Ardmore, Okla. It was said Bailey had been given a pistol that would not work and that was why he told who gave him the hacksaw blades he used to cut his way out of his cell on the ninth floor of the jail and the pistol.

The paper says it was discovered later that a portion of the Urschel ransom had come to Dallas.

POLICEMAN SHOT THREE TIMES IN BANDIT BATTLE

Braving the pistol fire of two bandits, Policeman John Foley, 33 years old, 812 South Kolmar avenue, yesterday frustrated a holdup in a restaurant at the northwest corner of Racine and Austin avenues. Policeman Foley was wounded three times in the battle but will recover, physicians said at the Jefferson Park hospital, where he was taken.

The policeman is assigned to the Racine avenue police station but was off duty yesterday. Accompanied by a friend, Harlan Hill, 4419 West Jackson boulevard, he had taken his automobile to a garage near the Racine avenue station to have it greased. While the job was being done, Policeman Foley and Hill stepped into the restaurant for a sandwich.

Two bandits walked in, displaying revolvers and announcing: "This is a stick-up."

Foley, who was in civilian clothes, leaped from his seat and ran behind the counter in the restaurant, at the same time drawing his gun. One of the robbers immediately fired point blank at the policeman, wounding him in the right shoulder.

Foley discharged his gun and both robbers returned the fire. The policeman was wounded again in the shoulder and also in his left leg, but he followed the holdup men as they ran from the restaurant.

Ice Dealer Shot During Argument with Autoists

Richard Todd, 45 years old, 1742 West Madison street, an ice dealer, was shot in the chest and seriously wounded last night by one of four autoists with whom he quarreled over a traffic incident. The argument was precipitated when the four men, believed to be Filipinos, drove their automobile past Todd's truck in front of 1834 West Monroe street. Suddenly one of the men drew a revolver and fired, then fled with his companions.

YOUTH CAPTURED IN WILD FLIGHT AFTER KIDNAPING

Taken at Kansas City; Freed Victims.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Police late today arrested a wounded young man and took charge of a motor car which he is alleged to have commandeered last night near Peoria, Ill., abducting the occupants and putting them out of the machine near Canton, Ill.

The youth, who gave the name of Thomas A. Davis, 19, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was quoted by officers as admitting the car theft and abductions. Police said he explained he was wounded in his right arm by a filling station operator at East Peoria, Ill., after refusing to pay for gasoline.

According to officers, he told of leaving Pittsburgh to go west, stealing a car outside that city and abandoning it near Peoria for the one in which Mrs. Fred Heffren, her daughter, and Charles Church, all of Lewiston, Ill., were riding. They were put out of their car today at Canton.

Peoria authorities were notified of the arrest. The prisoner was placed in jail after treatment of his arm.

Flees from Policeman.

Canton, Ill., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A will-o'-the-wisp fugitive, wounded and his name unknown, fled before a posse of deputies and policemen today after a darink break from custody.

His mad flight began at Carlyle, in the southern part of the state, where he seized a pistol from his captor, Chief Deputy Sheriff Henry Donnewald, wounded the deputy in the shoulder and escaped in his car.

Through central Illinois he sped. During his dash for freedom he changed automobiles twice, kidnaped four persons for brief periods, and engaged in a gun battle at a filling station.

Fugitive About 20.

The fugitive, a youth of about 20 years of age, was taken into custody yesterday by Donnewald, who found a dagger in the youth's automobile and arrested him for carrying concealed weapons.

As Donnewald was escorting his prisoner to the Clinton county jail, the youth snatched the officer's revolver, leaped into his car, and sped away. Donnewald's aids sent a volley of bullets after him.

The youth's next appearances were in abrupt, Jack-in-the-box fashion. He drove up to a gasoline filling station in East Peoria, ordered the car refueled and tossed an empty purse at the attendant, Mrs. W. O. Gollady.

She remonstrated and he replied by shooting at her, without effect. Albert Thomas, a Springfield carpenter who chanced to be in the station, seized a pistol and a brief duel ensued.

Seizes Another Car.

The fugitive drove off and ran into a ditch a short distance down the road. There stood W. A. Reynolds beside his parked car. The youth commandeered the machine and at gun's point induced Reynolds to accompany him. Reynolds escaped when his captor sent him away to procure bandages for a wounded arm. That was at Kingston mines.

A short time afterward, the fugitive was forced to stop when a bearing in the car burned out. Charles Church, a farmer of Lewistown, accompanied by two relatives, Mrs. Fred Heffren and her 12-year-old daughter, drove up. The bandit compelled them to halt and forced them to go along with him in their machine.

He released the trio near Canton. There the trail of the fugitive ended.

BANKER WILL VIEW 6 KIDNAP SUSPECTS IN HIS OWN CASE

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Six suspects in the attempted kidnaping of Milton G. Newman, wealthy banker and park board president, seized in Springfield late Friday, will be taken before Mr. Newman for identification. Newman has said five men were in his house on the night of the attempted kidnaping.

The suspects were seized after cooperation of the United States department of justice, with detectives from Peoria, Springfield, and St. Louis. The police captured three pistols, four shotguns, a high powered rifle, and ammunition in the autos of those arrested on the street and in rooms over a saloon.

These suspects are Vito Impastato, alias Joe Orlando, 29; Patsy Aiello, 35; Frank Longo, 33; Charles Fenello, 21; Joe Caloli, 22; Tony Campo, 37. All deny any knowledge of the Newman kidnaping. They will be asked to submit to the lie detector.

ROBBERS TOURING NORTH SIDE TAKE $80 FROM SIX MEN

Two robbers, moving swiftly from point to point in a small automobile, held up six men yesterday afternoon on the north side, escaping with about $80.

Two of their victims, pedestrians halted on the streets, had no money and the robbers' efforts against them were wasted. Those who gave up nothing are James Drapalitz, 2308 North Ridgeland avenue, who was halted at Leavitt and Division streets, and Eddie Glunz, 3657 Greenview avenue, whom the bandits searched in front of 225 East Superior street.

From Olaf Olson, 2836 Dawson street, the pair took $49 in front of 1165 North Mozart street. In an auto parts store at 2823 West Chicago avenue, Albert Babbitt, 2813 Thomas street, and Thomas Sapon, 1630 Warren avenue, were robbed of $20. The sixth victim was Morris Lasky, 3101 West Adams street, who gave up $8 and several checks in front of 1456 North Leavitt street.

FILLING STATION BANDITS COMMIT A MURDER FOR $5

Murder was committed for $5 early yesterday in Hammond, Ind., where Alfred Wills, 63 years old, proprietor of a gasoline filling station at 7349 Calumet avenue, was killed for the $5 in silver he carried on his person.

The body was found in the office of that station yesterday morning. Police theorized that two Hammond hoodlums committed the murder. Wills had been slugged and beaten and then shot in the body and head with his own gun. A coroner's physician said that the man was probably dead from the blows on his head before he had been shot.

Wills and his son, John, who operates the station, had been held up several times in the last year and both went armed. The robbers took with them Wills' gun, and it was determined from the bullets that it was this gun with which Wills had been shot.

PLOT TO KIDNAP NIECE OF MORGAN PARTNER FOILED

Man, Woman Are Held for Threats to Blast Home.

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—A plot to kidnap a niece of Russell C. Leffingwell, a partner of J. P. Morgan and former assistant secretary of the treasury, was frustrated today by department of justice agents and the police of Yonkers, N. Y.

Mrs. John K. Dougherty, the 22 year old daughter of Franklin A. Batcheller of Yonkers, was the intended victim. Virginia Antoinette de Palma, a trained nurse, and James Medley, formerly manager of a filling station near the Batcheller home, are under arrest as the conspirators.

Letters Demand $10,000.

The two prisoners are accused of having written a series of letters to the girl's parents threatening to abduct her and blow up the Batcheller home unless they were given $10,000 to insure her safety. The first letter was mailed Aug. 12, and since that time federal agents and detectives have been spreading their net for the authors.

When the first threatening letter was received, Mr. and Mrs. Batcheller had sent invitations to their friends, many of them socially prominent and wealthy, to attend the wedding of their daughter, Helen, to John K. Dougherty, a young stock broker.

On Sept. 13 Miss Batcheller and Mr. Dougherty were married at her home with agents of the department of justice as the only witnesses except for members of the immediate family.

In the weeks that followed the receipt of the first threatening letter the kidnapers set several times and places for payment of the ransom, but each time an attack of cold feet at the last moment kept them from carrying out their part of the plan. Friday night, however, they directed that the money be left behind a billboard and an agent who resembles Mr. Batcheller, a stock broker, was sent to carry out the telephoned instructions.

Woman Names Accomplice.

Yonkers police closing in on the spot named by the conspirators came upon Miss De Palma sitting in a parked car near the signboard clutching a loaf of bread which had been slit down the middle to form a sort of pocket into which the folded bills might be slipped. She was promptly arrested.

Miss De Palma was questioned most of the night by Edward Quirk, chief of the Yonkers police, and by department of justice agents. This morning detectives went to Medley's home and arrested him. The police said the young woman had confessed and named Medley, who is 25, as her accomplice.

The two face prosecution under the so-called "Lindbergh law," passed by congress in July, 1932, making it a crime punishable by a fine of $5,000 or twenty years' imprisonment to send letters through the mails threatening kidnaping and demanding money.

According to the Yonkers police, the idea of kidnaping Mrs. Dougherty originated in the mind of Medley, who often sold her gasoline and oil for her car. He, it was said, drew Miss De Palma into the plot with him and then sat back and let her write most of the letters, do the telephoning, and the other jobs which finally ended in their arrests.

The first letter was dated June 12. The envelope in which it was delivered, however, bore the postmark of Aug. 12.

"Don't be alarmed when you read this," the letter said. "It is just a little matter to be taken up between ourselves. It has come to our attention that you have a very attractive daughter and naturally you want to keep her. So we just want a little money to insure you of her safety. We won't ask for much, just a sum you can easily pay. We demand $10,000.

Warned Not to Tell Police.

"If you notify police about this it will not be so good for your daughter. If there is one word said about this you will be sorry. If you don't believe that, just try something.

"The only thing for you to do is to do as we say and keep your mouth shut and everything will be O. K. and don't forget that. It don't pay to be a wise guy, you know. If you are willing to carry out our plans you may let us know by putting an ad in the personal column of a New York paper Aug. 15."

Mr. Batcheller communicated with Chief Quirk, who advised him to notify the federal authorities. First, however, Mr. Batcheller simulated compliance with the extortionists' demands by inserting the following advertisement in a New York paper:

"Ralph, Everything O. K.
"FATHER."

The second letter and those which followed bore no signature. This missive said, in part:

"We received your note O. K. and hope you realized this is no joke. Now the next thing for you to do is to get the dough ready. Get five grand in $20 bills and five in $10 bills.

"After you make this payment you may rest assured that you or your family will be in no danger whatsoever."

Mr. Batcheller obtained the money and waited for instructions. Before long a feminine voice informed him over the telephone that he was to leave the money near an electric light pole.

Another telephone call to the Batcheller home resulted in the springing of the trap and the arrest of the pair.

NEW POSTOFFICE AT KANSAS CITY OPEN; COST FOUR MILLION

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 23.—[U. P.]—Uncle Sam today touched the electric buttons of the mechanical robot in the new terminal postoffice here.

The $4,000,000 giant responded by whisking Kansas City's mail through the postal processes two hours faster than ever before.

A mailroom an acre in extent was carved out of solid rock and soil beneath the union station terminal to accommodate one part of the new postoffice system. Elevators rising to train levels disgorge mail for outbound cars while conveyers rush incoming mail underground to the postoffice sorting rooms.

Inside the terminal, a block away from the subterranean vault, other conveyers speed mail to distribution towers and finally to carriers' cases.

HEAD OF CUBA DEMANDS U. S. QUIT 'MEDDLING'

President Grau Says He Will Drive Out Reds.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 23.—President Ramon Grau San Martin declared today that his government will not tolerate meddling or dictation from Washington or Moscow. At a luncheon given by the Rotary club, which is acting as mediator between the presidential palace and the counter-revolutionary groups, Grau said he would use an iron hand to drive communism from the island.

"My government will not tolerate interference or meddling from Washington or Moscow," he said. "I mean interference in the broad conception of the word. This Nationalist government is the exclusive product of Cubans."

U. S. Ambassador Accused.

Grau pounced upon former President Mario G. Menocal and Col. Carlos Mendieta, leaders in the counter-revolutionary movement. He called them "caudillos," or old line politicians. He said they had wrecked the island and turned it over to American interests.

Another speaker, José Antonio Padilla of the student directorate, which is an active element in support of Grau, said that the recent uprising against the Grau government at Consolacion was on Menocal's orders, with the approval of United States Ambassador Sumner Welles.

"The so-called uprisings in the island," he said, "are engineered by old line politicians, with the consent of Welles, so that the American government can land troops to protect foreign life and property. It is a disgrace that the American fleet is in Cuban waters."

Claims Revolts Are Quelled.

The presidential palace today pointed to three revolts in the interior of the island which were suppressed yesterday by Col. Fulgencio Batista's army as a demonstration that the Grau government is able to maintain peace and order. Three sons of Juan Blas Hernandez, king of Cuban bushwhackers, who has been leading the revolt in Camaguey province, were captured late last night after a battle of an hour and a half at a farm ner Ciego de Avila. Blas Hernandez himself escaped.

Attention was also called to the situation in Havana, where in three weeks since President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes was ousted no killings have taken place.

The student directorate today also made its official answer to the Rotary club concerning the proposal of the Menocalistas, the Mendietistas, the ABC, and the right wing of the OCRR that the president and his cabinet should resign preparatory to the formation of a coalition government. The students said Grau must remain in office.

Economic Weakness Grows.

Against these surface indications of a strong government, however, appeared a growing economic weakness. Havana, which takes its revolutions gayly and casually, turned from rumblings of revolt, and overnight began to talk of malaria-bearing mosquitoes. They have appeared in the last few days. For 20 years the city has been without screen doors and screen windows, and the mosquito was supposed to be as extinct here as the dodo.

Due to lack of finances, the removal of refuse has not been as complete as necessary, although garbage squads have worked even through the general strike, and now mosquitoes are breeding. Drinking water supplies have deteriorated and goblets at hotel tables have a noxious smell, while supplies of spring water are diminishing, due to the strike of drivers.

U. S. Destroyer Saves Refugees.

From Oriente province came word that the United States destroyer Hamilton had arrived at the sugar central at Tanamo, near Banes, to take on board eight men, three women, and five children, all British and American refugees. The destroyer is to take them to some port where they can take regular steamers abroad.

Sugar labor strikers, led by communists, are reported to have taken over the mill, which is owned by Americans. Among the owners are said to be Vincent Astor and Percy Rockefeller. Food was reported almost exhausted and water and electric power had been cut off by the agitators.

At Santiago unrest is reported to be growing. This morning a meeting was held at the Casa Grande hotel between Fred Northcross, manager of the El Cristo manganese mines of the Bethlehem company of Pennsylvania and a committee of soldiers, students, and laborers. Northcross said the company had decided to close the mines permanently and would do no more business in Cuba. The strikers insisted that he give more consideration to their demands for higher wages and a closed shop.

At Macabi, Oriente, the sugar mill and town are in the hands of communists and the United Fruit company today discontinued shipping its sugar through that port.

At Daiquiri managers of American owned mines are reported to have said they will pay their laborers off Monday. The mines are to be closed indefinitely. The mines remain in the hands of strikers.

The "Frente Rojo Juvenil" [Juvenile Red Front], a youths' branch of the communist party, sent a memorandum to the palace today protesting against the orders of the government that the headquarters of the organization in the former home of Orestes Ferrara, secretary of state under former President Machado, be closed and the organization disbanded. Grau's orders are reported to have been carried out.

Seize Furniture from Home.

To furnish their headquarters these juvenile Reds two nights ago are reported to have entered a private Cuban home and to have taken whatever furniture they needed.

A report from Matanzas this morning said a communist group had ejected the owners from a house and confiscated the food supply and furniture. When the owners asked for compensation the Reds replied:

"Lead is the only currency in Cuba."

Soldiers told the owners they were powerless to do anything.

At Santa Clara a bomb was exploded at the home of the superintendent of schools.

Island Faces Food Shortage.

Food shortage is an increasing threat throughout the island. The government has ordered a survey made of all food stocks stored in warehouses at ports and other cities. It is conjectured that the palace may establish a food control system to meet the shortage growing out of the great number of labor strikes.

Employés of wholesale grocery warehouses are on strike in Havana and bread stocks are running low. Bakeshops have long lines in front at the hour when bread comes from the ovens for sale. In restaurants, the amount of bread served with meals has been reduced.

Business houses in Havana loudly complain of the depression. Merchants say they have not been able to trade since the revolutionary junta forced De Cespedes out three weeks ago.

Speak of Cuban "NRA."

At the palace, members of the student directorate speak in general phrases of Cuba's NRA. They are vague in expounding their economic theories, but they say Cuba needs the same machinery as the United States for recovery, with adaptations suitable to the island.

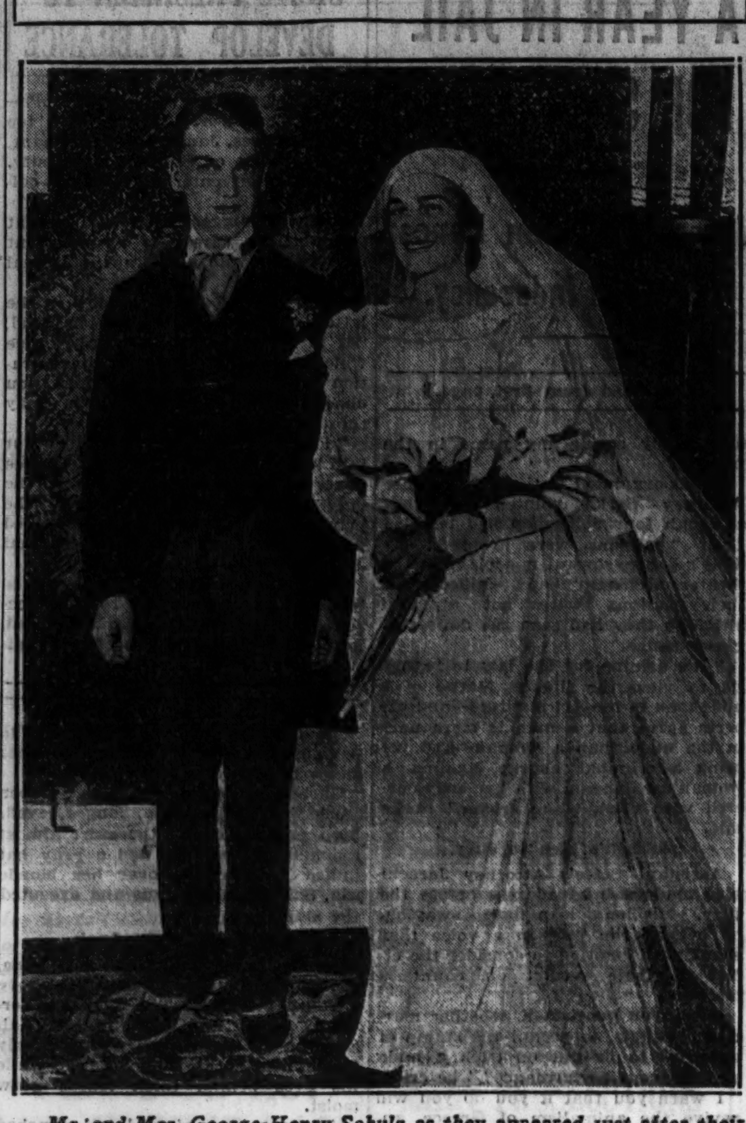
One great point of difference is that business men appear not to be behind the students' so-called NRA program. They regard it as visionary and not well defined and the situation, they say, is filled with isms and theories of all varieties.

TYPEWRITER CO. HEAD ENDS LIFE BY STRANGLING

Clark H. Methot, 46 years old, general manager of the Monex Machine company, a subsidiary of the L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriter company, committed suicide yesterday by strangling himself with an elastic exerciser in the bathroom of his apartment at 1125 Farwell avenue. His wife, Ethel, found his body upon returning home in the afternoon. She said he had been in ill health for more than a year and had been using the exerciser in an effort to better his condition.

Rogers Park police found Methot had wrapped three elastic strands of the exerciser around his neck several times and then tied the loose ends to his right arm. Sheer will power apparently had enabled him to keep pulling until he was strangled.

MARY DAWES BECOMES BRIDE



Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Schulz as they appeared just after their wedding in Evanston yesterday afternoon. The bride was Miss Mary Dawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Dawes, at whose home at 101 Greenleaf avenue, the ceremony was performed.

MARY DAWES IS WED IN CEREMONY IN PARENTS' HOME

She Becomes the Bride of George Henry Schulz.

BY JUDITH CASS.

In a beautiful home ceremony characterized by the same simple elegance that has marked all other weddings in the Dawes family, Miss Mary Dawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Dawes, became the bride of George Henry Schulz yesterday afternoon.

The service was read at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Paul Wolff, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston, in the presence of the relatives and a few friends before an improvised altar in the drawing room of the Dawes' spacious home on Greenleaf avenue in Evanston. The bridal couple stood facing a screen of huckleberry that hid the fireplace, which is between two large windows that look out over the lake. Formal trees of Bermuda lilies were on either side of the screen, and the only light was from cathedral candles.

Bride on Arm of Father.

The bride, on the arm of her father, followed her attendants down the stairs and into the drawing room along an aisle made by garlands of huckleberry and laurel fastened to wrought iron standards. Only white flowers were used to decorate the dining room, but there were autumn flowers in all their rich colorings in the hall and the library, which is half way up the stairs. A large reception followed the ceremony.

The bride, a tall, stunning brunette, never looked lovelier than she did in her bridal gown of white bagheera velvet made along empire lines with a long train and long, tight sleeves. The only trimming was a band of ermine that outlined the high neckline. The tulle veil was held in place by a narrow band of seed pearls, and she carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Mrs. Trevor Stamp of London (Frances Bosworth of Evanston), one of the bridesmaids, wore pansy blue bagheera with no sleeves and short velvet gloves, slippers and a toque to match her gown. Mrs. Harold Yegge and Miss Louise Hassel, the other two bridesmaids, wore similar outfits of a shade lighter than Mrs. Stamp's and carried deep purple orchids. Mrs. Stamp's flowers were pale lavender orchids.

Flower Girl in Blue.

The flower girls, blonde, curly headed little Anne Elizabeth and Mary Louise Torrison, nieces of the bridegroom, were pictures in Kate Greenaway frocks of pale pansy blue with ribbons the same shade around their heads. They carried small old-fashioned bouquets of sweetheart roses.

Otto Schulz acted as best man for his brother. The ushers were two other brothers, William and Carl Schulz, and Curtis Dawes, the bride's brother. The bride's mother wore brown crêpe with a gold metal cloth bodice and a brown velvet hat trimmed with ostrich plumes tipped with gold, and a corsage of green orchids. Mrs. Otto Schultz of Chicago, the bridegroom's mother, wore a wine colored crêpe gown and a hat to match and white orchids.

After the reception the bride changed to a traveling costume of brown cloth with a cape of blue foxes and she and her husband left to motor east. The couple will sail from New York for Bermuda and will return home in about a month. They plan to live in Evanston.

Relatives at Ceremony.

Among the relatives at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Beeman Dawes of Columbus O.; Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, and Mrs. Dawes and their large family, including Mr. and Mrs. William M. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Sherman [Jean Dawes], Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Jefferson [Margaret Dawes], Miss Helen Dawes, and Palmer Dawes; Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes and their daughters Miss Virginia Dawes and Mrs. Melvin B. Ericson, and Mr. Ericson; William R. Dawes and his family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Neil B. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Walter [Eleanor Dawes], and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walker [Marion Dawes].

Mrs. Henry Haskell of Kansas City, Mo., Miss Dorothy Bugbee of New York and Miss Eloise Grafton of Washington were among the intimate friends at the wedding.

ZEPPELIN SERVICE ACROSS SEA SOON, ECKENER PREDICTS

Akron, O., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Trans-Atlantic Zeppelin service between Europe and the United States was seen as nearing realization today by Dr. Hugo Eckener, famed Graf Zeppelin skipper.

"With President Paul W. Litchfield of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation I have worked out a program for carrying that dream to realization," Dr. Eckener announced as he concluded a day and a half of almost continuous conferences.

"The plans are still only plans, but we know now what work is to be done and how we intend to proceed to do it."

Dr. Eckener disclosed that he hopes to start the Europe-United States service in the spring of 1935. By that time the LZ-129, now under construction at Friedrichshafen, will be completed and ready for operation.

SAYS ALEUTIANS WINDIEST SPOT IN ALL WORLD

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special].—The Rev. Bernard R. Hubbard, S. J., known as the glacier priest for his explorations in Alaska, returned to New York today to tell of having visited the windiest spot on earth, in the Aleutian islands.

Gales which, in one instance reported by a sea captain, reached a velocity of 216 miles an hour, hampered exploration, Father Hubbard reported. His party of four succeeded in visiting a hitherto unexplored volcanic crater, where an accommodating lake furnished water hot enough to cook food at one end, warm water for bathing in the middle, and abounds in icebergs at the other.

Other discoveries included a prehistoric weapon factory, in which the workmen appeared to have been surprised by raiders and killed; a war mask cave, which was left for future exploration, and the sites of several stone age villages.

The expedition, which began in May and ended in late August, was confined for the most part to the Krenitzen group of the Aleutian chain. About six weeks were spent on Unimak island, where the explorers revisited the Shishaldin volcano, inspected by Father Hubbard last year soon after it had been in violent eruption.

Boy, 8, Awarded $3,000 in Suit Against Doctor

A jury in the Superior court before Judge Joseph B. David yesterday awarded Robert Smith, 8 years old, 1154 West Huron street, a verdict of $3,000 against Dr. Richard Haley, 3737 South Campbell avenue, in a suit for malpractice. The boy was treated by Dr. Haley after a fall from a tree on Oct. 20, 1931. Dr. Haley, according to the testimony, found no injury to the boy, but it was later learned that his arm was fractured, and that it will be permanently stiff.

GREECE REJECTS U. S. TRANSLATION OF INSULL PAPERS

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 23.—(AP)—A delay has been caused in the extradition proceedings against Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities operator, by the refusal of the ministry of justice to accept the American legation's translation of documents necessary in the case.

The foreign ministry is translating over again all of the papers, and it will be several days before the next step in the case is taken. When the translations are completed the papers will be sent to the ministry of justice.

Insull is wanted in the United States to answer to a charge of violating the bankruptcy laws.

Union Office Is Robbed of $1,000 by 3 Bandits

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Three bandits held up three men in the headquarters of the United Textile Workers of America here tonight and escaped with more than $1,000, mostly dues paid by local members.

3 TRAPPED MINERS SAVED FROM FLOOD IN COAL GALLERY

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Three miners, entombed by tons of earth dropped in a shaft of a Glen Alden Coal company mine at nearby Tescokow, tonight were rescued unharmed. They were standing in water up to their shoulders when found. They were trapped when a pillar they were blasting suddenly collapsed, cutting off their escape.

Rescue crews, worked in relays all day, had bored a hole through tons of debris. The Rev. Felix Levuda, a priest, crawled through the opening to administer the last rites of the Catholic church.

He found them alive on a slope. They shouted the water was about eight feet deep between their perch and the rescue outlet; none could swim. The priest carried the news to their families as miners rescued the marooned men with ropes.

PRISONER DEFIES GERMAN COURT IN ARSON TRIAL

Red Denies He Had Part in Reichstag Fire.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Fiery exchanges between the court and Georgi Dimitroff, Bulgarian refugee, during which he admitted he would have committed suicide during his imprisonment if given a chance, today marked the trial of five men charged with burning the reichstag building.

Both Dimitroff and Blagoi Popoff, another Bulgarian defendant who was placed on the stand, denied any connection with the blaze.

The remarks of the defendant, once leader of the Bulgarian communists, brought a rebuke from Justice Wilhelm Buenger that "You're altogether too fresh" and a threat of special measures "unless you moderate yourself."

Ridicules Old Sentence.

Typical of Dimitroff's attitude was his rejoinder to a question as to what sentences were imposed on him in Bulgaria.

[Dimitroff, as well as the other Bulgarian defendants, Popoff and Wassil Taneff, have been accused of bombing a cathedral in which 200 people were killed.]

"I have heard I have been condemned to death," said Dimitroff, "but that does not interest me. The sentences have no meaning."

This occasioned the first clash. Buenger, his face flushed and his voice raised, berated the prisoner after Dimitroff added:

"What difference does it make? I deny the verity of the matter presented by the Bulgarian legation."

"Herr Dimitroff," Buenger cried, "you must learn two things—be modest and conduct yourself quietly. You will not get anywhere with us with any other methods!"

Defendant Renews Feud.

The defendant bowed his head at this rebuff, but the feud was renewed later when the presiding judge instructed him to "Cease once and for all using the expression 'self-evident.' It gives the impression that we are asking superfluous questions."

"I ask your pardon," said Dimitroff, "but you must understand that after six months of confinement, five of which were spent handcuffed and during which time I could not sleep, I naturally sound excited and possibly use expressions which are not permissible."

The suicide admission followed questioning concerning a report that a couple with whom he had lived tried to end their lives.

"Believe me, I too would have committed suicide in prison if I had had a chance," replied the witness. "Being handcuffed for five months is no laughing matter."

Claims Defense Is Hampered.

Another scene followed Dimitroff's repetition of the statement that 2,000 Bulgarian communists were "innocently murdered" and that he had been denied proper counsel in this hearing.

Buenger told him once was enough for the murder statement, adding in a loud voice: "You assert this without proof."

"If I had had a free choice of counsel," shot back Dimitroff, "I would have supplied proof. But you hampered me in my defense. I never before knew the attorney you assigned me. The eight lawyers I suggested were rejected."

Buenger explained that the lawyers were rejected for just cause. Dimitroff only shrugged his shoulders.

Dodge Questions of Court.

Some of the court's questions in examining both Dimitroff and Popoff appeared to be directed toward establishing a connection between the accused Bulgarian emigres and German communist activities, but both witnesses carefully dodged each leading question.

"I did not need the German communists, and hence had no reason for contacting them," Dimitroff insisted, while Popoff said, "I never communicated with any leading personality in German political parties as I knew none."

Both categorically denied implication in the reichstag fire, which they said was an individual act of terror, opposed in principle by the communist party.

Asked why he first gave wrong information in the preliminary examination regarding himself, Popoff testified:

"It never seemed possible for a moment to me that I could be accused of the heinous crime of the reichstag fire. I feared truthful statements about myself might lead to my extradition and my handing over to Bulgarian authorities."

Says Judge Angered Him.

Justice Buenger at one point mentioned that the record of the preliminary hearings showed that Dimitroff behaved badly toward the examining judge.

"Because I was provoked by him," shouted the witness.

"I regret this," rejoined the justice, curtly. "Anyway we will hear the examining judge later."

At no time did Dimitroff deny connection with the communist party. Instead, he assumed responsibility for everything the organization had done in Bulgaria.

He declared, however that he regretted "such idiotic, criminal and individual terroristic actions as the burning of the reichstag," simply because he was "a convicted communist." He added the observation that "in Bulgaria communists are made responsible for everything; but that happens in Germany also."

Red on Hunger Strike.

The court agreed to the request of the official defense counsel for Marinus Van der Lubbe, the reputed Dutch communist viewed as the principal defendant, for the appointment of a physician to watch him.

"I have learned from the warden that Van der Lubbe has not eaten or taken liquids since the beginning of the trial," the attorney said in explanation of his petition.

Alfons Sack, counsel for Ernst Torgler, another defendant, made public letters he wrote Sept. 16 to Arthur Garfield Hays, American attorney; Leo Gallagher of London, D. N. Pritt, also of London, and Moro Giafferi of Paris, urgently inviting them to come to Leipzig to convince themselves of the independence and objectivity of the Supreme court, before which the trial is being held.

"I give my personal pledge," Sack wrote, "that you can come here without the slightest apprehension regarding your personal safety, freedom of movement or the possibility of obtaining information."

Asks to Assist in Defense.

Hays' reply thanked Sack for the invitation and offered to discuss the proceedings of an unofficial "international legal commission" which investigated the fire at London as soon as the transcript of the session arrived. He continued:

"I do ask, in view of my knowledge of the case and the fact that I have heard evidence from witnesses who are not available to you, that in the interests of justice you give me an opportunity to confer and collaborate with you in connection with the defense."

The suggestion yesterday that Hays assist in the defense of Torgler was rejected by the defendant himself.

The Hays reply also said:

"This is particularly important to Torgler on account of the evidence in London exculpating him. Further I understand there are witnesses in Germany, who for political reasons are fearful of revealing themselves even to you as a lawyer. The reasons therefor do not apply to me, and I am certain that if I have your assurance that the witnesses whose names I suggest will be protected in the future, that I can get them to come forward."

STEAL 110 SUITS OF CLOTHES.

The Maxwell police yesterday were searching for three armed men who held up the John Baudalin Clothing company at 1200 Blue Island avenue and escaped with 110 suits of clothing, valued at $300.

SALLY RAND SENTENCED TO YEAR IN JAIL FOR FAN DANCING

Here are two views of Sally Rand, one with her famous fans and the other taken during one of her recent court appearances. Sally was found guilty by a jury yesterday of performing an obscene and indecent dance in a public place and sentenced to serve a year in the county jail and pay a $200 fine. It was the maximum penalty.

Jurors Find Fan Dancer Guilty of Indecency.

In his argument to the jury Defense Attorney Berke pointed out that although four policemen had testified their "passions were aroused" by Sally's dance, several musicians in the theater orchestra had testified that their passions were not aroused, although they had seen the dancer at closer range.

"It's asinine for the law to permit us to view the lifesize statue of a nude man in the Art institute—and experts agree that a man is more ugly in the nude than a woman—and yet bring a criminal charge against a woman for dancing with her body covered with thick white cream," Berke said.

Jarecki's Plea to Jury.

Assistant State's Attorney Jarecki also made a brief address before the jury. His long, lean figure swaying, he begged the jury in a voice that shook with emotion to consider the effect of their verdict on countless mothers.

"Are you gentlemen, whether married or single, to permit the stamp of approval to be put on such a nude and indecent performance?" he cried. "I warn you that if you do you will revive the animalism of Greece, approve the lust of Rome, set the stamp of approval on the free love of the middle ages and condone the loves of the Borgias. You will return us to paganism."

He urged the jurors, who sat forward with solemn faces as he spoke, not "to crucify decency on a cross of gold—the commercialism of a woman who would show her body in the nude to crowds in a theater."

"On the other hand, gentlemen," he said, "future generations of mothers will rise up and call you blessed if you return a verdict of guilty."

After the trial, Jarecki turned to Miss Rand, a small figure beside him.

"I hope you'll shake hands with me," he said.

"No, I don't believe I will," she replied with a smile.

"Well, now, I feel bad about that," he said.

Sally Gives Demonstration.

The jurors' demeanor when they filed solemnly into the courtroom and stood while the clerk read their verdict contrasted with their facial expressions a short time earlier when Sally did her dance for their benefit.

She had testified that she is coated with white theatrical cream and ties a piece of net around her hips before her dance begins. As she waves her fans around, however, she said, the net slips down, and she "steps out of it" before the last phase of her dance, when she climbs a flight of steps on the stage and stands with one knee raised and her fans over her head for the final bars of music.

At the conclusion of this testimony Attorney Berke handed Sally her two huge feather fans and asked her to demonstrate the eight steps of her dance to the jury.

Garbed in a green woolen jumper dress with white satin, long sleeved, high necked blouse, the skirt almost reaching her ankles, and a gray hat pulled far forward over her blonde wig, Sally took the fans and executed the steps.

The Jury Gets a Look.

At the finale she raised one knee, showing a tiny line of bare leg above a rolled stocking. The jury sat forward, gaping and grinning. A small gray haired juror with a melancholy face smiled a thin lipped smile, while his eyes behind thick lenses grew moist.

A young juror giggled and punched his neighbor, a ponderous man who sat with open mouth.

In the front row of the jury box an elderly man with a red face clutched his knees and leaned forward, grinning with apparent approval. A youngish juror with disarrayed hair unloosed his collar and tie and rested his hands on the rail.

Only one member of the jury, a neatly dressed young man who later was pointed out by his fellow jurors as the one who was hard to convince that Sally was guilty of indecency, appeared unconcerned and sat back with a bored expression during her dance.

The last defense witness was Dr. Samuel Goldberg, a staff surgeon at Michael Reese hospital. He had been preceded by a procession of state witnesses, policemen of the morals squad, who had testified as to what they saw during the last phase of Sally's dance.

Dr. Goldberg testified that it would be a physical impossibility for Sally to reveal in a dance all that the policemen said they saw.

Previously Policewoman Bessie McShane had testified that the theatrical cream Sally wore did not entirely hide her breasts, and Policeman Harry M. Costello of the police commissioner's office had declared the dance indecent.

Joseph Cherniavsky, orchestra conductor at the theater, testified for the defense that there was nothing indecent or seductive in Sally's dance.

"There couldn't be, as it's danced to slow, dreamy music," he said. "There can't be anything such as is called 'hotcha' danced to slow music. No one can dance suggestively to 'adagio' time."

HARVARD PRESIDENT URGES FRESHMEN TO DEVELOP TOLERANCE

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 23.—(AP)—No one need worry lest he have too few prejudices, James Bryant Conant, new president of Harvard university, told freshmen entering Harvard college today.

"May I suggest," he said, "that your college career is an excellent time to cultivate a tolerant, skeptical spirit?"

As to their choice of studies in the latter three college years, he said, "it is of relatively little importance which one of our fields of concentration you decide upon, provided you choose a subject which you may thoroughly enjoy.

"For many of you who will go out into the world of affairs, the last three years of your college life may be the only time when you will have the privilege of indulging a wholehearted interest in some purely intellectual activity.

"If you are fortunate enough to have the experience of a real intellectual passion, you will, to my mind, have gained what is best in a university."

SHAW CRITICIZES 'MOB AGITATION' IN FOREIGN TRIALS

Says It Always Reacts on the Prisoners.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 23.—What happens when "a mob of internationalist agitators" takes up the case of prisoners in another country was explained by George Bernard Shaw today in an elaboration of his own reasons for declining to take part in the recent London "investigation" of the reichstag fire.

Shaw's "peppery" postcard in which he refused to associate himself with the self-appointed "court" was greeted with cries of "Shame!" and "Don't buy his books!" when it was read at last night's meeting of the "world committee for relief of victims of German Fascism."

Promoted Fire Probe.

This committee promoted the London investigation of the reichstag fire. Shaw's postcard was read by Ellen Wilkinson, Labor party politician.

Shaw, as a communist and ardent defender of soviet Russia, is considered in certain circles to have let down socialists of all breeds when he eschewed the ready-made opportunity to attack Hitlerism, which he hates.

The British writer amplified his original rebuke with the following statement:

"The committee had no right to concern itself with the Leipzig trial because none of the prisoners is British. If we have anything to say, we should wait until they have had their trial.

Refers to Sacco and Vanzetti.

"People here get into a state of political agitation and take up the case of some prisoner or other accused by a foreign government, and without the slightest consideration of the fact that they are damaging the unfortunate prisoner. They never consider the effect of their proceedings on the prisoner in question.

"Take the case of Sacco and Vanzetti. Any chance they had of not being electrocuted was cut off by foreign agitation, got up by denouncing American justice and that kind of thing. A man named Mooney has been for many years imprisoned in America, and I dare says he would have been let out long ago had he not been used as a stick to beat the American government with.

"Take again the case of the British engineers tried in Russia. Our agitation was ridiculous. We had no right to it. Yet the people who took up that point of view the strongest are doing the very same thing in the case of these unfortunate prisoners at Leipzig.

Condemns Interference.

"The continual use of these unfortunate prisoners abroad as a stick with which to beat the government seems to be cruel and inconsiderate and I said so without reserve on my postcard.

"Any Englishman has a right to cry 'shame' if he feels like that. It is only another example of the inconsiderateness I complain of. These people are only crying 'shame' because I don't say the foolish things they do."

STEAL AUTO AT LIGHT.

Frank W. Taylor, 1058 South Mayfield avenue, and his wife, were robbed of their automobile by two armed men when they stopped the car at a traffic light at Laramie avenue and Jackson boulevard early yesterday.

RUSSIA PROTESTS NAZI ARREST OF TWO REPORTERS

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The soviet embassy protested sharply today against the arrest in Leipzig of correspondents from a Moscow newspaper and a Russian news agency, who were reporting the Reichstag arson trial. Both oral and written representations were made by the embassy.

Lili Keith, Berlin correspondent of Izvestia, and Ivan Bespalow, representative of the Tass news agency, were routed from their beds early yesterday by police who said they were operating under an emergency decree.

The police president apologized to them and to Secretary Hirschfeld of the Russian embassy, all of whom came to Berlin in the afternoon. Hirschfeld told the police that "I cannot accept your apology" and that "this matter will have further consequences through the embassy."

U. S. ACTS SOON ON PERMITS TO IMPORT LIQUOR

Many Seek Authority to Make Whisky.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Action on many applications for permits to import whisky and other liquors from abroad because of the rapidly increasing prices for medicinal liquors may be taken by the treasury next week. Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the industrial alcohol bureau, also disclosed today that a decision as to increasing the year's quota of domestic whisky manufacture will be made soon.

The distillers have been authorized to produce 11,000,000 gallons of whisky so far this year. This quota will be completed by Oct. 15. It was anticipated that the distillers would be permitted to operate virtually to capacity pending repeal of the eighteenth amendment, now believed certain before the end of the year.

Dr. Doran made clear that the tentative plan to permit the importation of a large quantity of whisky is not based on the belief that the prohibition law would be repealed. That applies also to the increase in domestic manufacture.

Sees Increase Justified.

"The increase in production has been justified by the greatly increasing distribution of medicinal spirits," Dr. Doran said.

"Pressure brought to bear on the treasury to permit importation has been based on the assertion that the rapidly increasing prices indicate that the available stocks of liquor are not adequate to meet the demand."

Dr. Doran pointed out that under the law it is the duty of the secretary of the treasury to maintain an adequate supply of medicinal liquor for legitimate purposes. Prior to the enactment of legislation virtually removing the restrictions from issuance of liquor prescriptions consumption of medicinal spirits had been less than a million gallons annually for some time.

Consumption Is Increasing.

The gain in consumption has been so rapid since the new law was put into effect that the treasury only has estimated on the present requirements. However, it was believed that withdrawals are at the rate of about 8,000,000 gallons annually. At that rate there is less than a year's supply of well aged liquor in the bonded warehouses.

Owing to the fact that in many centers medicinal liquor is being sold without even the formality of a physician issuing a prescription, consumption will continue to gain as the end of prohibition nears. Drug stores in many cases now issue their prescriptions in selling liquor.

Hundreds of applications for authority to open distilleries have already been received by the industrial alcohol bureau. Studies of the applications are being made and licenses will be granted promptly after the thirty-sixth state has ratified repeal.

LA FAYETTE KIN SAILS TO ATTEND LEGION REUNION

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Louis Johnson, American Legion national commander, today received a cablegram that Gen. Aldebert de Chambrun, famous French warrior and great-grandson of Gen. La Fayette, had sailed today on the Berengaria for America to attend the Legion national convention in Chicago Oct. 2 to 5.

Gen. de Chambrun will represent the French government and will invite the Legion to hold its 1937 reunion in Paris.

DECLARES NRA PLANS TO ACT IN FORD CASE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 23.—(AP)—William L. Mills, publicity chairman of the NRA committee in suburban Dearborn, said tonight steps would be taken Monday for official consideration of complaints against the Ford Motor company.

The first step, he said, would be the selection of a compliance board—an action which, he added, had been delayed in the hope that the Ford company would sign the NRA automotive code and thus put itself into a position to be represented on the board.

The complaints, Mr. Mills revealed, were of three classes. The first is based on the recent hiring of men recommended by the local American Legion, the complainants alleging that this amounts to discrimination against former Ford workers. The second has to do with a "dollar a day welfare plan," and the third, charges by some men that they are overworked.

"There are war veterans," Mr. Mills said, "former Ford employés, who were laid off as long ago as a year or two years and who have not been reinstated. These men complain that they should be given preference over veterans now being employed, most of whom, they say, never worked for the Ford company."

Explaining the "dollar a day welfare plan," Mr. Mills said: "As I understand it, a number of employés were placed under this plan by the Ford social department. They were allowed the regular wage scale, but received only $1 a day of it in cash. For the rest they were allowed food from the Ford commissary, and allotments were made to help pay their bills and back taxes.

"I was told this plan was resorted to in the cases of men who had become so involved financially that they seemed unable to extricate themselves."

Officials of the Ford company could not be reached tonight for comment on these complaints.

Senate Racket Inquiry in Detroit, Mich., October 3

New York, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The senate subcommittee investigating racketeering today announced its second public hearing will be held in Detroit, Mich., Oct. 3. The Chicago hearing, set for Oct. 3, has been postponed.

U. S. MAY CALL OFF MANY PROSECUTIONS ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—In view of the numerous recent predictions by administration officials that prohibition repeal is imminent, plans have been made for a review of the thousands of liquor cases pending in federal courts to determine which shall be brought to trial.

The work will begin officially on Oct. 1, when L. J. Bugg, a Monroeville, Ala., attorney becomes senior counsel of the prohibition unit of the justice department.

It was estimated at the justice department today that in some federal courts there were as many as 1,000 criminal cases pending. Altogether, one official said, there probably were 90,000 cases on the dockets.

In addition there are several hundred cases in the Supreme court. During the summer recess, of the 425 appeals to the Supreme court, more than 300 were prohibition cases. Court attachés expressed belief some of the defendants were seeking to delay action on their cases in the hope that the eighteenth amendment would be repealed before a final decision is handed down, hoping in that way to escape imprisonment and the paying of fines.

Authorities said today all prohibition law violators now in jail expected President Roosevelt to free them in the event of repeal.

Disposition of many cases probably will be determined by Bugg on the basis of whether the defendants should be prosecuted as violators of the prohibition or revenue laws.

MINNESOTA WET BY 2 TO 1 VOTE IN FINAL COUNT

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Minnesota citizens favored eighteenth amendment repeal by a slightly less than two to one margin in the recent special election, complete unofficial returns showed today.

They cast 390,179 votes for repeal and 209,049 against. In so doing, they elected 21 delegates all pledged to repeal for a state convention here Oct. 10. Formal ratification of repeal will take place then.

SIEBEL INSTITUTE ALUMNI OBSERVE 60TH BIRTHDAY

The Siebel Institute of Technology, founded sixty years ago by Chicago's first city chemist, John Ewald Siebel, last night celebrated its birthday with a meeting of the alumni of the institute at a dinner at the Medinah Michigan avenue club. Fred P. Siebel and his two sons, descendants of the founder, were the honor guests.

The anniversary was celebrated with the kind of beer that brewmasters drink when celebrating. It was reputed to be between six and eight years old and to have a high alcoholic content. Several visitors from Germany drank with broad smiles, saying it was the nearest thing to the fine beers of the old country they had tasted in the United States.

Dr. J. R. Katz, professor of colloidal chemistry at the University of Amsterdam, made an address in which he said the problem of keeping bread and cake from going stale is about to be solved. Within five years, he predicted, cake and bread will remain fresh for two and three weeks without special care due to the experiments that are now under way on the molecular formation and chemistry changes within starch granules.

At the brewers' exposition which opened yesterday at the Coliseum, Dr. Karl Keller, chief chemist of the Seitz Works of Kreuznach, Germany, explained that Germany's newest contribution to the brewer's art is keg beer in bottles. This new process, he said, leaves vitamins A, E, and D in beer, whereas they were destroyed by former methods of pasteurization when the beer was bottled.

PUBLIC HEARING ON NEWSPAPER CODE IS CLOSED

NRA to Urge Revision of Several Points.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—The daily newspaper code presented by the American Newspaper Publishers' association passed today from the public hearing to the conference stage with indications that the NRA would ask a number of revisions before sending the charter to the President for approval.

Lindsay Rogers, deputy administrator, said he had planned no meetings for next week, but that further negotiations for an acceptable code probably would be resumed in New York around Oct. 2.

He indicated that the publishers would be asked to remove the code section allowing employers to deal with employés without outside interference. That section, labor spokesmen charged, constituted an interpretation of the collective bargaining provisions of the recovery act.

To Follow President.

"I'm going to stand on the President's position as well as that of the recovery administration," Rogers said.

Rogers said the code provision permitting children to deliver newspapers would be studied.

"That was rather bitterly attacked and as is usual in such cases we will try to get something on which the proponents and opponents will agree," he said.

The two day hearing ended with a request from Elisha Hanson, general counsel of the A. N. P. A., that the code be considered solely from a factual basis.

"We think that our facts will stand scrutiny," he testified.

I. T. U. President Talks.

Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical union, one of the witnesses today, asked an absolute ban against the employment of children under 16, proposed a 30 hour week, shorter hours for reporters and editorial workers, and that the provision "interpreting" collective bargaining be deleted.

"The American Newspaper Publishers' association did not propose a code of fair competition until it became necessary to do so for business reasons," Howard testified.

TOURIST SERVICE CHIEF CLEARED BY GRAND JURY

I. D. Padorr, who was president of the Visitors' Tourist Service, Inc., until he resigned, leaving debts of $64,000 against the corporation, was exonerated by the grand jury of any criminal intent or liability, it was learned yesterday. The grand jurors voted no bills in the five charges of confidence game which were lodged against Padorr by the police.

Padorr organized the service bureau originally to help take care of visitors to A Century of Progress Exposition. His project, he said, was indorsed by the clergy and business men. However, the scheme did not turn out so well as expected financially and Padorr says he lost considerable money of his own in the failure.

'Stop Loss Limitation' for Retailers Explained by NRA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The hotly controverted "stop loss" limitation in the recovery code for the retail trade—subject of a bitter fight between cut rate stores and their competitors—was explained officially by the national recovery administration for the first time today.

The explanation came from Deputy Administrator A. D. Whiteside, who conducted the recent hearings on the proposed retail pact. In connection with a statement from Administrator Hugh S. Johnson to the effect that "thousands of telegrams" expressing approval of the code are being received from retailers, Mr. Whiteside volunteered an elucidation of the "loss provision," which he believed would help settle the controversy.

Net Price to Retailer.

"The 'loss limitation' has been widely misunderstood," he declared. According to the proposed provision, retailers, excepting in circumstances listed, may not sell their goods at less than 10 per cent above the cost of the actual merchandise, with certain qualifications.

"If the net price paid by a retailer for an article should be $1," he explained, "this provision applying to normal sales would not permit the retailer to sell the article for less than $1.10.

"This ten cents which is added to the price which the retailer pays for the merchandise only reimburses the average retailer for less than 50 per cent of the cost which he incurs in operating his store and in serving the public.

Seeks to Stop Price Cutting.

"No retailer selling merchandise covered by these codes could continue in business if even an important percentage of the merchandise were sold on this 10 per cent markup, as the loss to the average retailer for every article sold would be about 15 cents on every $1 article sold or 15 per cent or more on any article sold.

"The purpose of this provision is to stop predatory price cutting, that is, the cutting of prices on a few well known articles which do not in the majority of cases reflect the average markup of the store selling at even cut rates. There are exceptions to this statement.

"The opinion is generally expressed that this provision will tend to lower the retail markup on merchandise as a whole.

"This 10 per cent markup should not be construed in any sense of the word as a profit markup. It is literally as it says—a 'loss limitation' provision, that is, a limitation beyond which the retailer may not go in incurring losses on regular merchandise."

MILK DEALERS URGE MARKET BE STABILIZED

The stabilization of milk products and the launching of a program to increase the use of milk and its products were recommended yesterday in a resolution adopted by the board of directors of the International Association of Milk Dealers at the final session of their 26th annual convention in the Palmer house.

The resolution was adopted at the conclusion of an address by Dr. Clyde L. King of the federal agricultural adjustment administration. He urged, as an essential factor in the program of market stabilization, the development of an effective program for the increased use of milk and its products.

New officers were elected for the association. Charles F. Whiting of Boston was reëlected president, Henry N. Brawner Jr. of Washington, D. C. was named vice president, and D. B. Peck of Chicago, treasurer. F. D. Walmsley of Chicago was one of the eight directors chosen.

GREEN PREDICTS LABOR BOYCOTT ON TEUTON GOODS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The American Federation of Labor may soon join the boycott of German goods being organized by European trade unions, William Green, its president, predicted today.

Evidence gathered by American observers who have visited Germany, and said to indicate "complete crushing of the German labor movement by the Hitler Nazi régime," will be laid before the forthcoming convention of his organization, Mr. Green said.

"It may be taken for granted," he said, "that there will be resolutions demanding a boycott, such as labor in several other countries has declared

"Many individual trade unionists have undoubtedly been refusing to buy German products, especially in the larger centers, where the boycott is apparently making progress."

REPORTS MORE GAINS TOWARD CODE OF MOVIES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Sol Rosenblatt, NRA deputy administrator, said more progress was made today than at any previous conference with agents of the movie industry.

Points still disputed included provisions for cancellation of part of the films contracted for each year by theaters. The producers would limit that to 7½ per cent; exhibitors say 20 per cent.

Rosenblatt said he would allow all the time needed for full agreement.

DRAMA ABOUNDS AMONG THE 'IRON HORSES' AT FAIR

Wood Burning Pioneer Gives Visitors a Thrill.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Dramas—large and little—in the eight acre Travel and Transport theater at the World's Fair:

One of the littlest is one of the most alluring.

Its leading actor is Chicago's first locomotive, the stocky, spunky, little, old, woodburning Pioneer that the Chicago and North Western put into service Oct. 24, 1848, and that now pays for its shelter by giving twenty performances daily.

The supporting players are "Harry and Charley," conductor and engineer.

The audience is little boys and big men—both equally delighted.

Every half hour they troop to the show from three hundred to a thousand strong.

The old bell rings, the old whistle toots. A moving background creates the illusion that the Pioneer and its attendant day coach are moving.

15 Miles an Hour, by Golly!

The speed is dizzying—for 1848. The Pioneer is tearing off fifteen miles an hour. With a daring engineer at the throttle—and Charley is daring—speed can be forced up to twenty-five miles an hour! But why tempt fate? Daring though he be, Charley's slogan is "Git 'em home alive and right side up with keer."

But before the Pioneer gets under way Harry, wearing the clothes and the hirsute adornments fashionable in railroad circles eighty-five years ago, is active and anxious. He is a nippy, eager, kindly little man. Every country bred Chicagoan now in his sixties will recall the type as it flourished in his home town, and will recall it with affection.

Harry is solicitous about his tardy passengers, remarking ominously, "Well, if they miss this train they won't git another fer two days!" Life was becoming complex for Chicagoans in 1848. Every day counted.

Ancient Railroad Jokes.

Frequently the conductor snaps the cover of his silver watch.

"What's your time, Charley?"

"Same as your'n."

"Well, then, you must be right."

[That joke lived and was relished for a whole generation.]

The breath taking ride to remote stations on the upper Des Plaines river—the road's farthest point northwest—begins.

Charley is leaning far out of the cab window, peering, ringing bell, blowing whistle. The captain on the bridge of an ocean liner off Fastnet rock on a foggy night could not be more intent.

As the playbills say, "Two hours and forty minutes are supposed to have elapsed." Actual time perhaps five minutes. But the entranced little boys and big men in the audience have lost count. They only know that they have been living with a vanished generation and have loved it.

"You Old Scalawag."

Harry pops his head out of the coach, slaps his knee and wipes the sweat of responsibility from his brow.

"There you are, Charley, you old scalawag. Right slap dash on time. Two hours and forty minutes to Des Plaines river!"

The Pioneer is panting heavily.

Sometimes a veteran steps out of the audience and gravely tells how he saw this locomotive "pull a train into Elgin."

In August, 1873, the Pioneer was retired after twenty-five years of service. But it is doubtful whether in the prime of its activity it ever gave more general satisfaction than it is giving little boys and big men in these days of its play acting. They depart laughing. They have seen a good, dear show.

Harry in real life is Harry Cansdale: Charley is Charles Nozicka.

Now a Staggering Contrast.

The essence of drama is contrast.

A few hundred feet from the North Western's little old Pioneer—but on tracks outside Travel and Transport building—stands the North Western's colossal 3024. You could lose the Pioneer in its boiler. Without its tender this locomotive weighs 498,000 pounds; with the tender 818,000 pounds.

A $125,000 Giant.

In hauling consignments of silk—which must be moved rapidly to save insurance—its top speed—weight of load considered—is attained. And that speed is 138 miles in two hours and fifteen minutes on the run from Chicago to Clinton, Ia. Its next speed is with U. S. mail over the same distance in two hours and thirty-five minutes, and its next, with passengers, same distance, is three hours. An 18-car train it can haul seventy-two miles an hour and it can bring 85 cars loaded with fruit, or with meat, from Clinton to Proviso, on the outskirts of Chicago, in three hours and twenty minutes.

No. 3024 is the world's largest "dual service engine," which means that it is equipped to haul either freight or passenger trains. It cost $125,000 and the Baldwins of Philadelphia required six months to build it.

An enthusiastic engineer, Mr. A. V. Larke, 26 years in the North Western's service, lectures about this mammoth as tenderly as if it were his baby, but most of his discourse was too deep for a mechanical dumbbell like me. Mr. Larke said that in a distance of 3,600 feet he could reduce his darling's speed from 72 miles an hour to below twenty, adding "She's built like a watch."

A Bit of English Comedy.

Come now to the Royal Scot train of the London, Midland and Scottish railway for a bit og English comedy.

The chief of that exhibition, a stately Briton, has just received what he calls "A press cutting," the same being what we call "a newspaper clipping," in which a truculent American Vox Popper takes rather ill-natured issue with certain claims to excellence made by British railway experts.

Is the stately Briton angry? Is he even interested? He is neither. He holds the press cutting between lordly thumb and forefinger and remarks:

"Am I going to ahnswer it? O, no! I read it and I made up me mind that the poor chap's got a deh'ty livah—just a deh'ty livah."

Can you beat them! With heavy artillery perhaps, but not with vox popping.

This Writer No Fair Judge.

Anyway, loving everything English, even the weathah, as I do—now write to the Voice of the People about that—I found the Royal Scot train very interesting and attractive.

Our people are passing through the train to the number of 16,000 a day. They are interested in it but do not care much for it, a frequent comment being "It's so cramped." To me it seemed cozy. Our trains are indeed grander. Theirs are like a yacht; ours like an ocean liner.

The contrasts are astonishing. The eight coaches of the Royal Scot train and their locomotive are only 93 tons heavier than the huge Burlington locomotive which stands on the next track and weighs 196 tons.

The heaviest English railway passenger coach weighs 45 tons and is 61 feet long. Our heaviest weighs 85 tons and is 88 feet long. Even as the English equipment is much lighter than ours so is the English roadbed.

Contrasts in Coal Burning.

The Royal Scot people told me that there are English engines which can pull a train of 15 coaches weighing 440 tons three hundred miles on four and a half tons of coal, or 33 pounds to a mile, using a hardish bituminous Yorkshire product.

"And this, I daresay," added the chief of the Royal Scot exhibit, "is highly economic."

"How does that consumption compare with ours?" I asked Mr. W. W. Pontious, city passenger agent of the Chicago and Northwestern.

That ready man promptly provided this statement.

"American locomotives are pulling passenger equipment weighing about three times as much as English equipment mentioned and the consumption of coal per mile is approximately three times as much, but when this problem is reduced to the number of pounds of coal per ton mile it is indicated that we are operating at a slightly better rate, which, if considered in connection with the fact that we burn a low grade bituminous coal, indicates that we are obtaining greater efficiency. It is not possible to quote figures in this connection, as motive power departments do not desire to reveal them."

The Royal Scot makes the 400 mile run from London to Edinburgh in seven hours and forty minutes in summer—5 minutes more in winter—the "average overall summer speed" thus being 52 2-5 miles an hour. In 1848 the railway journey from London to Glasgow, 401½ miles, consumed 12 hours and ten minutes.

For fare and compartment on the Royal Scout from London to Edinburgh the price is $23. Three and three-fifths cents a mile is our highest rate for fare as against the English rate of just under 5 cents. In an English third class coach the price of a berth for any distance is $1.50 and the third class fare is just under 3 cents a mile.

Where I Stumped Mr. Keeley.

The third class restaurant car of the Royal Scot train is a beauty; quite as good, I think, as our first and only class dining car.

The "automobile windows" in this train slide up and down at a touch—a contrast to our diabolical contraptions, and when, having operated one of them, I directed a reproachful eye at Vice President James Keeley of the Pullman company, all he could say was, "Ahem—we have none in general use—as yet."

The shutters, writing shelves, clothes racks and smoking shelves in the compartments of this train all seemed to me charming and, when I said so, Mr. Keeley's comment was, "All right! All right!"—as if to add, "O, go and live in the train then."

How the Train Came Over.

The Royal Scot is the first complete British train that ever visited the United States. Its locomotive was "broken down" in three parts and stowed in the hold of the S. S. Beaverdale. Four coaches were placed on each side of the deck on tracks and then chocked, blocked and chained. The only covering placed on the beautiful paint work was wax—no canvas—and it was not in the slightest damaged. A train crew of three men brought the whole equipment over.

Throughout our visit with the Royal Scot's personnel we heard dear old "shedule" for "skedule," which caused the London born Mr. Keeley to grin. Forty years in our midst have changed all that with him.

I wound up my second visit to Travel and Transport's 10 million dollar show and eight acres of contrastful drama with a survey of Canada's spacious and picturesque exhibition of its travel charms, and there I encountered high comedy. For, gorgeous in blue and scarlet, and looking as if they had just stepped from bandboxes, were Corp. Gumm and Constable Johnes and Constable Arthur of the famous Royal Canadian Mounted Police—the constabulary that is reputed always to get the culprit be the way ever so long.

Constable Arthur, English born, very erect, very pink, very suave, and above all, very alert in his constabulary patrol, was the object of splendor nearest at hand. So to him questions were put. His answers were prompt, compact, courteous, and informing. But came one question which gave young Constable Arthur, R. C. M. P., pause—brief pause—and then he said—

"As to that, sir, I should hardly like even to hazard a guess."

I call that speaking English instead of a lingo.

And again I ask—
Can you beat them?

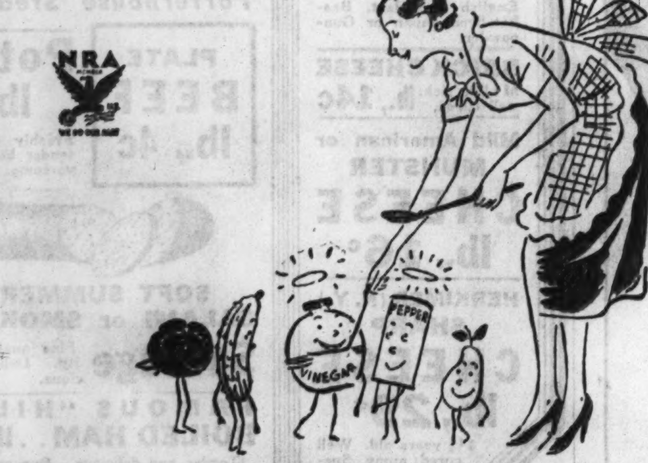
"Pepper and Vinegar Besides Are very good indeed—"



YOU'LL find that headline somewhere in the pages of "Alice in Wonderland".

September's the time when every cook needs plenty of pepper and vinegar and plenty of other spices besides; for this is the height of the pickling and preserving season. And there's more pickling and preserving going on this year than ever before, because women know that the prices of fruits and vegetables and sugar and spices are on the way up.

Right now, however, canning supplies are still very cheap and plentiful at A & P. So eat all you can and what you can't be sure to can.

"Don't you hate the school-taxi grind, Janet? Our car's still in the repair shop, or I'd be a taxi-driver, too."

"No, my dear—Terraplaning the children to school isn't a grind. It's FUN! I love driving this car—it's so smooth, and of course we've never had a minute's trouble with it."

Mercy for Mothers . . . Frugality for Fathers

"Taxi!"

Millions of mothers respond to the call. To school, to father's office, to market. Mile upon mile, every day.

But Terraplaning mothers love the driving-job—the Terraplane is so easy to handle, so velvety-smooth. It cuts gearshifting in half. It brakes with just a slight toe-pressure. It steers without effort.

And every minute the Terraplane is safe!—its steel body, oversize brakes and tires, and shatter-proof glass windshield make sure of that. Yes, safe and free from trouble that causes delays, too.

"Bills!"

Not for the father who has been wise enough to buy a Hudson-built Terraplane (which costs less to buy than any other full-sized car). Visits to the service station are almost unheard of in a Terraplane's life—in fact, we believe that no other car in history, regardless of price, has ever required so little attention from the service man.

Gas-costs? Where can you find another Eight that gives you 15 to 18 miles to the gallon, or a full-sized Six that gives you 18 to 25?

Come Terraplaning with us, won't you?—and see how different it is from just "motoring," and how much less it costs.

The Columbian exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

The second largest attendance since Labor day visited the World's Fair yesterday, giving promise of larger crowds today and the creating of a new record for a week-end in late September. At 11:30 o'clock last night the attendance had reached 208,683. The largest attendance since Labor day was 217,515 on Sept. 17.

Fair officials attributed the upward swing yesterday to several reasons. It was the first Saturday holiday since the Chicago schools opened and many students were noted in the Fair crowds, accompanied by their parents. Also it marked the first free day for many delegates who have been attending conventions in the city. The summery weather was another factor.

Scotch Regiment Coming.

The famous Essex Scottish regiment of Windsor, Ont., will invade the Fair today for a week's stay. The regiment, numbering 400 officers and men, marching to the music of 25 bagpipes and 40 brasses, will arrive in Chicago at 2:45 p. m. and their reception will be one of the colorful ceremonies of the Fair.

When the regiment detrains at the Illinois Central station they will be met by members of troop A, 14th United States cavalry, and ranking army, navy, and marine officials who are serving as military attachés at the Exposition.

Pass in Review.

With the cavalry forming an honor escort the Canadians and American soldiers will parade to the Court of Honor. The first battalion of the sixth United States infantry will be lined up in the Avenue of Flags and salutes will be exchanged as the Scottish regiment passes. Following this there will be a review of both forces.

From the Court of Honor the Essex Scots will march to Soldiers' field, where they will be encamped during their visit to Chicago.

In the evening a brass band of 40 pieces and the bagpipers band will give a concert in the court of the Hall of Science, starting at 6:45 o'clock. Concerts will be given during the week.

Only 38 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair.

The Essex regiment had an enviable record during the war, fighting at Ypres, Somme, Vimy Ridge and other points. Since the war the regiment has consistently won the machine gun championship of Canada.

Sec. Ickes at Fair.

Highlight of yesterday's Fair was the visit of another member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, Harold I. Ickes, secretary of the interior, who was given a salute of 19 guns and a military reception in the Court of Honor. He later addressed the mayors' meeting in the trustees' lounge in the Hall of Science.

Mississippi held the spotlight last night with the presentation of 65 southern girls, students of the Whitworth college at Brookhaven, Miss. The girls, in costumed songs and drama, reënacted the history of their alma mater, the first school to confer an academic degree on a woman in the United States. The jubilee singers and the Mississippi band concluded the ceremonies with a program.

Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco and a party of city officials, in Chicago for the convention of mayors, visited the California exhibit last night and dedicated the San Francisco diarama and exhibit.

Both the latter groups are coming over the Michigan Central.

SETTLE TO TRY AGAIN TO REACH STRATOSPHERE

Commander T. G. W. Settle, it was announced yesterday, will make a new attempt to reach the stratosphere in his special balloon and gondola within the next ten days. The takeoff will probably be from the Goodyear landing field at the Fair grounds. A date for the flight will be set as soon as sufficient hydrogen to fill the balloon can be sent here. The south park board has granted permission for the flight to start from the Fair grounds.

The gas valve in top of the bag has been repaired and improved to assure positive control. It was the failure of this valve which caused the forced landing of Commander Settle's balloon on the first attempt several weeks ago. Another factor in the second flight will be the increased purity of the hydrogen used. Such gas is produced only about 90 per cent pure in commercial quantities. The gas which Commander Settle will use, however, will be 99.9 per cent pure through application of laboratory methods to its production.

While repairing the gas bag after the first flight it was discovered that more than 400 holes had been cut by souvenir hunters on the night it fell in the railroad yards near Canal and 13th streets.

CALLED UXORCIDE; KILLS SELF.

ILLINOIS STILL AWAITS SHARE OF EASY MONEY

Britten Blames Delay on Local Officials.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Varying excuses were given today by members of the Illinois delegation in congress for the failure of Illinois to receive anywhere near a fair share of the three billion three hundred million dollars of public works easy money being parceled out by Secretary of the Interior Ickes. The members agreed on only one thing—that they are not to blame.

Out of more than 1 billion dollars, exclusive of the 400 millions for public roads, allotted so far, Illinois has been given only 24 millions. California has received 38 millions on top of R. F. C. loans aggregating 140 millions. New York has been allowed 181 millions.

Seeks Incinerator Cash.

"I have been concentrating my activities," said Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem.], "on the effort to obtain government public works funds sufficient to finance the construction of Chicago's sewage incinerator which must be constructed in compliance with the decree of the United States Supreme court."

"How much money is required for that undertaking?" the senator was asked.

"I am unable to say offhand," Mr. Lewis replied. "The fact is that the matter has not progressed to the stage of estimates of the amount needed. The public works administration has manifested an unwillingness to make an outright loan for the incinerator. They have suggested that the government might construct the incinerator and turn it over to the city when completed. I have objected to that condition. We in Chicago know what system we require for sewage disposal and are fully competent to carry out the work. I am standing on our right to a loan in the same manner that loans are being made to other states for identical purposes. I have conferred frequently with Secretary Ickes in regard to this matter, but have been unable so far to reach an agreement. I am to see him again Tuesday."

Blames Local Officials.

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep.] laid the blame for Illinois' failure to get a proper share of the public works money directly on the shoulders of state and municipal officials.

"Thus far," he declared, 'the fault lies entirely with the other end. There have been a few applications filed, but the major projects have not yet been proposed to the state board. Up till now no formal deficit application has been filed for the important outer drive bridge project, in which I am particularly interested."

"Only yesterday," Mr. Britten continued, "I talked with officials of the public works administration who have just returned from Chicago, in an effort to determine just what was holding up the Illinois applications. I was told that the outer drive bridge matter is so deeply involved in the complicated finances of the south and Lincoln park boards that it would take a great deal of study to get it shaped for federal approval."

Says Bonds Were Diverted.

"The official with whom I discussed the matter," Mr. Britten continued, "pointed out that both the south and Lincoln park boards have previously authorized bonds for the construction of the bridge, but have used the bonds for other purposes. The south park board sold its bonds to meet its pay roll, and an election will be necessary to approve another bond issue. The Lincoln park board issued bridge bonds, but when it was impossible to proceed with construction used them to redeem previous issues. The public works administration, I am told, is seeking a way to accept these bought-in bonds, which were never cancelled by the board and are still good."

Mr. Britten declared he had asked Carter H. Harrison, chairman of the Illinois public works advisory board, to advise him as soon as the state had filed applications for public works funds, so that he might "get to work on them at this end."

Awaits Harrison's Reply.

"Thus far," said Representative Britten, "I have not heard from Mr. Harrison. My efforts to help through my position in Washington have been ignored to date."

Mr. Britten declined to discuss any possible reason for the failure of state officials to coöperate with him, but it was suggested that his influence as a Republican might not be considered as having sufficient weight with the Democratic administration in charge of the public works funds.

HOME TOWN INTERVIEWS

Members of the Illinois congressional delegation, interviewed in their homes in Chicago and downstate yesterday, gave various views on the prospects of the state to get its just share of Uncle Sam's easy money.

Only from some of the minority Republicans did there come opinions that if the Democratic majority had done its duty Illinois would have reaped a harvest far beyond what has come its way.

"I hope," said Congressman Leo E. Allen, Republican, from Galena in the 13th district, "that The Tribune will publish a strong demand for a united movement on behalf of Illinois. As a member of the minority and as a first termer I regret that I cannot take such a step. That must come from the majority side and from the senior members.

"With two senators of influence and the speaker of the house in the Illinois delegation, our state should have had better treatment than it has received. Every one knows our territory has not been receiving what it is entitled to. A great deal could be accomplished if our two senators and all our congressmen would unite regardless of party. I, and, I'm sure, the other Republicans, would be glad to coöperate to the fullest extent."

From Senator Dieterich.

One of the two Illinois senators, William H. Dieterich, was at his home in Beardstown. There he talked at some length about the situation.

"Congress passed the law," he said, "and the machinery for its operation has been set up. The state advisory board has been created and has been working. The state, or any municipality within its borders, has the right to present to that board its application for federal aid.

"The fault in the present situation is that the different communities have not appreciated their opportunity in this matter.. A senator or a congressman cannot go from county to county, from city to city urging that this or that project be proposed. Such conduct would be misconstrued and would be criticized severely. The administration of these funds is on a nonpartisan basis. The public feels rightly that the politicians should keep hands off.

"But I am sure that if Illinois and its intra-state units present sound proposals they will be treated fairly. It has been treated fairly on its proposals up to this time."

Treated Fairly, Rainey Holds.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey, at his home in Carrollton, was one of those who contended that Illinois has not been treated unfairly.

"I did not know that Illinois was being discriminated against," he said. "It was my understanding that we were getting substantially what we asked.

"If the requests are filed in the manner provided for by law and all provisions are complied with, I believe Illinois will receive its proper share of the public work fund.

"It is very evident that if we are just preparing our estimates now we have no grounds for complaint up to this time. The requests are just being received at Washington, D. C., and have not been acted upon."

Points to Relief Money.

Congressman A. J. Sabath of the 5th district, Chicago, who considered the thought of federal aid for Illinois and its subordinate governments his "baby," took a somewhat similar position.

"It is unfortunate," he said, "that we did not have our projects lined up and ready for presentation as soon as this legislation was passed. In that we were less forehanded than some other states.

"But if we need any assurance of fair treatment let us recall that Illinois has received close to one hundred millions for relief. That is more than has been given to any other state, and because of our need in this field we were for a time unable to press our demands for federal aid for public works.

Cites Other Funds Obtained.

"We must not forget other items such as the $2,500,000 I obtained for the Chicago water system two years ago, the $2,000,000 just granted for the nurses' home at the County hospital or the million dollars for the World's Fair. We'll get the money for the sanitary district. There's no question about it.

"We'll get the money for the parks as soon as the Lincoln park people get set. And in the meantime there are about a score of projects that have been approved by the advisory commission which will be acted upon soon at Washington."

Congressmen can't just walk into the treasury and grab the money. It must be obtained through the orderly procedure described by the law, and that is being done as rapidly as possible."

Expressions from other congressmen were as follows:

WALTER NESBIT, Belleville, congressman-at large: "This is extraordinary procedure for which we were not prepared, but the responsibility for that does not rest with the members of congress. Before I left Washington I communicated with several Illinois mayors and others, urging that engineering plans and other essentials be rushed. If there has been any delay it has been there."

HARRY P. BEAM, Chicago, 4th district: "Conditions in Illinois, the revenue troubles of the various governments, were such that the state was not ready to present its projects for federal aid so quickly as were some other states. Now they are going ahead and, I'm sure, will have no complaint when matters have progressed a little further."

JAMES SIMPSON JR., Wadsworth, 10th district: "Why ask a Republican that question? The Democrats and radicals are in control. Why not ask the Democrats or Secretary Ickes?

FRANK R. REID, Aurora, 11th district: "The fault lies in the lack of co-operation between Illinois citizens and officials and their representatives at Washington. Other states have fared better because their citizens have united on a program and with the support of their Washington delegations have gone after what they needed. In Illinois each group seems to be backing its own particular project without regard to others."

CHESTER THOMPSON, Rock Island, 14th district: "This section feels that it has been well treated because of the improvements ordered for the upper Mississippi. Other proposals have been well received so far as I know and none has been rejected."

EVERETT M. DIRKSEN, Pekin, 16th district: "There has been some delay in presenting proposals to the state advisory board and there has been some delay by the board. That board has only one engineer and it should have four or five to pass on the matters submitted. There should be more speed and a little guts. Illinois should go to Washington in full force. Then it would get what it needs."

FRANK GILLESPIE, Bloomington, 17th district: "Complaining that the senators and congressmen are to blame are not valid. Illinois, both the state and its lesser governments, has been a little slow in getting started, but if a program is agreed upon there will be no cause for complaint that it will not have the active support of its representatives at Washington."

JAMES M. MEEKS, Danville, 18th district: "The distribution is not complete, is it? Perhaps when it is Illinois will have its just share. It is the final figures that count."

DONALD G. DOBBINS, Champaign, 19th district: "I believe the crux of the situation in Illinois is the necessity for a referendum before any bond issue can be authorized, as is necessary for municipal projects under the public works administration. When requests are in proper form they are acted upon quickly at Washington. I do think Illinois got a raw deal in the recently announced public works program. Money should be spent to put Chanute field here in shape, but no provision was made for it."

EDWIN M. SCHAEFER, Belleville, 22d district: "Illinois has been getting money for public works and will get more."

WILLIAM W. ARNOLD, Robinson, 23d district: "Illinois will get its just share sooner or later. We should not overlook the $21,000,000 for the United States postoffice in Chicago or the waterway funds as part of Illinois' share."

Red Tape Perils Works Program, Mayors Assert

A resolution urging the federal government to make the easy money fund easier to get was adopted by the United States conference of mayors at the close of their two day session at the Congress hotel yesterday.

President Roosevelt, in a telegram to the mayors, had announced that the money was ready and waiting for the cities to come and get it, but the resolution adopted yesterday stated that unless some of the "red tape" is removed from the methods necessary to obtain the funds "great suffering and possibly starvation" cannot be prevented.

"We are fearful that in our anxiety to prevent the evils which have been ever present in connection with the expenditure of public money," said the resolution, "that the system of checks and balances and safeguards advised is so intricate and involved, or, in other words, so enmeshed in red tape, as to defeat the very purpose for which the NRA was created, namely, to end unemployment in America.

Warn of Want in Winter.

"We are likewise of the opinion that unless a simpler system is devised and put into operation that it will be difficult, if not impossible, to prevent great suffering and possibly starvation in all sections of America during the winter of 1933-34."

The resolution stated that cities in many states, because of the duration of the depression, would experience much difficulty in floating the bonds for the 70 per cent of the loans that must be repaid.

"In Chicago," said the resolution, "the severity of the depression, coupled with the inability of the taxpayers to meet their obligations, has been such as to seriously impair the credit of the city, thereby making the sale of bonds extremely difficult, notwithstanding the fact that Chicago has met its maturing bond obligations in every instance during the entire depression and every reasonable measure of economy has been put into operation."

The resolution, introduced by Mayor Curley of Boston, expressed full accord with the NRA and admiration for President Roosevelt, but declared the program of recovery would be more effective with the "red tape" removed.

Ask Bankruptcy Law for Cities.

The mayors adopted last night a resolution calling upon congress to enact laws permitting municipalities to go through bankruptcy.

"There are in the United States at this time approximately 1,500 governmental units actually in default in the payment of principal or interest or both upon their outstanding indebtedness, and a recent survey discloses that the number of defaulting units is rapidly increasing," the resolution said.

"The fact that these cities are in default is having a serious effect upon the credit of all solvent municipalities. Because of constitutional restrictions, the states are unable to enact remedial legilsation, and action by the national congress is necessary if these hopelessly insolvent units are ever to be restored to a solvent condition."

T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans was elected president, to succeed Mayor Curley, and Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee was elected vice president.

3 RUSSIANS MAY START TODAY FOR STRATOSPHERE

MOSCOW, Sept. 23.—(AP)—After more than two weeks of postponement due to bad weather, orders were issued at the Moscow military airdrome tonight to prepare the Red army's stratosphere balloon, the U. S. S. R., for a takeoff at dawn tomorrow.

A ground crew of 300 soldiers began filling the great bag with hydrogen, while the three army flyers who will make the ascent made a final inspection of the gondola and the instruments. The crew consists of Georgio Prokofieff, Ernest Birnbaum and Konstantin Gudonoff. The general public will be barred at the takeoff. Only officials and newspaper correspondents will be allowed as witnesses.

proved security I don't mean that we will be as finicky about the security that you may offer as would be the investment bankers with whom you are accustomed to deal. We will lend you this 70 per cent at 4 per cent interest and permit you to amortize it over a period not to exceed 30 years.

"But, to our surprise, we find that in many parts of the country the federal government, in offering a grant of 30 per cent and a loan of the balance of 70 per cent at 4 per cent interest, is being regarded as an ungenerous or even a niggardly stepfather.

"In my opinion, the 30-70 policy laid down in the industrial recovery act for the financing of municipal projects is a wise policy. If municipalities will put in their 70 per cent of the sum necessary for the project, the public works fund will spread much further and thus provide more employment.

"If municipalities are willing to back their own public work projects to the extent of 70 per cent, they will thereby assure us that their projects are desirable. A city can accept a 30 per cent grant without diminution of pride or self-respect, both of which would be impaired, if not destroyed, if it relied altogether upon the generosity of the federal government.

Aims to Raise Buying Power.

"Naturally, the purpose of the public works program is not merely to do work for the sake of doing the work. We want to increase buying power because it is realized that without increasing buying power our recovery program will fail. In this the municipalities are as much interested as the federal government.

"Complaints have come to the public works administration from several quarters that the minimum wages stipulated to be paid on public works projects are too high. Those who voice this criticism, as I see it, do not have a proper view of the situation. Our avowed object is to increase buying power. We cannot increase buying power effectively or to any considerable extent if we do not pay enough wages so that people will have more than a mere subsistence income.

Cities in Financial Difficulties.

"It may be urged in some quarters that the municipalities in many instances have reached the limits of their bonding powers. There are tax strikes on here and there throughout the land. Real estate values have gone off so sharply that the tax yield from the necessarily lower assessed valuations is not sufficient to meet current expenses, let alone interest even at 4 per cent on a new municipal obligation.

"In some instances, teachers and other municipal employés have not been paid for many months as the result, first, of refusal on the part of taxpayers to meet their obligations to the state; and, second, of reduced tax income.

"I am familiar with this situation because, for many years, I have been particularly interested in municipal government. But I know that there is another side to this picture. I know that people would be more willing to pay their taxes if they were assured of equitable assessments. I know that they would without grumbling pay on even an inequitable assessment if they felt that their taxes were being wisely and economically expended.

Bond Money for Politics.

"There have been waste and inefficiency. Bond issues cheerfully voted for permanent improvements have been drawn upon heavily for political purposes. Public works have been so skimped that, in many instances, they have not been able to last for the period over which they have been amòrtized, with the result that people have been called upon to begin anew to pay for improvements before they have finished paying for similar predecessor improvements."

The secretary called attention to his appointment as administrator of public works on July 8, 1933, and told of the task since then of building an organization. The first allocations were for federal projects, because these were all ready. He continued:

"Latterly, we have been devoting the major part of our attention to municipal projects. We want to get these under way without loss of time. We want them to be as widespread as possible and to provide the maximum of employment.

"We are not being technical. We are not wound about with red tape. Those who cry out about 'red tape,' in some instances, at least, are themselves entangled in red tape. We are willing to give a municipality the benefit of the doubt.

"Come to us with a prima facie case and we will set aside the money for you. Then you can proceed without delay to supply us with the necessary explicit engineering, legal and financial details. You have all of these in your files. At least you ought to have them.

"You ought to know whether the works you propose are desirable and possible from a social, legal, financial and engineering point of view. If you do know there is no good reason why you should not quickly take us into your confidence.

"If you don't know or can't demonstrate it, and still demand that money be given you, good sportsmanship requires that you do not raise the cry of 'red tape' against us. Bring us your projects, supported by the facts that undoubtedly are within your knowledge, and you will get prompt action.

"This public works program is a great coöperative movement. In order to recover a firm economic foothold we must work surely, quickly and coöperatively. We must forget ourselves. We must organize ourselves into a rescue party for the whole of the United States."

FEDERAL RELIEF CHIEF WARNS OF WINTER CRISIS

Problem of Idle Not Over, He Tells Mayors.

Harry Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, aroused the members of the United States conference of mayors at the Congress hotel yesterday to a new view of the relief problem. It is still a great and vital problem, he said, although prospects are improving and this may be the last winter when gigantic relief plans will be necessary. They are necessary now, however, he said, and he announced a few of them.

"The cost of giving relief to the hungry unemployed this year," he said, "is far beyond the $500,000,000 appropriated by congress.

"Winter will be on us two months hence. At the present moment as far as I can see we are going to start the winter with a million more families on relief than were on the rolls a year ago at this time."

Private Agencies Exhausted.

He explained this by saying that, while the number of persons this year needing relief was not greater than last year, the private agencies had become exhausted and the public relief rolls therefore had been increased.

"So far as the relief situation as a whole is concerned," Mr. Hopkins said, "I don't think we're going to have as bad a winter this year as last. I think we are going to have a real break when the public works program gets under way. The National Recovery act is giving us more of a pick-up than most people know.

"There were 4,800,000 families on relief last Februray and March. They were able to keep that very nicely in the dark. Nobody knew it. It was a great secret. You couldn't find the figures.

"Multiply that 4,800,000 families by 4.4 and you have the number of people who were getting public relief last winter. Over 20,000,000 persons in the United States were getting public relief. We had whole states where 35 per cent of the population were getting public relief.

A Decrease for First Time.

"We have whole states now where 25 per cent of the population are getting relief. It has dropped from 4,800,000 to 3,500,000 families at the end of July and I think it was about 3,200,000 families at the end of August. I have a chart showing relief in 102 cities. One of the favorable things is that a year ago this summer this thing was going up all the time. This summer for the first year since the depression we are getting a drop."

The federal government will assume entire responsibility this winter for giving relief to transients who are kicked out by one state and met with more kicks at the next place.

Concentration centers are to be established, the plans calling for several in each of the more populous states. Railroads will be asked to stop "bumming." Hitch hiking will be combated on a national scale. City and state police will be asked to enforce vagrancy laws rigidly, turning over men to the federal authorities.

Schools to Be Established.

At the concentration centers where these men will be taken, an "imaginative policy" will be followed, Mr. Hopkins said. Schools are to be established. Thirty thousand classes for the idle may be in operation before the winter is over. Educated and white collar transients will be put to work as teachers over the others.

Mr. Hopkins estimated that about 25 per cent of the transients are professional hoboes, and that the rest are newcomers in tramping, mainly young fellows who need care of the kind that will be provided by the government.

Warehouses will be opened, crops will be harvested, and some method found of distribution to the hungry, he said.

"It is perfectly indefensible," he declared, "to have milk poured into ditches and to allow fruit and other agricultural products to rot on the ground because there is a lower price level than the producer cares to sell for."

Ready for Pork Shipments.

The federal relief administration already has allocated 100,000,000 pounds of cured pork to the states, and shipments will be started next week. The meat came from millions of hogs recently purchased by the agricultural administration in an effort to reduce farm surpluses.

Mr. Hopkins said that discrimination against home owners in the distribution of relief is "inexcusable."

"There is no reason," he said, "why a home owner should be penalized for his enterprise in owning a home, though we hear of many instances where relief agencies take the attitude that a person prosperous enough to own a home should not find it necessary to appeal for relief. Other things being equal, I see no reason why relief agencies should not pay taxes, and even interest, for home owning dependents."

ARGENTINA VOTES 3 YEAR TRUCE ON FORECLOSURES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 23.—The Argentine chamber of deputies today approved a senate bill sponsored by the government to relieve Argentine landowners, hard hit by the slump in farm prices. The measure provides for a three year moratorium for debtors of the National Mortgage bank on their payment of 1 per cent commission to the bank, and for suspension of all foreclosures during the same period.

Prior to passage of the bill agitation developed for a three year moratorium on all mortgage obligations with the maximum interest rate chargeable set at 4 per cent. This measure would have exempted, however, mortgages effected through the National Mortgage bank.

The government opposed this method of relief. It held that although the end in view was highly desirable, the drastic terms of the measure would, if carried out, "undermine the country's financial structure."

HITLER LAUNCHES WORK ON FIRST AUTO HIGHWAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, Germany, Sept. 23.—"I am happy that fate made me a house painter. Perhaps that gave me a better understanding of the German worker, his worries, and his needs." Chancellor Adolf Hitler delivered these words here today after he had turned the first sod for the new auto highway which will link Frankfurt with Heidelberg.

This project is the first of a proposed network of 4,000 miles of highways in the government's public works program. The Frankfurt-Heidelberg road will be completed next spring. Work on the second road from Munich to the Austrian frontier will start soon.

Frankfurt was decorated with flags in honor of Hitler's first visit since he became chancellor. Following Hitler's speech, Gov. Sprenger handed picks and shovels to the first 700 workers. The chancellor left Frankfurt by plane later in the day for Hanover where he will address a rally of 70,000 Steel Helmet war veterans tomorrow. At a reception at the Hanover city hall, which the former crown prince attended, Minister of Labor Franz Seldte, leader of the Steel Helmets, presented Hitler with a steel helmet "as a symbol of our mutual trench life." In his address Hitler paid tribute to President Paul von Hindenburg, "the aged man who had made this revival of Germany possible."

RELIEF GARDENS TO SAVE INDIANA $3,000,000 YEAR

16,000 Acres Are Under Cultivation.

BY PAUL POTTER.

An estimated saving of $3,000,000 to the taxpayers of Indiana in state and township public relief expenses for unemployed has been made this summer and fall by helping needy families to produce garden crops on 16,000 acres of idle land in the state.

This estimate was announced yesterday following a survey of the relief garden activities in the Calumet industrial district and several downstate industrial communities by H. E. Young, extension authority of Purdue university. The university has been coöperating with private and public agencies interested in providing needy families with ground seeds and other aid in producing their own foodstuffs.

The acreage devoted to relief gardens in the Calumet district alone has nearly doubled since last year. In 1932 Gov. Paul V. McNutt's commission on unemployment relief, of which Fred Hoke, Indianapolis, is chairman, estimated the saving to taxpayers to have been nearly $2,000,000. Adverse weather conditions in southern and central Indiana reduced the volume of crops this summer.

Trustees Supervise Gardens.

Trustees in fifty townships of the state supervised the work on relief gardens, which had four times the acreage this year compared to last season. Able bodied persons applying for township relief were instructed to provide gardens in order to be eligible for public support.

Another type of gardening which gained headway this season was made available to the unemployed or part time employés of forty large industrial concerns in Indiana, which provided 1,500 acres of land to produce foodstuffs.

Home gardens were cultivated by 75,000 families in addition to the township and industrial gardens, Mr. Young reported. This compares to 45,000 family backyard or vacant lot gardens kept by needy families last year. Of the 75,000 family gardens in the state, 11,000 are under cultivation in the Calumet district alone, and families still are carrying home potatoes, tomatoes, beans, cabbage, and other foods that can be stored for winter consumption.

A "Made Work" Project.

One large tract of 117 acres near Gary has been operated by Mrs. Grace Wells, township trustee for poor relief, as a "made work" proj the cost of their medical, fuel, and clothing expense to the trustee. The food is distributed by the relief agency.

Industrial concerns supplied 7,000 garden plots in the Calumet region alone. These were: The Illinois Steel company, 3,000 gardens on 310 acres; the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, 400 plots; the National Tube company, 500 gardens; the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, 584 gardens; the Grasselli Chemical company, 125 gardens; the Anaconda Copper Mining company, 158 gardens; the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad, 450 gardens, and the Ford Motor company, 250 gardens.

At Indianapolis 7,000 garden plots have been providing self-relief for the unemployed. In South Bend the home gardens and trustee's plantings covered 275 acres, of which 100 acres is a solid tract in the Oliver estate.

School Boys Raise Food.

Ninety-four high school boys at Vincennes have cultivated gardens in addition to those given to their families by the township trustee. Other large gardens are at Brazil, Kokomo, Whiting, Muncie, La Porte, Mishawaka, Anderson, Auburn, Richmond, and Michigan City.

Seven state penal and charitable institutions, through coöperation with the governor's commission, this year produced nearly seven million tomato and cabbage plants for statewide distribution to the gardens.

SAN FRANCISCO, UNDER UNIFIED RULE, IS DEBTLESS

Mayor Explains Combined City and County.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco, who is attending the convention of mayors here, explained yesterday the ability of his city to maintain its solvency and reduce its tax rate in the era of depression. He gave credit to a centralization of authority in a combined city and county government.

In 1856, he said, the California legislature adopted a consolidation act that abolished duplication of officers and overlapping of governmental functions. In the 77 years since that time, San Francisco has had its combined city and county government in which are welded together many of those governmental units that in Cook county sum up to more than 400 tax levying and spending bodies. The 1856 act has been improved upon, most recently by a charter that went into effect last year.

"Makes Mayor True Executive."

"This new charter," said Mayor Rossi, "has been called the 'strong mayor plan.' It makes the mayor a true executive officer. It confines the board of supervisors to purely legislative functions. It concentrates all administrative duties under a new official, the chief administrative officer, who is appointed by the mayor.

"The officers who were elected formerly and who are now appointed, subject to civil service regulations, are the tax collector, recorder, county clerk, public administrator, and coroner, who serve under the jurisdiction of the chief administrative officer. Also under his jurisdiction are the departments of finance and records, of public works, public health, purchasing, real estate, electricity, and public welfare.

"The mayor also appoints members of the various commissions, such as fire, police, public utilities, civil service, park and library, and confirmation is not required. The mayor appoints a controller subject to approval by vote of the board of supervisors. He appoints members of the board of education subject to approval by vote of the people."

The city-county government still has some elective officers, but these, under the provisions of the charter, are elected without party designation. Those elected are the city attorney, district attorney, treasurer, sheriff, and public defender.

Run on a Cash Basis.

One of the fundamentals in the city's new system, according to Mayor Rossi, has been the inauguration of a specialized method of accounting and budgetry control with the new charter under which the city is not permitted to have any annual deficit to be carried into subsequent years, but must be operated on a cash basis.

"As of Jan. 8, 1932, the date of the inception of the present charter," said Mayor Rossi, "there was a deficit in the general fund of $1,250,000. Six months later that deficit had been practically wiped out, and by June 30, 1933, not only had the deficit been eliminated entirely, but there had accrued a surplus of approximately $1,200,000.

"The first tax rate under the new charter was $4.04. The second was $3.96. Recently we have fixed the tax rate for the fiscal year 1933-'34 at $3.48. In other words, since our new charter became effective, and owing to recent state legislation on school expenditures, it has been possible to reduce the tax rate 56 cents. Our tax delinquency for 1932-'33 was only 5 1-3 per cent."

REDS THREATEN NEW YORK NRA; POLICE CALLED

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Following communist threats to clear out local NRA headquarters at the Hotel Pennsylvania this morning with stench bombs ten policemen were rushed to the headquarters to prevent any disturbance.

Police precautions were taken when a delegation of twenty-five employés of Jacob Schoenfeld, wire manufacturer, visited NRA headquarters to discuss the brievances of strikers in the Schoenfeld plant who walked out several weeks ago.

The strikers are members of the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial union, affiliated with the Trade Union Unity league, a communist organization. Mr. Schoenfeld has charged that the strikers wrecked his foreman's automobile and beat up his timekeeper.

A committee of the strikers went to NRA headquarters several days ago and demanded a hearing. When they were informed that a hearing would be set for a later date they announced that if they did not get what they wished on their next visit they would "cause such a smell" that NRA headquarters would be uninhabitable.

The strikers' committee returned this morning. Their attitude was so threatening that police were summoned.

Farley Opens War on Racketeering Postmasters

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Several hundred racketeering fourth class postmasters are likely to lose their jobs and some may go to jail as the result of an investigation being conducted by postoffice inspectors, it was learned today.

Furthermore, disclosures of the waste of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money under the present system of compensation of fourth class offices are expected to lead to demands at the next session of congress for the amendment of the existing law, the abolition of thousands of offices, and the reduction of pay of the remainder.

Commission on Sales.

Fourth class postmasters, most of whom are in small villages, receive 160 per cent on the first $75 of postage they cancel, 85 per cent on the next $100, and 75 per cent on all in excess of $175. To this compensation are added the rental of postoffice boxes and an allowance of 15 per cent for rent, light, fuel, and equipment. They also receive a commission of 3 cents each on all the money orders.

This method of compensating these rural postmasters, it appears, prompts some of them to use various devices to increase cancellations. The more stamps they cancel, the more they make.

Inspectors assigned to the investigation have reported that postmasters have invented many schemes by which to swell cancellation fees.

Mail Bricks and Gravel.

With this purpose some of them have mailed bricks, gravel, oyster shells, walnuts, and other bulky, but worthless articles. In general these packages were sent by parcel post to relatives of the postmasters. One postmaster wrote notes on pieces of board and sent them to a member of his family.

Others who conduct stores sell groceries to their relatives and friends in other localities and by affixing sufficient postage on the bags and boxes insured their delivery by the rural carrier in his neighborhood. He not only received profit on his sales, but also received from the government the amount of stamps placed on the packages, plus the usual per cent.

Postmaster General Farley ordered the investigation, it transpires, at the instance of Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.]. Mr. Cochran said an inquiry he made had disclosed gross abuses.

Ship Eggs to New York.

"I found," he said, "that about two hundred postmasters in Missouri and Illinois were shipping eggs to St. Louis by parcel post. These shipments comprised from two to thirty cases within a short time. In some instances postmasters sent cases of eggs by parcel post from Missouri to New York City. The charge for postage on these eggs was about $3. It cost the postmaster nothing to ship to New York, but on the contrary he received the amount of stamps used.

"If a postmaster were to ship enough eggs by parcel post to require $75 in postage, he would not only not lose by the transaction, but would instead receive back the full amount he paid for stamps and $45 besides.

There were 33,528 fourth class postmasters on July 1. The total payments in the last year at fourth class offices, for all purposes, including compensation to postmasters, mail messenger service, special delivery fees, and separating mail allowance was $19,450,000 and these payments were made on total cancellations estimated to have been $10,500,000.

WARNS THE PUBLIC LAND SHARKS THRIVE UPON MUSCLE SHOALS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Fearful that its costly experiment at Muscle Shoals is being turned into a get rich quick land boom, the government today issued a new sharp warning against wild cat real estate promotion schemes in the Tennessee valley.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the federal valley authority, served notice that he has already turned evidence of "false and misleading statements" regarding the possibilities of real estate in the area over to department of justice and postoffice authorities.

"As was the case when the Muscle Shoals development first began," Dr. Morgan declared, "designing land sharks are using the 'new deal' for the valley as an excuse to dump lots at inflated values on an outside public not acquainted with the true state of conditions.

"There is no justification for the present methods of advertising Muscle Shoals real estate," Dr. Morgan continued. "Unscrupulous persons are taking advantage of popular interest in the Tennessee valley development to offer for sale lots where they never will be needed."

"The use of photographs of President Roosevelt and Senator Norris to help sell this property is indecent," he added, "when both have publicly warned the people against such promotion methods."

Most of the property now offered for sale in the Muscle Shoals district, according to Dr. Morgan, is the same as that previously sold in the former Shoals real estate boom.

"Sidewalks are cracked and uncared for," he stated, "and grass grows in many of the 'improved streets.'

"The truth of the matter is that no immediate activity looking to the employment of any considerable number of people is contemplated on government projects at Muscle Shoals at the present time," Dr. Morgan declared.

Say Desire for Heaven Caused 3 Killings, Suicide

Fresno, Cal., Sept. 23.—[U. P.]—A religious mania which developed in him an urge to "send his loved ones to heaven" caused Everett John Sweitzer, 43, prosperous dairy farmer, to kill his wife, two grandchildren, and himself, authorities believed today. He left notes telling how he poisoned his wife, Elmira, 66, then sat beside her body all night before crushing with a hammer the skulls of Ella May Goodwater, 13, and Mary Eunice Goodwater, 10, as they lay asleep.

Texas Preacher, 3 Others Indicted Under Radio Law

Amarillo, Tex., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Operators of four small radio stations in west Texas, including the Rev. Sam Morris, pastor of the First Baptist church, Stamford, were indicted by the federal grand jury here today for operating without licenses. Curry Jackson, Abilene; E. J. Turner, Plainview, and F. H. Meier, Plainview, were the others.

GIRL FOR REDS; HEIRESS' TROTH TO RUSSIAN ENDS

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Friends of Miss Barbara Ferry Hooker, sister of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller III., and Eugene A. Nebolsine, son of the late Admiral A. Nebolsine of the imperial Russian navy, were startled when their engagement was officially declared off by the bride's family. Dissatisfaction over Miss Hooker's pronounced sympathies with the soviet union was said by Nebolsine's intimates to be behind the break.

Ever since the engagement was announced last April by Miss Hooker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elon Huntington Hooker of Greenwich, Conn., there was speculation as to just how the young investment broker with his imperialistic Russian connections would accept his bride-to-be's admittedly sympathetic interest in present day Russia. Her views became known two years ago when, after a visit to Russia, she wrote and had published three vivid magazine articles recounting her experiences and observations there.

In announcing the breaking of the engagement, Miss Hooker's parents simply said it was by "mutual" consent.

Miss Hooker is a direct descendant of Thomas Hooker, founder of Hartford, Conn. Her sister Blanchette's marriage to John D. Rockefeller III. was a social event of a year ago.

Young Nebolsine is a graduate of Harvard university and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

WOMAN OFFICIAL FIGHTS LOAN FOR NURSES' HOME

Opposes Borrowing When Salaries Are Unpaid.

County Commissioner Grace Fleming yesterday announced that she will file with the county board on Monday a resolution asking for reconsideration of her fellow commissioners before final acceptance of the grant of $2,040,500 from the federal easy money fund for the completion of the Cook County Nurses' home. Other members of the board announced on Friday that work on the home would begin within 10 days.

Commissioner Fleming charged that the grant which was won by Commissioners Marie Plumb and Peter M. Kelly after a trip to Washington and a conversation with Secretary of the Interior Ickes, has never been formally approved by the board. She said that all the board members but herself had voted to make an application for the funds, offering $2,000,000 already voted in bonds as collateral for the loan. It was specifically stated at that time, Commissioner Fleming said, that the terms of the loan, if it were negotiated, would again be submitted to the board.

Cites Delay in Salaries.

"It seems positively criminal to me," said the commissioner yesterday, "for the county to take on any more debts at this time when our own 4,500 employés are seven months behind in their pay. The construction of the home will benefit only 850 nurses who are now being cared for adequately. As a matter of fact the new home will cost more to run than do the present arrangements for housing these girls."

"I am going to file a resolution Monday and see if something cannot be done about this," she added.

Several of the male members of the board yesterday chuckled when they were told of Mrs. Fleming's statements. They recalled with smiles the frequent and bitter disputes in board meetings between Commissioners Fleming and Plumb.

Asserts Miss Sears Won Loan.

One of the male members of the board asserted that Commissioner Amelia Sears was the one most responsible for the success of the deputation in getting the grant. Miss Sears, said this commissioner, who begged that he might remain anonymous, is a personal friend of Mrs. Ickes.

Before Commissioners Plumb and Kelly left Chicago Miss Sears had obtained detailed reports on the financing, probable costs of operation, and benefits to nurses of the new home from the J. L. Jacobs & Co., efficiency experts for the board. These had been given to Mrs. Ickes and then transmitted to the secretary, who was thus made familiar with the facts. The grant had already been promised before Mrs. Plumb arrived in Washington, the commissioner said.

The male commissioner disclosed that the efficiency experts had reported that the costs of the new home were slightly more than the present operations, the construction of the home was "justified . . . by certain important considerations relevant to the welfare of the school and nurses."

The present housing arrangements for the nurses cost $190,905. The largest percentage of this money is expended in allotments of $15 a month to the girls who must house themselves.

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Wiley Post arrived here tonight by plane for a visit to the bedside of her famous husband, who suffered a fractured skull when his plane crashed here Thursday. Mrs. Post flew from Oklahoma City and was met at St. Louis by Col. Harley Lake of Post's touring party, who piloted her the rest of the way in his own plane.

Red Wins His $100 Bet; Robber Is Night Visitor

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Ed Nelson, lumberman, and an acquaintance named Red were afraid they would be robbed while asleep.

They argued about it and made a little bet. Red bet $100 they would be robbed and Nelson wagered the same amount they would not. Each put $100 in a hat, climbed under the covers, and went to sleep.

Estranged Wife Ends Her Life with Poison

Mrs. Minnie Goldberg, 47 years old, 6129 South Green street, swallowed poison yesterday at the home of her brother-in-law, Philip Goldberg, 7843 Colfax avenue, and died soon afterward in the South Shore hospital. Members of the household said that Mrs. Goldberg was despondent over an estrangement from her husband, Samuel.

Kidnap Peoria Merchant, Steal His $3,600 Pay Roll

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Four men, two armed with machine guns, grabbed Jacob Szold, head of a department store here today as he left the Commercial Merchants National bank with a $3,600 pay roll, forced him into an auto and whisked him to the outskirts of the city. There they relieved him of his cash and released him.

NAME RECEIVERS FOR BISTOR AND PRATT TAX GROUP

Judge Orders Accounting of $200,000 Funds.

Another step in the removal of James E. Bistor and John M. Pratt as the guiding forces of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers was taken yesterday by Judge John P. McGoorty in the Superior court. Judge McGoorty appointed Logan L. Mullins and George Crawley as co-receivers for the association and ordered them to make an accounting of the funds. Mullins and Crawley are known as professional receivers, acting in many cases in the Superior and Circuit courts.

The rule of Bistor, former president of the association, and Pratt, former executive secretary, at a salary of $20,000 a year, was broken last Feb. 14. At that time seven of the thirteen directors voted to suspend Pratt and Bistor and filed a petition for an accounting of the association's funds. They also asked that Bistor and Pratt be restrained from holding a massmeeting of members in the Coliseum. The injunction was issued by Judge William J. Lindsay. Judge Lindsay's order tied up nearly $200,000 in funds in the association treasury.

Plan Radical Party.

The complaining directors alleged that Pratt and Bistor and their four associate directors schemed to convert the association into a radical political party and to use funds collected from the 28,000 members to finance the party.

The association was known as one of the leading tax strike organizations. It brought several suits in the Superior and Circuit courts to have the tax rolls declared invalid, but these strike efforts were defeated in every instance.

Petition for Receiver.

Judge McGoorty's action yesterday was on an amended bill filed by the seven directors, asking for a receiver. The receivers indicated yesterday that they would oppose the efforts of the law firm of Watkins & Ten Hoor, former counsel for the association, to collect $38,000 in fees. Hearing on the petition for fees was set for tomorrow before Judge Lindsay.

FORMER FLORIDA GOVERNOR SEES AFTER 5 YEARS

New Orleans, La., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Sidney J. Catts, who won the governorship of Florida by mixing old time preaching with an appeal to people in the country for their votes, is looking at the world again for the first time in five years.

Catts left New Orleans today for his home at De Funiak Springs, Fla., after three weeks' treatment here for blindness. When his physician removed bandages from his eyes yesterday he greeted his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Paderick with "Why, Bess, I didn't remember how pretty you were."

He's still wearing dark glasses, but he can see things about him.

Blindness hasn't kept Catts from doing useful things. He's been running a successful farm and fertilizer business, and whenever a brother minister—Catts is a Baptist preacher—wanted to rest he filled the pulpit.

His career has run the gamut of farmer, mailman, cowboy, preacher, and politician. He quit farming to carry mail in the rural sections. Then he took to the saddle and became a cowboy. Later the ministry called and he preached. He moved to Florida with his wife and seven children and $500 from Alabama.

$101,276,745 OF 1931 TAXES NOW COLLECTED

Represents 56.3 Pct. of Total Roll.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections last week totaled $3,814,334. Collections for the previous week totaled $9,884,094. A total of $71,880,071 has been collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act was started last April 28. The week's collection of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes of the last four years follows:

	1928.	1929.
Sept. 18-22 ...	$ 115,561	$ 276,450
Uncollected	17,434,205	46,101,890
	1930.	1931.
Sept. 18-22 ...	$ 448,245	$ 2,974,078
Uncollected	72,403,203	78,638,669

County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday that 56.3 per cent of the 1931 real estate tax levy has been collected. The collections total $101,276,745 of a levy of $179,915,404. While the rate of collections fell during the last week as compared to the two previous weeks, the treasurer pointed out that the Sept. 1 penalty date on the second installment of the 1931 real estate taxes had been responsible for the previous high totals.

County Judge Jarecki again emphasized the important part the Kerner-Skarda act has played in speeding tax collections. Under the act Judge Jarecki is empowered to appoint the treasurer as receiver for income bearing properties to collect delinquent taxes.

"During my 21 weeks of enforcement of the act, a total of $71,880,071 in taxes has been collected," Judge Jarecki stated, "so that the rate of collection has been nearly three and a half millions of dollars a week. When this is compared with the average tax collections of $100,000 a week before the enforcement of the act, we can see what a powerful weapon it has been in driving property owners to pay their taxes."

During the week, Judge Jarecki appointed the treasurer as receiver for 70 more properties. Since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began, the treasurer has been named receiver for 2,410 properties.

File Bills of Exceptions in Jelke Divorce Case

Newport, R. I., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Counsel for F. Frazier Jelke, New York broker, and for Mrs. Eugenia Woodward Jelke filed bills of exceptions today in Superior court here appealing from the decision of Judge Charles A. Walsh in denying Jelke's petition for absolute divorce and Mrs. Jelke's cross petition. Mrs. Jelke takes 181 exceptions and Jelke 108. When the case will come before the state Supreme court is not known.

HERBERT HOOVER IS WEEK-END GUEST OF ALEXANDER LEGGE

Former President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover last night were still indefinite as to when they would end their Chicago visit, but were certain that it would not be until after another visit to A Century of Progress. They were spending the week-end at the Hinsdale home of Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company and former chairman of the federal farm board.

Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Arch W. Shaw of Winnetka, their hosts earlier in the week, the Hoovers had luncheon and spent the afternoon yesterday at the home of Albert D. Lasker, head of the United States shipping board during the war, at his Mill road estate in Lake Forest.

LINDBERGHS' NEXT STOP IS MOSCOW; COUPLE HONORED

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., Sept. 23.—(AP)—It was understood tonight that Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh have decided definitely to visit Moscow within the next few days, but whether they would travel by plane or train was not yet determined.

They were honored guests tonight at a banquet at the Astoria hotel, with high officials of military and civil aviation as the hosts and more than 100 in attendance. The couple spent most of the day visiting the Hermitage art gallery and the museums and palaces at Peterhof, the former summer home of the czar.

It was believed Col. Lindbergh might have difficulty in landing in the narrow Moscow river with his own seaplane and there was a possibility he might make the trip to Moscow in a soviet land plane.

FOUND DEAD BY ROADSIDE.

BODY OF SLAIN WOMAN FOUND HIDDEN IN POOL

The body of an unidentified, auburn haired woman about 26 years old was found, scantily clad, last evening at the edge of a swampy lake near Avenue O, between 120th and 121st streets. Death apparently was due to an unsuccessful abortion.

From the condition of the body the police surmised that it had been in the water about two days. It was wrapped in a khaki colored blanket. The spot where it was discovered was screened by heavy weeds and grass.

The woman was about 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighed 130 pounds. Her features were small and regular. The only clothing was a white cotton dress and a narrow brassiere. There were no rings or other jewelry on the body.

TRUCK DRIVERS' STRIKE SETTLED BY U. S. OFFICIAL

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A truck drivers' strike, marked with violence and the crippling of virtually all motor transportation in the Philadelphia area, was settled tonight by the United States department of labor.

It was announced the strike peace was to become effective Monday. At that time trucks are expected to run again on normal schedules.

Peace was made on the basis of affiliation of the Brotherhood of Transportation Workers with the American Federation of Labor, with an independent charter and the right to elect its own officers, strike leaders said.

In turn, it was disclosed the operators agree to confer with the remolded union group on the matter of wages and hours as soon as the A. F. of L. charter is issued. Previously, the Transportation brotherhood was not recognized by the operators.

Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, flew from Washington to Philadelphia today, held a series of conferences with all parties concerned, and flew back to the capital after the agreement was reached.

Twelve men were arrested during the day, four of them on charges of carrying pistols and shotguns. They said they were hired by a trucking agency to guard the transfer of motion picture films. One was released; the others were held in bail.

ANOTHER MILE OF NORTH DRIVE OPEN TO TRAFFIC

Montrose to Foster Jam Is Eliminated.

BY HAL FOUST.

Another mile of outer drive was opened to traffic yesterday afternoon over two forty foot lanes of pavement on man made land from Montrose to Foster avenue. Today's holiday crowds also will enjoy this high speed route, avoiding the delays and hazards of Sheridan road congestion through the Uptown business district.

Tomorrow and Tuesday the new section of the drive will be closed while Lincoln park completes the installation of an illumination system and the spreading of black soil over the sand pumped from the lake for this addition to Chicago's lake front recreational acres. The present lack of lights will keep the new road closed at night until Wednesday.

Ceremony Wednesday.

On Wednesday the Lincoln park commissioners are holding a ceremony as a formal dedication of the new traffic facility. Gov. Horner has been invited to participate.

This is the first major Chicago traffic facility to be constructed by the state highway department in return for $20,840,000 annual gasoline taxes and license fees paid to the Illinois road fund by the motorists of this city. The cost of the project, including grade separations at Wilson and at Lawrence avenue, and the reconstruction of the Montrose avenue structure, is approximately $400,000.

Test runs with Capt. James U. Sammis of the Lincoln park police yesterday indicated that motorists will save an average of 2.62 minutes by taking the new route from Foster avenue and Sheridan road to Montrose avenue and the outer driver. This does not take into consideration the risks and annoyances avoided.

Worth $367,800 Year.

With a traffic of 35,000 automobiles a day the new facility will be worth $367,800 a year in time saving alone, evaluating the time of a car and its occupants at the low estimate of 1.1 cents per minute.

As the improvement now stands, it will be a boon to north side and north shore motorists, but there is still a need for several important refinements. The left edge of the new pavements has been left without a curb or firm shoulder. At Foster avenue and Sheridan road the northeast curb will have to be cut back to facilitate turning, and the traffic lights will have to be changed to accommodate south bound traffic in turning east.

"Without a curb on this inner edge," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, "cars will be crowded off the pavement on to dirt that will be soft in wet weather. Accidents are certain to result.

"Unless every assistance is given to traffic at Sheridan road and Foster avenue the utility of the new mile of outer drive is seriously curtailed. This intersection will be the new bottle neck in the north side boulevard system, replacing the present bottle necks at Montrose and Clarendon avenues and at Lawrence avenue and Sheridan road."

The congestion at Foster avenue and Sheridan road will be more serious in the next month than it will later, after the grade separations on the outer drive at Wilson and at Lawrence are completed. These will permit traffic to filter from the outer drive to Sheridan road.

The test runs yesterday covered the entire north side boulevard system. It was found that the most serious delays were in Michigan avenue. The bridge over the river was unable to accommodate the demands upon it, and cars were blocked for a half mile or a mile in both directions.

Mistakes Bandits' Siren for Police Signal; Robbed

John Cygan, 4359 Thomas street, heard the siren of an automobile behind his car as he was driving in front of 1300 North Kostner avenue yesterday. Believing the three men in the car to be policemen, he stopped. Then the men jumped out of their automobile with revolvers in their hands and took $1,000 which Cygan had just withdrawn from the Pioneer State bank. Cygan said it represented all his savings and had been withdrawn to pay a mortgage on his home. Cygan said he had recently lost his job.

POLICE CLERK'S WIFE SHOT AS SHE FIRES ON TAVERN BANDITS

Mrs. Catherine Fergus, 27 years old, 1887 Poe street, was shot twice and seriously wounded early this morning after she had seized a pistol from her husband's pocket and opened fire on four robbers who were holding up a beer tavern at 2060 North Racine avenue.

Mrs. Fergus had gone to the place with her husband, Robert, a police stenographer assigned to the stolen auto section, and was seated at a table with him when the bandits entered.

There were about twelve other persons in the place and all were lined up with their hands in the air as the robbers began a search of pockets. It was at this time that Mrs. Fergus thought she saw an opportunity to seize the gun and start shooting. At the first shot the robbers turned on her and fired three shots, one of the bullets striking her in the right arm pit and another in the side.

She was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where her condition was said to be serious. The robbers escaped after taking $35 from Harry J. Burke, the proprietor.

KERNER FINDS "NO VIOLATION" IN FAIR PARKING

Kelly and Board's Action Upheld.

Attorney General Otto Kerner, in an opinion issued yesterday, held that a contract entered into by the south park board and W. C. Kominske for the operation of two parking lots at the south end of the World's Fair did not come under provisions of the civil service law. Charges had been made that Mayor Kelly, president of the board, and other commissioners were liable to fine and imprisonment for violation of that law.

The opinion of the attorney general was eighteen pages long and contained citations of the principles of civil service law in Illinois and other states. He held that Kominske was not a civil service employé and that the relations between him and the south park board were contractual, requiring services to be performed for a limited duration.

Not Under Civil Service Law.

"A special written contract," says the opinion, "entered into for the purpose of requiring a specific piece of work to be performed for a limited duration, giving the person who is to perform the service authority to control the manner of doing the work and the paying of his own employés does not come within the purview of the civil service law.

"Under the written contract in question Kominske was not required to take an examination for the purpose of including him within some eligible list of classified civil service employés."

Board Gets Improvements.

The attorney general pointed out that under the terms of the agreement all improvements, such as filling, grading, lighting, and buildings—paid for by Kominske—would revert back to the park board. Kominske is paying the board 10 per cent of his gross receipts. The agreement expires at the end of the World's Fair.

The Kerner opinion was sent to Edward G. Woods, Hearst attorney in Chicago, in response to a letter from the lawyer, inclosing newspaper clippings, and charging that the south park commissioners were guilty of violating the law. A similar opinion, prompted by charges from the same source, had been given out by State's Attorney Courtney.

Miss Bloomington of 1927 Wins Divorce on Desertion

Mrs. Mae Bridgewater, 24 years old, 3943 Janssen avenue, who was chosen "Miss Bloomington" in a beauty contest at Bloomington, Ill., in 1927, yesterday was granted a divorce from Julian T. Bridgewater, a railroad employé. Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort granted Mrs. Bridgewater the decree after she testified that her husband deserted her Oct. 30, 1928. They were married June 27, 1924. Mrs. Bridgewater was allowed to resume her maiden name of Mae Martin.

5 Miners Denied New Trial in Shooting of Woman

Anna, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Motions for a new trial were denied five young Duquoin miners, Bosetta, Ferrio, Shingleton, Battaglia, and Albers, here today by Judge Spann. The first four were convicted here Aug. 10 and sentenced to 99 years in prison and Albers to 40 years for the murder of Miss Laverne Miller in that city in April this year during a miners' controversy. A motion for a stay of sentence was denied.

BILL FIXING TAX ON TAXI FARES IN N. Y. SIGNED

Measure Boosting Water Rates Approved.

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Institution of an injunction suit today against the city's five cent tax on all taxicab rides disclosed that Mayor John P. O'Brien, in defiance of the bankers' ultimatum calling for economy, had quietly signed that tax bill last Wednesday and that he had also signed the ordinance increasing water taxes by 50 per cent.

Maurice Hotchner, chairman of the United Taxicab Board of Trade, had proceedings instituted in Bronx Supreme court to prevent collection of the tax. Service of the papers forced the mayor's announcement that the taxicab bill had already been signed.

Effective Jan. 1.

The new water rates become effective on Jan. 1, while the taxicab tax becomes effective on Oct. 1. Both measures are city ordinances, on which no public hearings are required to be given. Four other measures, taxing stocks, brokers, public utilities, savings banks and insurance companies, will have their final hearing Monday and will then be signed by the mayor.

The board of aldermen adopted the ordinance providing new city revenue from the operation of taxicabs Sept. 14. Under the new ordinance the rate for the first quarter mile is twenty cents instead of fifteen. The additional five cents goes to the city treasury.

The ordinance increasing water rates was passed Sept. 14.

Refuses to Make Comment.

Mayor O'Brien would not comment on the announcement today that the stock exchange had picked a business location in Newark to avoid payment of the new city taxes. Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, made a last minute effort to have the mayor veto the two bills taxing stock brokerage at the conference with Gov. Lehman on city finances yesterday. Both the mayor and Mr. Untermyer stood pat on their program and left the conference with the understanding that the bills would be signed tomorrow in their present form.

The United Taxicab Board of Trade moved immediately to combat the city tax on taxicabs, even before its members knew the mayor had signed the bill.

Former Alderman Rudolph Hannoch, chairman of the taxicab emergency committee, said he was not surprised by the "peculiar circumstances" connected with the mayor signing the bill because the taxi industry had been made the "goat" of legislation for the last ten years.

Play "Gore's Hell" Assails Governor of Porto Rico

PONCE, Porto Rico, Sept. 23.—(AP)—A play entitled "Gore's Hell" was presented last night at the Municipal theater at San Juan. It was a criticism of the administration of Gov. Robert H. Gore.

Political leaders in Porto Rico have asserted that Gov. Gore demanded that all members of the cabinet present him with their resignations, to be made effective whenever he might desire.

ROBBED AT DOOR OF HOME.

ARCTIC "MOUNTIES" RADIO "ALL'S WELL" AFTER THREE YEARS

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A three year silence of the arctic was broken today when Royal Canadian mounted police headquarters established wireless contact with Canada's far northern police patrol at Bache peninsula, 700 miles from the north pole.

"All is well," reported Corp. H. W. Stallworthy and Constables H. W. Hamilton and A. Munro in their first message to the outside world in three years. Last year ice floes in Smith sound prevented a Hudson Bay company steamer from reaching Bache peninsula, but it had been arranged beforehand that the police detachment was to move overland to Craig harbor if the yearly supplies could not be landed. The men started the long tramp over the frozen tundra and ice some months ago. In the meantime the Dundas harbor detachment from Devon island started north to meet them.

For the first time in recent years the Devon island police crossed the ice in Jones sound, a distance of about 25 miles. The two patrols eventually met in the stillness of a long arctic day, and for the first time in nearly three years, Stallworthy, Hamilton and Munro were able to converse with other white men. The two patrols then went to Dundas harbor. Yesterday the three men from Bache peninsula reported to the Craig harbor post and sent out their first message in three years.

OFFICIAL AT FAIR PLEADS FOR RUM CARRIERS; FIRED

William W. Gibson, night superintendent of buildings and grounds at the World's Fair, was relieved of his credentials and his job at 3 o'clock this morning by Col. R. I. Randolph, director of operations at the Fair, after Gibson had been charged with attempting to gain the release of two men caught carrying liquor into the grounds.

The prisoners, Joseph Rubenstein, 3120 Ogden avenue, and Al A. Hibbard, 1636 South Homan avenue, had been arrested by Lieut. Ernest Schorndorf, in charge of Fair police, and Sergt. H. W. May, at the 23rd street gate. They were carrying a case of whisky and a gallon of gin which they said was intended for a party at the Hollywood concession.

At the World's Fair headquarters, police said, Gibson approached Lieut. Schorndorf with a plea for the release of the captives, stating that they were "all right." Lieut. Schorndorf finally agreed to summon Col. Randolph, and he arrived at the headquarters a few minutes later.

The two prisoners were said to carry Fair workmen's passes issued by Gibson, whose dismissal followed his admission that he was there to intercede for them. Rubenstein and Hibbard were held for federal authorities on liquor charges.

SHOT BY ROBBER; DIES.

M'KEE BACKERS CLAIM FARLEY, PRESIDENT, TOO

Want Him to Run for New York Mayor.

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Confident of the support of the Roosevelt administration and Postmaster General James A. Farley, sponsors of the movement to launch former Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee as an Independent Democratic candidate for mayor made considerable progress today in organizing support for him.

Mr. Farley, who returned from Bridgeport, Conn., where he spoke at a meeting of the Connecticut Federation of Democratic Women, declined to discuss Mr. McKee's candidacy.

Farley Approval Claimed.

It became known, however, that the plan to run Mr. McKee as an independent had Mr. Farley's approval and, by inference, that of the President. Mr. Farley denied he had come to New York to try to settle the controversy that has arisen in the Democratic party and said he had no appointment either to see John F. Curry, leader of Tammany John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, or any of the other Democratic leaders.

A definite announcement on Mr. McKee's candidacy is expected on Tuesday. By that time Mr. McKee, who already has received assurances of support both from political sources and business and civic groups, is expected to reach a decision. Friends believe that, although he has shown some reluctance to reënter active politics, he will assent to the demand that he become a candidate.

Fear La Guardia Victory.

Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader, is understood to be in favor of running Mr. McKee as an independent Mr. Flynn and Mr. Farley have become convinced that in a straight-out contest between Mayor O'Brien and Maj. F. H. La Guardia the mayor would be a certain loser. Neither credits reports, denied by both Mr. Curry and the mayor, that the latter may be withdrawn as a candidate. Each believes that future success of the Democratic party requires the interference of Mr. Farley as the state and national leader with the backing of the White House to prevent party disaster at the city election.

The dates for filing petitions for independent nominations are from Oct. 3 to Oct. 10, inclusive, but the announcement of Mr. McKee's candidacy is not expected to await the legal requirements. There is necessity of organization for him and this will be begun immediately after an announcement.

POLICEMAN KILLS GUNMAN; CLIMAX OF GANG BATTLE

Matthew Gorman, 6437 South Bishop street, was shot and killed early today by Police Sergeant Chris Callahan in a saloon at 132 West 31st street when a police squad walked in on what appeared to be a gang fight between rival hoodlums. When the police appeared they saw about a dozen men running out of three exits of the tavern with their hands raised. Callahan ran to a side entrance and announced himself as a policeman. Gorman fired at him and the policeman returned the fire, killing the gunman instantly.

Police then arrested twenty men and women who had been in the place and took them to the Cottage Grove station for questioning. Witnesses said there had been a free for all brawl in the tavern about midnight in which more than a score of men participated. Several hours later five of the brawlers returned to the place armed with three shotguns and two revolvers. Patrons thought it was a robbery, but police said the entire affair savored of gang warfare.

Among the score arrested police singled out four men as the suspected gangsters with the shotguns. They are Gus Alex, 2604 Wentworth avenue, brother of Sam Alex, a public enemy sought on a vagrancy warrant; Louis Paletto, 7207 Evans avenue; Nick Biondi, 322 South Wells street, and Frank Ferraro, who said he lived at the Hotel La Salle. Police seized Alex as he was getting into a car in front of the tavern. In the car they found a sawed off shotgun.

AMERICANS FLEE BANDIT TERROR IN NORTH CHINA

Hordes Burn and Loot Villages in Raids.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sep. 23.—Large numbers of foreigners, including Americans and Britons who have been spending their vacations at Chinwangtao, Peitaho and other places along the Gulf of Chihli, rushed back to Tientsin and Peiping today as a result of the depredations of the bandit Tahaotze [Big Rat]. The bandit leader has terrorized the entire so-called Lwantung area between Tientsin and the great wall of China. This zone was demilitarized as a result of the Sino-Japanese truce agreement signed at Tangku.

Refugees arriving at Tientsin said that practically all foreigners have fled the area excepting a few Britons connected with the Kailan mining administration. They reported the situation is frightful, that chaos exists and that the sky in all directions is illuminated by burning villages. Thousands of peasant farmers are flocking into the railway towns and packing the trains bound for Tientsin.

Pays Subsidy; Escapes Looting.

The Chinese city [native city] of Chinwangtao has escaped looting through the payment of a monthly subsidy of $50,000, but all the smaller towns in the vicinity, including Funing and Lingyu, have been sacked and important buildings destroyed by fire.

Foreigners declare that Tahaotze, with a force of 6,000 well armed men, undoubtedly is receiving supplies and inspiration to terrorize the area from Manchukuo. Chinese reports claim that more than 30,000 bandits now infest the demilitarized zone, all having entered the area since signing of the truce, which required the withdrawal of Chinese troops. They declare that the Japanese forces holding the passes in the great wall permitted the bandits to enter north China from Manchukuo.

Gen. Ho Ying-chin, commander of the Chinese government troops at Peiping, has not yet taken any action. A Japanese air bomber flew over Peiping this morning and dropped leaflets over the city, including the foreign legation section. The leaflets demanded suppression of the rebel general, Fang Cheng-wu, who has occupied a large section of the demilitarized zone northward and within 20 miles of Peiping.

Demand General's Evacuation.

Japanese have demanded Gen. Fang's evacuation of the zone before midnight Tuesday. But at the same time the Japanese thus far have refused the Chinese request to send troops into the area.

The Japanese ultimatum charged that Gen. Fang's activities violated the armistice. Worried Chinese officials sent frantic appeals to Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo of China, since the Japanese are threatening to dispatch the Kwantung army, which conquered Manchuria, into the area. Although the Japanese air bomber which circled Peiping for more than half an hour only dropped leaflets, the inhabitants were terrorized.

The rebel Gen. Feng has entrenched himself at Hwaiju, 25 miles north of Peiping. He has demanded that the Chinese Chamber of Commerce pay him $50,000, threatening "free action" if the sum is not forthcoming. It is reported that his forces are growing rapidly, other rebel leaders joining his banner.

Award $2,000,000 Airport Contract.

Meanwhile, the national government announced that plans are complete for beginning construction of a $2,000,000 combined civilian and military airport located in the Lunghua district, about 12 miles from Shanghai. The plans were drawn by H. K. Murphy, New York architect. The construction contract was awarded to A. D. Engle, representative of the Austin company of Cleveland.

It was stated that the Shanghai port is the first of a series contemplated throughout China. The Austin company now is constructing a military airport at Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, south of Shanghai. There the large Chinese government aviation school is operated under the supervision of Col. John Jouet, formerly of the United States army, with 15 other American aviators acting as advisers and instructors.

The Shanghai airport adjoins the Whangpoo river, providing service for land and sea planes. Harold M. Hixby of St. Louis, vice president of Pan-American lines, today said that the Shanghai airport will serve as a central point for Chinese aviation service Connections will extend through Russia to Europe and through Manila to America, he said. Other connecting links with south China ultimately will provide service to the Dutch East Indies, French Indo-China, and India.

TWO MARINE OFFICERS WILL TRAIN ARMY OF DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Maj. Thomas E. Watson of the marine corps has been ordered by Secretary Swanson to proceed to Santo Domingo City to report to Gen. Raphael Trujillo, president of the Dominican republic, for duty in connection with the training of the Dominican army. At the request of the Dominican president Lieut. Gregon A. Williams of the marine corps has been ordered to assist Maj. Watson.

Maj. Watson from 1920 to 1923 was President Trujillo's commanding officer when the latter was a captain in the national guard of his country and there has been a very close friendship between the two men ever since.

President Trujillo was once a private in Lieut Williams' company when the latter was detailed for constabulary duty with the Dominican national guard. The story runs that Lieut. Williams gave Trujillo his first promotion—from private to corporal in 1924.

HEAD OF ECUADOR REFUSES TO QUIT; DEFIES CONGRESS

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 23.—(AP)—An effort by congress to force President Don Juan Martinez Mera to resign has resulted in such great tension, dispatches from Quito said today, that everything apparently depends on the attitude that will be taken by the army.

By a vote of 43 to 10 congress lodged grave charges against the president, declaring that he had mishandled foreign affairs and that the only solution was for him to get out of office.

The president replied that he would not resign and that he would take responsibility for Ecuador's failure to participate in the impending conference at Rio de Janeiro for the settlement of territorial claims in the upper Amazon. Peru and Colombia are to take part in that conference.

YANK TO GO ON TRIAL IN FRANCE AS A SWINDLER

PARIS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The trial of Stewart Donnelly, an American charged with swindling Sigmond Van Den Reis, an Amsterdam industrialist, in a confidence game, is scheduled to start Oct. 4. Donnelly is said by the police to have used the aliases William Eaton, John Brown, and James Harris. He was arrested at Cannes after detectives had intercepted letters addressed to Milwaukee containing two $5,000 notes identified as belonging to Van Den Reis.

All of the money taken from the Amsterdam man has been returned, the authorities said, except one $5,000 note which is now believed to have been found in Antwerp.

A misunderstanding involving the Lindbergh kidnaping case arose when police said they received a tip that the alleged swindlers had the Lindbergh ransom. Now the authorities declare that there is no connection between Donnelly and the Lindbergh money.

KENNY K. BELL, BROKER, KILLED BY AUTO FUMES

Kenny K. Bell, flour broker and former vice president of the Calumet Baking Powder company, was killed by automobile exhaust fumes yesterday while seated in one of his cars in the garage behind his home at 840 Jackson street, River Forest. The doors of the garage were shut when Bell's body was found.

The body was discovered when Bell's wife, Irene, went to the garage shortly after noon to get the second of the family's two automobiles. She summoned Dr. Robert G. Savage of River Forest who pronounced the broker dead.

Members of the family said that death was accidental and probably came as a result of a heart attack. Mrs. Bell said that her husband had left home early in the morning, telling her that he was going to his office at 612 North Michigan avenue. Bell was 59 years old. He had been suffering from heart disease for several months, relatives said.

Seize One and Fire at Second of Auto Strippers

Police captured one man and fired a volley of pistol shots at a second who fled when the two were surprised early yesterday stripping an automobile in an alley at the rear of 1944 Morse avenue. The captive identified himself of Stanley Piniak, 28 years old, 2445 North Newland avenue, an auto mechanic. He named his companion, who is being sought.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

REPUBLICAN OPPOSITION IN THE NEXT SESSION.

After this year's hundred days of a congress which did what it could to create a new form of government for the United States it would be natural for many people to apprehend the worst of the next session, beginning in January. The membership is the same and its state of mind may not have changed greatly. The memorable hundred days were almost entirely devoid of consideration, criticism, and opposition. The bank closing had the effect in congress not only of paralyzing the party system but of causing a suspension of individual judgment. There was no opposition at all worthy of the name to any of the measures proposed with machine gun rapidity and speedily made the law of the land. The feeling that conditions permitted no delays overwhelmed all normal methods of legislation and speed was accepted as the essence of escape from waves of misery, if not of disaster. In consequence of these fears many unbelievable things were done to prove that the full possibilities of government in the United States had never been tried out.

Since congress adjourned, having made these revolutionary changes in American government, the opposition has maintained a discreet and even submissive attitude. In part this has been discretion and in part it has been patriotism. Congress, yielding to the administration, committed the nation to certain plans and procedures which, whether they were constitutional or not, determined the course that was to be taken. The nation having plunged in that direction, the theory prevailed that even a wrong direction mistakenly started upon would be the better for energetic movement. There are dangerous fallacies in that, but comment merely notes that such up to date has been the case.

American political action is not intended to be without criticism and opposition. Opposition is relied upon to check and slow up government, which is not supposed to be free and unopposed in everything it undertakes. Safety requires the checks. They have been found in the two party system, in the operation of which one party will supply the administration and the other party, temporarily in the minority, will sit in judgment. The result expected is a cautious, considerate and well thought out policy and program. The system is a check on wild horses.

When opposition becomes fearful of the consequences of its own criticism and afraid to stand up in argument a one-sided condition is established in which the consequences of imprudence have been dangerously increased. When congress meets again it is desirable for the good of the country that the opposition seats should be filled by men who have recovered their independence of judgment and their sense of party difference of opinion. They should have had time to get over panic and to have come out of their daze. No one now could safely predict what will be the temper of the majority in congress. If sober second thought have not changed the sentiment in Washington the proposals may be even more radical than those of this year.

It is still supposed that the American people, having crawled far out on the limb in order to get away from conditions they feared, will be able to crawl back and again come safely to ground. It remains to be seen whether they are to be pushed farther out until they fall, at the risk of their own necks. It is to be kept in mind that there is a difference between what has been done and what may be still further proposed. The present acts of government may seek temporary support with an argument of the general good. Proposed acts of government cannot claim an immunity from opposition. The country has gone far and very hurriedly. Less speed and more thought is now the transparent requirement. The Republican party has the job of critic. Defeat disorganized it and panic demoralized it, but if it is to be of any further service to the American people it will have shown by next January that it has learned some lessons from its experiences, that it has some new voices, and that it is sitting in congress to compel a show of reason from its Democratic opponents; that it is an opponent to be reckoned with when political proposals detrimental to the American system are brought to the front. There should not be a truce of political action in the next session of congress. Some of the greatest political issues the American people have ever faced are now raised and they cannot be ignored by an opposition political party which seeks to live, because they will not be ignored in the coming elections in which the American people will vote and by which they will continue their government.

THE NERVE OF THOSE AUSTRALIANS.

One of the new Australian states in the proposed division of New South Wales has been given the name of New England, an impropriety, a profanation which conscience should stop even in the antipodes, where respectfulness is not always regarded as a virtue. There can, if the Australians insist upon it, be another England, but not another New England. The latter could not repeat itself. It happened but once, and if time cannot change or wither it the truth is equally self-evident that it cannot be imitated. Where New England is there are and have been New Englanders. Australia cannot produce them by naming a name.

New England begins with Capt. John Smith, the admiral of New England, who named it so on a map he drew and in a description he wrote in 1615 while the captive of a French pirate. Drake had named California Nova Albion. The Australians are welcome to that name. The Californians do not want it. They are Greeks by choice. Smith asked Prince Charles to give his map place names and the prince changed Indian names to English. At Smith's "humble suit" he retained New England. Australia may have no reverence for the royal family, but this was the martyred king New England returned some Puritans to their native shores to try him for his head.

New England must be a mixture of William Bradford and Thomas Morton, of Merrymount, of John Winthrop and Anne Hutchinson, Cotton Mather and Robert Child. There must be conformity rebelling against conformity and irritated by nonconformity. Character must be a rock-bound coast with angry waves. First the tea is dumped in the harbor to exasperate the tax collector and then the ancient and honorable artillery company is organized to perpetuate his memory. Contrariness, if frigid enough, will seem to be consistency, and when the east wind gets in the bone estheticism will "give to the Mellancolly man a cup or two of't now and than." New England must be Adamses.

Australia should stick to such inventions as Canberra and Riverina. There has been too much trifling with the names given meaning by the people of the United States. America, which was theirs by common grant, general consent, and world-wide use, has challengers and usurpers who would restrict it in the United States, by a prefix, to North Americans. Even the United States would be strictly defined by a suffix, the United States of North America. Triflers reduce it to "the States," an odious locution and today historically false. There are no states. They were lost in Washington.

DINING OUTDOORS.

One of the local results of A Century of Progress may be out of door restaurants. New York, Boston, and possibly other cities, without the stimulus of the Fair, are already experimenting, and travelers abroad know well the pleasure of dining al fresco. American cities are not so favorably organized as European. We build on every inch in central districts and trees are not to be found. But New York is trying sidewalk restaurants and seems to like them and conditions in Chicago are even more favorable. The Tavern club is a pioneer in the use of roof terraces and the result is delightful.

But Chicago need not be limited to sidewalk eating places. We are neglecting the great possibilities of the river front. North Water street is a reproach to our enterprise. There are several places where out of door resorts could be developed overlooking the river, the sweep of Wacker drive and the mountain range of the loop skyscrapers. With such pleasant features the attractions of the river would be greatly enhanced.

It will take some sensible planning, to choose the right places and to provide the facilities required by local conditions, protection from sun, wind and the infrequent sudden showers, but we think the public would respond. Stockholm is far to the north of Chicago but most of its restaurants are out of doors in the season, partly under cover, and they do not close at the first hint of cool weather. They will give you a lap robe if it is chilly and few will give up the pleasure of their delightful open air restaurants until the end of the season. We have different conditions but they are not insurmountable, and we think the experiment is worth trying. We waited for years to discover the lake.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT IS THE CURE?

[Washington, Ia., Evening Journal.]

It is possible that we may yet discover that the surest way for us as a nation to be restored to something like our old time economic condition must be by the strictest adherence to the fundamental principle of spending less than we receive. In other words, there is no sure promise of national security as long as we are paying out millions more than are coming in.

Pay day comes some day, sure as fate. No one can fail to be concerned about this matter when he thinks it through. Bold strokes in favor of artificial rejuvenation of trade, agriculture, industries, business in all forms must have a coördinate reaction that will be harmoniously stimulating and tend quickly to make us a going concern in the matter of finances.

We cannot go on forever and ever running behind in our budget. That we know. We must quit spending soon and go to paying off. As for general conditions, they may be improved by remedial measures—it is certainly to be hoped they will be—but the most solid improvement will come through the natural processes that work through our economic organism just as such processes work through all other organisms.

Nature tends to balance things in an orderly manner. Business, industry, agriculture, labor conditions tend to balance themselves if given time. If sugar is too low in price for the producer he quits producing and the price rallies. The same can be said of all other products; they demand that the cost of traffic be paid, and if it is not paid the traffic ceases. Natural law controls those processes in a very large degree, and it is a dependable law, with few slips in it.

But there is distress attending these adjustments even when nature carries the load. We seek then, sometimes, temporary relief; help for the disabled. There is where the experimental enters the picture; the doctors in economics come on to the scene, and there are many different doctors with many different degrees and many different medicines, so we are lost to know which doctor to employ, which medicine to take.

That's where we are today, and we all hope that our doctors and the new specifics will prove to be "remedies," not stimulants that are succeeded by a depressant reaction, but remedies that tend to really assist nature in a permanent cure.

HOW NRA CAN HELP DISTRIBUTION

BY GILBERT H. MONTAGUE.
[Of the New York Bar.]

There are great potentialities of good, and many possibilities of error, in the welter of codes governing selling operations that are now being rushed to completion by the NRA at Washington. For the percentage of error now creeping into these codes the blame cannot be laid upon the NRA.

To the practical exclusion of all other objectives, the NRA is now very properly concentrating its attention on getting into every code the strongest provisions it can negotiate from industry to reduce hours, drain the pools of unemployment, raise wages, get the unemployed back to work, and increase the purchasing power of the working population of the nation.

Drafting legislation that will govern in minute detail all of one's selling operations and those of one's competitors is about as serious business as any business man can ever engage in. This is what every industry committee does when it undertakes to draft a code governing selling operations, and what every business man in the industry does when he expressly assents to, or passively acquiesces in, the code which his industry committee submits to the NRA. These codes when approved by the President have all the force of an act of congress.

For violation of any provision of any code governing his selling operations—and some businesses run into so many industries that their selling operations come under a dozen or even a score and more of codes—the business man may be prosecuted by the federal trade commission, or be enjoined by the United States District court in a suit by the attorney general, or be convicted of a misdemeanor and fined.

Since every sales transaction in violation of a code is a separate offense, and the national recovery act says that an offender may be fined "$500 for each offense, and each day such offense continues shall be deemed a separate offense," the business man who disregards, or misrepresents, or is ignorant of any provision of any of the codes governing his selling operations may be faced with suits involving terrific consequences in government complications, litigation and fines.

Besides all these penalties, some codes are so drafted that the business man who assents to them may become liable to pay to the trade associations that administer these codes liquidated damages computed upon each unit of product that he sells in ignorance, or disregard, or misapprehension of some provision of these codes.

Under some codes the business man must accept as final and binding the decision of directors or committees of these trade associations—comprising of course his own competitors—on the question of whether he has violated the code, and the amount of his liability.

Codes are enormously serious matters, transcending in business importance many acts of congress. Complete definiteness and exact precision, with no ambiguities or debatable phrases of any kind, are the prime essentials in codes. "Elastic" code provisions lacking in these essentials are traps for the unwary and ways of escape for the unscrupulous.

When administered by officers and committees of trade associations, their lack of definiteness and precision is likely to make them ready instruments for "star chamber" proceedings, by which to place unpopular competitors "on the spot" and to exonerate other code violators who are equally guilty.

"Elastic" code provisions are sometimes favored by industry committees, on the theory that by their vagueness, indefiniteness, ambiguities and debatable phrases all the unscrupulous competitors can be trapped and all the conscientious competitors can escape. The exact reverse is what really will happen, as the experience of the federal trade commission's trade practice conference rules over the past ten years has proved.

Unscrupulous competitors will soon learn—what any lawyer if asked must tell them—that when these "elastic" code provisions come up for enforcement in the courts, or in the federal trade commission, or in the attorney general's office, they are liable to be thrown out as too indefinite for enforcement, and perhaps unconstitutional because of their indefiniteness and inapplicability to general business.

It will soon result that the code will be obeyed only by the conscientious competitors—who will live up to it in order to keep their business record unblemished by any charge of unfair competition—and that the code will be disregarded and flouted by all the unscrupulous competitors—who never have been and never will be worried by mere charges of unfair competition, and whose sensitiveness begins only when governmental punishment is certain.

Code provisions with teeth against selling below cost, price discriminations, secret rebates, secret refunds, secret differentials, unearned discounts, the insertion or omission of statements that make an invoice or a contract a false record, credit abuses, wasteful and demoralizing methods of distribution, false and misleading advertising, piracy of designs, and innumerable other demoralizing trade practices are not easy to phrase. Trade association machinery by which all code violations may be policed effectively, impartially, and independently of any competitor's bias or prejudice, is even more difficult to work out.

"No producer," says a recent code, "shall sell his product below the annual average cost based on normal market operations for his market area. In each district the district committee may determine the average cost for such district, and no producer selling his product in that district shall sell below such determined cost. . . . Any producer shipping his product into regions, or subdivisions thereof, outside of his natural market area shall not sell such material below the general market price prevailing in the region, or subdivision thereof, into which shipments are made."

In the past twenty years in upwards of a dozen decisions the Supreme court of the United States in construing a succession of statutes of comparable language has uniformly held that phrases such as these set forth no standard that a court can possibly apply or enforce.

If phrases like these slip by in the flood of codes now engulfing the NRA, and are approved by the President as "the standards of fair competition for such trade or industry," they will be wholly illusory "standards," which "the fair 90 per cent" may obey in the delusion that by them the government can now prevent "cut-throat underselling by selfish competitors," but which "the unfair 10 per cent" can flout with legal impunity, because no court, or federal trade commission, or attorney general can possibly enforce them. For this state of affairs the remedy must be sought, not in the overworked staffs of the NRA, but in improved drafting ability and higher specialized competence in the industry committees which submit codes to the NRA.

In his address to congress when the national recovery bill was introduced the President said, "My first request is that the congress provide for such machinery necessary for a great coöperative movement throughout all industry, in order . . . to prevent unfair competition and . . . cut-throat underselling by selfish competitors unwilling to join in such a public spirited endeavor."

The President and the congress have done their part, and the NRA now offers to business men a splendid opportunity.

It will be a pity if this opportunity is lost because of lack of specialized competence and bad draftmanship in the codes that are now being submitted to the NRA.

GET THE UMBRELLA HABIT.

It is estimated that there will be approximately thirty million admissions to A Century of Progress Exposition. If each persons enters on an average of four times, that would mean that almost eight million will have been exposed to the possibilities there. Allowing for visitors from beyond North America, we estimate that about 5 to 7 per cent of the population of the United States will have had first hand experience when the gates finally close on Nov. 1.

It is apparent now that whatever other effects there may be, one result of the show will be an increase in addiction to the walking cane habit. Visitors to the Exposition have nothing particularly to do with their hands, and this has developed the walking cane habit. The demand for leg work wears out shoes and develops corns and bunions, but during this experience the hands find little to do. Cane addiction follows, as it does with old men, society people, newspaper men, and other ornamental appendages of the human race.

For some strange reason, two other addictions very well suited to prevailing conditions have not come out of this Fair at the time of writing, and the season of preëminent fitness draws to a close. One is the parasol habit.

Yesterday as this was written was Georgia day at the Fair, and several thousand people sat in the glare and the hot sunlight in the open air court of the Hall of States. But one woman raised a parasol, and no man equaled that one woman in good sense.

A closed umbrella makes a pretty good walking cane, and supplies all the need for occupying the energies of unneeded hands. An open umbrella or parasol lessens glare and heat and promotes comfort. It is an ideal roof in that it protects from all that descends from above, while it does not trap hot air. The good people of Yuma, Ariz., have roofed their house on this umbrella principle. Perhaps some day architects in other warm places will follow the example of those of Yuma as well as of the umbrella users, wherever they are.

The other is the fan habit. Our Japanese friends have assembled a fine exhibit from which we should learn much. Unconsciously, and without intent, they are trying to teach us the fan habit. We seem to be blind to charms and advantages of the demonstration. One lady at one of the concessions has apparently developed a fondness for fans, but the use she makes of them has no bearing on this story.

A fan is something for idle hands to toy with. Out of action it can still be justified. In action, it drives hot, moist air away from the skin, replacing it with air that is in condition to promote comfort. On a hot day we must depend on the evaporation of sweat to get rid of the excess of heat we make. Stagnant air in contact with the skin becomes saturated with moisture and stops evaporation. The use of a fan remedies this. Fanning, skillfully done, forces the trapped, hot, saturated air away from the spaces under and within the clothing. And the amount of effort required to wield a fan is disproportionate to the comfort it promotes.

We hope our Japanese visitors may revive the art of fanning.

NOT IMPORTANT FACTOR.

I. D. A. writes:

1. Is it true that saliva is essential for proper digestion?

2. Is saliva stimulated by gum chewing?

3. Will drinking water in excess cause high blood pressure?

REPLY.

1. Saliva has some power to start digestion of starches. Since the acid gastric juice stops this digestion temporarily, the saliva as a digestive ferment is not of prime importance. It is of more help as an agency for breaking and dissolving food.

2. Yes.

3. No. It may for a few minutes, but that effect is evanescent.

PALSY.

J. writes:

1. What causes palsy?
2. Is it curable?
3. Is it inherited?
4. Does it progress as time goes on?

REPLY.

Stedman's Medical dictionary gives eleven kinds of palsy and there are still others. My guess is that you mean paralysis agitans, and the answers given relate to that:

1. No one knows.
2. No.
3. Not in the proper sense.
4. Yes. As a rule, it progresses slowly.

TRUST FUNDS.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband's son by a former marriage was left a small sum of money about the age of 3 or 4 years in trust in care of his father. This money was spent by the father (so he claims) on the boy years ago. Now the boy is close to 21 years of age and is threatening court proceedings to get said money. 1. Does that money have to be paid? 2. If so, what is the minimum amount we can pay each week? 3. Can interest be demanded? J. S. M.

1. Yes, if the father was appointed court guardian and secured no authority to spend the money.

2. No payment of less than the full amount due would protect him.

3. We suggest that you try to effect a settlement on the basis of excusing the interest.

What is the difference between a judgment note and a promissory note? 4. Can I garnishee on this party's salary? W. B. K.

1. Ten years from the last payment or promise to pay.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

A. S. P. asks: Is the government paying a bonus to farmers who agree to plant less corn next year?

Answer—No. A plan for such action is under consideration but no announcement has been made officially about corn reduction.

M. O. T. asks: I have a tenant on shares who is leaving the farm next month in arrears for some loans I made him. Will he get some of the government wheat bonus on the crop we thrashed the last two years?

Answer—No. The bonus is paid only to the landlord and tenant who sign the contract to reduce wheat next year, and the basis upon which each will share the bonus depends upon the lease terms with your new tenant.

R. F. C. asks: When will we farmers who signed applications to reduce our wheat crop the next two years get paid?

Answer: The first payment of 20 cents per bushel on the quota assigned you by your county wheat control association will be paid as soon this fall as the association completes the signing of contracts for the county and certifies them to the agricultural adjustment administration in Washington. A final payment on the 1933 quota is payable next spring upon your proving to your county association that the contract terms have been met.

◆

A. T. asks: What aid can a poultryman such as I am get from the government?

Answer—Only the opportunities for financing your farm, under the farm credits act, or for seed and crop loans under the act governing such loans. Address your specific inquiry to the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C.

N. O. C. asks: Is there any law or regulation preventing a man who sells his small pigs to the government using this money to buy feeder pigs for fattening?

Answer—There is not.

NRA QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning the NRA will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly. Following are some typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers:

Q.—What is the minimum wage for restaurant workers? A.—Restaurants flying the Blue Eagle have agreed to pay their employés, men and women alike, the minimum wage of 28 cents an hour.

Q.—What are the maximum hours for employés in restaurants operating under the NRA? A.—Under the modified President's reëmployment agreement the maximum hours are as follows: 54 a week for men and 48 a week for women.

Q.—I work for an advertising agency. What are the hours and wages for that work under the code? A.—Until a national code for agencies is signed by the President they may operate under the President's reëmployment agreement as follows: Minimum wages in cities the size of Chicago to be not less than $15 a week and weeks to be not longer than 40 hours in length, averaged over a period of a month, for employés other than factory or mechanical workers, artisans, outside salesmen, creative workers, including copy writers, idea men and artists, and watchmen.

Q.—I am a baker by trade and am working 60 hours a week. My employer has not signed the NRA, although I read in THE TRIBUNE that under the code and also under the modified President's reëmployment agreement hours will be shorter. Am I entitled to the hours of the modified code? A.—So long as your employer has not signed the President's agreement and until such time as a code for the baking industry remains unsigned, there is nothing you can do about your hours. As soon as a bakery code is signed your employer will have to operate under its provisions whether he elects to do so or not.

Q.—I am the owner of a cabin camp with restaurant and gasoline station in connection. In what way, if any, are we classed under the NRA? A.—Specific information on that point has not been supplied us. However, there is a possibility that you will come under the hotel code, which includes the cabin camp part of your business and also the restaurant end. In cases where a business may come under many codes the disposition up to the present time has been for them to elect to operate under the code which covers the major portion of their business.

SIDEWALK CAFES.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 20.—Referring to a letter appearing in the Voice of the People a few months ago, captioned "Sidewalk Cafés," a man told me the other day that I would be amazed to see what the letter had done for his neighborhood. He said he was reminded of Havana when he went around and saw the families sitting about on the sidewalks.

If we are to put architects, draftsmen, carpenters, and glaziers back to work it is obvious that we will have to give up old forms for new. Properly executed, the new liquor regulation will give us an impetus in the right direction. If further we change the fronts of buildings to adapt them to sidewalk light eating and drinking we will go a long way toward giving employment.

There are many cities in Europe whose physical conditions are much less adapted to the sidewalk café than Chicago and yet they manage to give this pleasure to their people.

"Too much smoke," say some, but there have been restaurants operating in Chicago on the rooftops, where the smoke is the thickest, for many years, and with uncomplaining patrons.

What Chicago requires is some new adventure to awaken its citizens to new needs.

If nothing better is offered, why not "the sidewalk café," with not too much liquor regulation? J. W. C.

TAG DAY COLLECTIONS.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Nine contributors out of ten on tag days have always supposed that they were paying their money into a common fund for equitable distribution among an approved list of beneficiaries. My suspicions were aroused a good many years ago and I wrote to the central office asking for some information about the system of apportionment. The reply gave no satisfaction and seemed to me at the time to be evasive. It now appears, as I had long since surmised, that each collector acts only for her own institution. Most of us who wish to support a particular charity prefer to send a check and I for one certainly object to having a coin which was intended for a common pool diverted to an establishment of which I probably know nothing.

Collectors wear the badge of the Federated Charities and when asked for whom they are collecting they will answer that they are collecting for the Federated Charities. It is only on close cross-examination that they will divulge in whose interest they are actually collecting funds. The system in vogue lacks the candor which is due from people who are appealing to the generosity of the public. Since I learned the methods actually followed I have refused to give any money on a tag day and I think you will do a service to your readers if you would let a little light into the prevailing system. WILLIAM W. CASE.

UNFINISHED SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Permit me to say that the idea of Mrs. Tyler is a good one. Aside from Lane and Steinmetz, there are no new schools worth finishing. The few little odds and ends remaining to be done at Senn and Jamieson are not justly called schools. The other six jobs are all in condition to stand indefinitely without loss. Wells, Verdi, Phillips, Dvorak, and Rembrandt have only the steel work, or even less, standing. This work will stand a lifetime without loss if painted.

The building program has wrecked the school budget. It is about time to call a halt. This is no time to sink the ship. Chicago has had too much building and not enough teaching. Let us go to New York and learn how to build schools of a type that puts the emphasis on the teacher, not brick and mortar.

JOHN HANSEN.

HORSE SENSE.

Ellettsville, Ind., Sept. 20.—I'm only a farmer who came to Chicago to see your A Century of Progress Fair, but so many of your city folks have asked me about how the NRA is helping the farmers that I feel that some one ought to sort of analyze the deal and show why the darn thing won't work.

1. To plow up cotton, to slaughter a million pigs, to let wheat land lie idle, etc., are destroying and not creating wealth. It's like burning down the barn and silo in order to get rich.

2. To raise farm prices means taking the money from the city wage earners' pockets and putting it into the farmers' pockets. Just like robbing Peter to pay Paul. No new wealth is created, no permanent good can result.

3. American standards of living have been raised only when great new wealth was given to the people from sources outside of themselves. First, new lands, free lands, made prosperity. Then steam, new power, new wealth, gave more prosperity. Then electric power, then the automobile to give more and cheaper transportation to hordes of people, and goods gave new wealth to the country.

The war gave wealth to the few—vast wealth—but it was false wealth, for real wealth was destroyed to the extent of billions of dollars. When real wealth is destroyed the standard of living must come down in exact proportion.

To take from you and give to me does not give genuine prosperity. It enriches one and impoverishes the other. The NRA is not creating any new wealth. Therefore it must and will fail. Inflation of currency will not help. No new wealth is thereby created, only real values are decreased in proportion to the extent of inflation. J. L. FOUST.

MORE ABOUT THE STEGOSAURUS.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—A recent contributor to your column requested information concerning the stegosaurus as shown at the World a Million Years Ago, A Century of Progress, Chicago.

The stegosaurus appeared at the end of the Jurassic period and was a trifle larger in size than our present elephant. Anatomically he was an interesting creature. His forelegs were very short, designed to bring his head close to the ground, where he grazed upon grasses and low bushes. Great bony plates standing on edge rose in two rows upon his back, and impressions in the rock show that his skin was a series of bumps covered with hard nodules. On his tail he carried murderous spikes designed probably for protection. The brain of this creature was actually smaller than that of a puppy. In fact, it was so insufficient that nature installed a branch brain in his hind quarters to keep his rear following in the direction that his head intended going.

Any reconstruction that shows this animal with carnivorous teeth is incorrect, as the stegosaurus was strictly herbivorous. LEON MORGAN.

THE DUMPING OF MILK.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—If the dumping of milk, as pictured in today's TRIBUNE cartoon, is so tough on the poor folks, how about the action of NRA which requires milk depots that have been selling cash and carry milk for 7½ cents a quart to put their prices up to 10 cents, with a possible advance to 11? It seems to me that hurts a lot more than all the milk that is being spilled in the strike.

THE MEMORY OF A GREAT MAN.

Hoopeston, Ill., Sept. 17.—The dignity of the World's Greatest Newspaper was certainly lost sight of when in your picture section of this Sunday's issue you ask your many readers if the picture of the great hairy baboon looks like Bryan. Personally I consider it an insult to the memory of a great man.

LEAGUE MEETS TOMORROW IN AIR OF TURMOIL

Future Peace of World Is Seen at Stake.

GENEVA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The fourteenth assembly of the league of nations will open Monday, with Europe disturbed by political agitation and the entire world battling economic conditions. The delegates voiced hopes that action will be taken to dissipate the international gloom.

The word "war" has been printed pessimistically in so many newspapers in Europe that the delegates think participation in the conclave of nations possesses a potent influence either for war or peace. The peace call undoubtedly will predominate.

The league itself is suffering a crisis, financially and politically, yet the size of the delegations—France has sent 33 representatives—shows no lack of interest in the Geneva institution.

Heads of Nations to Speak.

The agenda of the assembly lists nothing transcending in importance the speeches which will be made by statesmen like Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister; Dr. Joseph Goebbels, German minister of public enlightenment and propaganda; Premier Edouard Daladier of France; Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria.

The great problems of the world, beginning with disarmament and the fixation of the position of revolutionized Germany and Austria, will be treated in private parley.

The league delegates expect Germany to make a bid for real arms equality with the other great powers, either in the assembly or in the ensuing disarmament conference. Germany's spokesmen insist that other countries, and not Germany, have been talking war, and that the reich is peace-bent. Combined with this, however, they point out that Germany wants the place in the world to which its might entitles it.

Japan Is Absent.

The assembly begins with Japan not participating and Russia also absent, but with the delegates remarking that the soviet republic, by the nonaggression pacts recently negotiated with its neighbors and others, has ably fought its way back to the concert of nations after the failure of recognition conferences.

Pre-assembly hours are marked by political maneuvering to fill the vacancies on the council. It is expected that Argentina or Uruguay will be elected to replace Guatemala, that Austria will replace Ireland and that Denmark will succeed Norway. Turkey and Portugal, however, are also candidates.

The assembly will vote to increase the membership to 15, that seat going either to Portugal or Turkey.

Insist "Big 4" in Agreement.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—French officials held tonight that a general agreement on the disarmament question among the United States, France, Great Britain, and Italy remained firm despite purported German demands for massive fortifications and military aviation.

The Paris newspaper L'Echo de Paris listed German disarmament counter proposals as comprising acceptance of an arms supervision and test period under four conditions, as follows:

First, Germany would be authorized to fortify the Franco-German frontier the same as France;

Second, these defenses would be equipped with heavy artillery;

Third, air bombers would be barred, but all countries, including Germany, would be permitted to possess pursuit planes;

Fourth, supervision would be arranged so that each country's arms would be inspected only by nations of equal strength, for example, as between France and Germany.

Germans Deny Plans.

French officials said nothing was known concerning this reputed German plan, while reich authorities described it as "pure imagination from A to Z."

Meanwhile the French cabinet, meeting at Rambouillet, approved the disdier and Foreign Minister Paul-Bonarmament scheme of Premier Dalacour.

German acceptance of an arms supervision scheme was hopefully expected in political circles. Any condition that the reich might attach were considered capable of being whittled down to reasonable proportions.

Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, and Paul-Boncour left for Geneva tonight.

U. S. to Avoid Sanctions.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A disarmament policy under which the United States would avoid ironclad sanctions, but would throw no bars across the enforcement of actual arms treaties by other powers, was reiterated today by Secretary of State Hull.

Hull said Norman H. Davis, America's ambassador at large, had not yet reported what outcome was indicated from his Paris conversations.

Hull said it appeared possible some agreement might be reached which could be taken to Geneva, but he added that any statement from him as to what would develop upon such plans as those for a trial period of disarmament would be pure speculation.

The United States, however, he added, has made no new commitments beyond the disarmament policies enunciated shortly after the new administration took office.

HULL LOOKS AHEAD TO ACCORD ON ARMS; TELLS STAND OF U. S.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Secretary Hull, pointing to the possibility of an approaching armament agreement, today re-enunciated America's arms policy as providing a freedom from sanctions but a willingness to coöperate against arms treaty violators.

The secretary made known that the administration was standing fast upon a declared willingness to go as far as other states toward real disarmament, even to bringing armies down to the basis of domestic police forces.

State department officials were still waiting tonight for a comprehensive report from Norman H. Davis, America's arms ambassador, upon his Paris conversations. Lacking this, spokesmen declined to comment upon how solid a front could be presented by the major powers on new arms reductions.

It was learned, however, that this country would not be averse to an extension of the supervisory powers of a permanent disarmament commission to keep a constant check upon new reductions, when and if made.

2 GENERALS AND 2 AIDS SLAIN IN MEXICAN PLOT

GUADALAJARA, Jalisco, Mexico, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Four bandit chieftains plotting an armed uprising in the state of Jalisco were killed yesterday in an exchange of shots with police. Gen. Justo Gonzalez and his aid, Col. Alfredo Ramos, were shot to death in a house where they had met with their followers to plan robberies and activities against the authorities.

Gen. Perfecto Sandoval, chief of staff of Gonzalez, and his brother were also killed in the outskirts of the city when they were en route to meet members of their band.

The four bandit chieftains had planned to kidnap several prominent ranchers and capitalists and demand ransom money to support their uprising, which was set for next month.

ARCHDUKE OTTO REJECTS FASCIST RULE FOR AUSTRIA

Sees Monarchy as the Only Solution.

VIENNA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Austrian throne, stepped momentarily into the political scene today with a letter, not yet made public, which has created a sensation in limited circles where it is known.

The question of his successful restoration to the throne, he observed, was not yet ripe for discussion, "since the composition of the Dollfuss cabinet" does not "afford the necessary assurances."

Rejects Fascist Régime.

The youthful archduke "absolutely rejects" the Fascist régime for Austria, he said, but sees the only solution to the nation's difficulties in a constitutional monarchy, similar to England's, with a Hapsburg ruler.

But he refused to be drawn into "adventurous putsch attempts" and said he could not consider a personal union of Austria under his scepter without revision of certain treaties.

Turning to the South Tyrol question he observed there was no absolute incompatibility between the revisionist policy of Mussolini and the return of the South Tyrol to Austria.

The letter will be read tomorrow to representatives of three Austrian towns which recently voted him honorary citizenship. The archduke's letter regretted the Hapsburg exile law was still in effect, preventing him from expressing thanks for the honor in person.

"Imported Labels Out of Place."

Meanwhile, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss said that imported labels are out of place in describing the new Austria. The chancellor made this statement upon his departure for Geneva, where he will attend the league of nations sessions and the world disarmament conference.

Asked if it is correct to say that Austria has gone Fascist, the chancellor emphatically said:

"It would be a serious mistake to attempt to transfer automatically to other peoples forms which, in their respective states, were introduced with due regard to historical developments and adapted to national character. There is deep wisdom in the words that Mussolini Fascism is no export article.

"We Austrians have left no doubt what we want. We want a Social Christian and a German state in Austria on a corporative basis under a strong, authoritary leadership."

"Barbed Wire" for Nazis.

Almost as Dollfuss was speaking an article appeared in the Oesterreichische Abendzeitung, semi-official mouthpiece of Vice Chancellor Emil Fey, saying a modified form of concentration camps for "enemies of the state" would be created by a decree which might be expected shortly.

The article said the decree would authorize confinement of such persons as are presumably Socialists and Nazis within the bounds of certain towns or districts. It would be a sort of "barbed wire" restraint.

ARMY OUTFITS FOREST CORPS IN RECORD RUSH

Wartime Speed Outdone by Chicago Depot.

There is wartime activity, a roar of ten ton trucks, the puffing of locomotives tugging at lines of heavily laden freight cars, a trampling of feet and shouted orders in the three huge red brick warehouses of the United States army's Chicago quartermaster depot at 1819 Pershing road.

The cause of it all is the civilian conservation corps, called into being and almost into full stride by the sudden orders of President Roosevelt. It was upon a few trained officers and men in this depot that there fell the immense job of feeding, clothing and housing more than 120,000 raw recruits of the conservation corps in the Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh regular army corps areas in the middle west.

A High Pressure Job.

The task which these soldiers have performed in getting the conservation army into the field was a bigger one, it is said, than was the one performed by the army quartermasters when the United States entered the world war and began the mobilization of troops in 1917. It was done under more pressure because the 325,000 conservation corps enlistments occurred over a period of only 75 days. The war enlistments were carried on over a six month period.

And the job has released in a golden flood some four and a half million dollars of federal funds in the Chicagoland area since last April 1. The money has been used to buy uniforms, bedding, food, kitchen utensils, camp equipment, and rolling equipment of various sorts.

The men on whose shoulders rested the responsibility for outfitting the 120,000 conservation troops from Illinois, Kansas, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska are Lieut. Col. Clifford L. Corbin, who commanded the depot when the work began, and Lieut. Col. John A. Warden, who succeeded to the command of the depot recently.

Huge Contracts Are Let.

Under their guidance—Lieut. Col. Warden was also stationed at the depot when the forest army first took the field—the personnel of the depot jumped last April from forty to one thousand men. Contracts for vast quantities of woolen goods—blankets, jackets, socks, shirts, and trousers—were let. Contracts for huge supplies of fresh meat, for hundreds of thousands of "spuds," for flour, coffee, butter, shoes, cots, stoves and mess kits were given out right and left.

Army red tape was torn asunder and forgotten in the scramble to see that the conservation foresters got three "squares" a day and had straw filled bed packs under their tents at night. The men in the depot worked in shifts and the activity in the warehouses never slackened at any hour out of twenty-four.

The loading platforms on the first floors of the warehouses were the busiest spots of all. Freight cars—three cars to the track and eight tracks to the warehouse—were pushed into the loading floors. Trucks, groaning under their loads, were backed to other platforms.

Army System Proves Itself.

The material they brought was unloaded, sorted, examined for defects, and repacked in loads directed to the various encampments of the new forest army. The army system, developed for just such an emergency and designed for sudden expansion under direction of a few cool heads, proved itself.

"Not a man went hungry," said Lieut. Col. Warden.

"We had our problems," he went on. "It was just like war, and yet not quite. It was even harder than war times, for in war the army seized the raw materials it wanted, and directed their shipment to manufacturers. The manufacturers with whom we dealt for the most part found themselves confronted by a shortage of everything needed.

"There was a woolen shortage, a leather shortage, a potato shortage, a shortage of metal for cots, of canvas for tents, and this time the army couldn't commandeer what it wanted. Still we did the job and continue to do it."

Solving the Menu Problem.

The biggest problem of all, Lieut. Col. Warden said, is feeding the men. It is complicated by the absence of trained cooks and mess officers. To remedy this, the subsistence school in the depot worked out a menu for three meals a day for three months, and prepared a recipe for each dish. The recipes were based on the quantity of ingredients needed to feed 100 men. Thus if a cook had 1,000 men to feed in one camp he used ten times the amount of food given in the menu.

Now the quartermaster corps is preparing to buy $1,200,000 worth of clothing and bedding for the winter months. President Roosevelt's order to continue the camps for another six months means that the conservation corps will stay in camp all winter. Huts and barracks similar to those established in France will be put up. Heavy winter shoes, clothing and mattresses already are beginning to flood the storage rooms. Soon all of it will be shipped out.

BISHOP ASKS U. S. TO MAKE RUSSIA END WAR ON GOD

Wants to Set Terms for Recognition.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The hope that the United States would make religious liberty in Russia an essential condition if it recognizes the soviet union was expressed tonight by Bishop Michele D'Herbigny, president of the pontifical commission for Russia.

Previously Vatican City circles reported that some means of an approach to the soviet government were being sought for conversations which would lead to an agreement guaranteeing protection of Catholic interests in Russia.

Wants Liberty for All.

"This means religious liberty for all, not merely for Catholics," the bishop continued. "Conditions in Russia are such that it needs money wherever it can get it, and the attractiveness of formal relations with the United States might induce it to accept the condition.

"The United States will have done a great deed, not only for Russia, but for civilization and the world.

"The pope at the Genoa conference in 1922 suggested that the powers make religious liberty a condition of their recognition of the soviet, but they were too eager to obtain commercial advantages to accept the situation."

Sees Negotiations Far Off.

The bishop said the soviet attitude toward religion shows no change and that therefore the possibility of negotiations between the Vatican and the soviet were still far in the future. Nothing has yet been done toward the end, he said.

The presence in Rome of Archbishop Francesco Marmaggi, apostolic nuncio to Poland, gave rise to a belief that such discussions might be held in Warsaw should the soviet government agree. Karl Radek, editor of Izvestia, soviet official newspaper, is now in Warsaw. It was thought that he might be authorized to confer with the archbishop.

OXFORD GROUP AGAIN THREATENS ENGLISH CHURCH

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Sunday Dispatch gave front page prominence to what it called a Church of England sensation. The newspaper said the church was in danger of being split through dissension over a new campaign of "Buchmanism, or the Oxford group movement," which is rapidly gaining ground in this country.

The newspaper said the archbishop of Canterbury will receive at Lambeth palace 500 young men and women who will start out soon seeking converts in London and other centers.

"But the bishop of Durham, another leader of the Church of England," the newspaper article continued, "attacks the new teaching. He has the support of many other influential churchmen. He alleges scandals of 'spiritual exhibitionism,' seemingly luxury and extravagance. The darkest shadow on the movement, he says, is the trail of moral and intellectual wrecks which its progress leaves behind."

Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, founder of the Oxford group movement, is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of Muhlenberg college. He described the movement while visiting in New York as "the answer to all the world's problems in the time of crisis."

TAFT DEFENDS SCULPTURE AS AN ORPHAN ART

Blames Museum Directors for Its Neglect.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

A defense of sculpture, described as an orphan art in America, was presented yesterday by Lorado Taft, famous Chicago sculptor, at the Art day exercises which opened Illinois Achievement week at the Fair. Mr. Taft, who blamed museum directors for much of the lack of appreciation of sculpture, spoke at an exhibition of paintings and miniatures, the work of Illinois artists, in the Illinois Host house.

"We enter the museum," Mr. Taft said. "Before us is spread the wreckage of the centuries, verily a battlefield covered with fragments of once glorious creations; heads without noses, bodies without heads, broken reliefs and rusty bronzes. Rows of them. Shelves of them. Our directors do the best they can in combing all European junk shops for chips and shreds of curiosities. Meantime the true masterpieces must be represented by plaster casts.

A Question of Lighting.

"Another reason is that much of our sculpture is hideous. Meaningless ugliness is what they spell to the crowd. Soiled casts, poorly lighted, are so disagreeable that the management in desperation hides them in the basement. It is a great pity, for well cleaned and intelligently illuminated, these same pariahs might come again into their own and form the chief treasures of the collection. It is largely a question of lighting.

"An electric light bulb properly placed is capable of transfiguring a good cast at an expense of a fraction of a cent an hour."

Forty years ago was the golden era of sculpture in Chicago, Mr. Taft added, as the Columbian Exposition brought many famous artists here to study and to work. Among them he named Leonard Volk, pioneer sculptor of the west; George Gray Barnard, Leonard Crunelle, Charles Mulligan, Victor Holm, Carl Heber, Janet Scudder, Bessie Potter Vennoh, Julia Bracken Wendt, and others.

Mr. Taft was introduced by Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, chairman of the program, who in turn was presented by Mrs. Carter Harrison, chief hostess of the Host house.

Assails Indecent Exhibits.

Dr. Allen D. Albert, assistant to Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition, criticized exhibits like the Streets of Paris and Oriental Village, in analyzing the absence of musical, dramatic and other programs on the scale required to make them officially part of A Century of Progress.

"Soon after the Fair was opened," he declared, "I was shocked to see how the attendance clustered around the Streets of Paris, an exhibit which certainly could claim no cultural appeal.

"I felt that the American people, given the opportunity, would not pass up an educational exhibit for such as the Streets of Paris, Oriental Village and Miss America—trips to the bathroom, that's what I say they are.

"At first the attendance at Paris rolled up and up. Then as the weeks passed, the change came. Statistics will show that patronage at these and other Midway amusements of a like order has been going down, while at exhibits such as the Wings of a Century, it has been going up.

The exhibit of paintings and miniatures in the Host house will last through the week.

WM. RIDDIFORD DIES; EX-HEAD OF BRUSH FIRM

Elkhorn, Wis., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—William Riddiford, 75 years old, former president of the Riddiford Brush company of Chicago, was found dead today in the garage of his summer home on Lauderdale lakes near here. Death was attributed to heart disease.

Mr. Riddiford was born in Cambridgeshire, England, but while still young was taken to Brantford, Ont., where he was educated in the public schools. He learned the trade of brushmaker from his father and accompanied the business when it was moved from Brantford to Chicago in 1883. The following year, with two brothers, he succeeded to ownership of Riddiford Brothers, manufacturers of brushes and railway supplies.

He was a member of the Hamilton, Wilmette Country, and North Shore Golf clubs and made his home at the Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ruby Powner.

PLOW CHAMPIONS OF ILLINOIS ARE CHOSEN AT MEET

Homer Lapp, Wheatland, and Carl Shoger, Plainfield, won the plowing championships of Illinois, and Mrs. Laura Davis of Big Rock became the champion farm woman cook of the state yesterday in the annual competition and fair held on the Henry S. Long farm at Big Rock, 15 miles west of Aurora. The championships are the oldest competitions of their sort in the middle west and are held annually after a similar championship plowing contest at Plainfield, Ill.

Lapp became champion in the horse drawn plow class, driving a three horse team. Shoger won the championship in the tractor drawn class. Lapp made a record of 91 points out of a possible 100 and Shoger made 86 points. Each man was graded on the straightness, the depth, the neatness of the furrows he plowed. Each was given a half acre to plow in three hours. Both men used two bladed plows.

Fifteen thousand spectators gathered in the fine old grove of maple trees on the Long farm for the contests. After serving a "harvest" dinner the farm women held their cooking competitions. Mrs. Davis won 17 first prizes and five second prizes with her pies, cakes, and other dishes.

POLICE VETERAN DIES OF INJURIES IN AUTO CRASH

Five Deaths in Day Raise Year's Total to 750.

Policeman John S. Minehan, 52 years old, died at the Oak Park hospital early yesterday of injuries incurred Thursday evening when the automobile in which he was a passenger collided with another machine. The accident occurred at Roosevelt road and Harlem avenue, Forest Park.

Policeman Minehan was assigned to the Des Plaines street station. He had been a member of the police force for 30 years and during recent years had been stationed at the Randolph and Fulton street markets. His son, John R. Minehan, is a policeman assigned to the West North avenue station. John S. Minehan lived at 5148 West Ohio street.

Lung Punctured in Crash.

John Gonyales, 26 years old, 510 South Leavitt street, received a punctured lung, and three girl companions were cut and bruised early today when the automobile in which they were riding was struck at Flournoy and Francisco streets by a stolen car in which the driver was fleeing from the police. The injured were taken to the county hospital, where Gonyales' condition was pronounced grave.

Sergt. Edward Waller and his squad were pursuing the stolen car when the crash occurred. A number of bullets fired by the police had failed to halt the machine during a half mile chase. The driver, Michael Kelly, 21 years old, 2731 West Monroe street, was arrested, but a man who had been in the car with him escaped.

Year's Toll Rises to 750.

Minehan's death, with four others occuring yesterday, increased the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 750. The other victims:

Leo Wise, 33 years old, 1315 Campbell avenue, Des Plaines. Killed yesterday afternoon when an automobile in which he was riding collided with a truck at Mannheim road, north of La Grange Park. His wife, Lucille, and two other persons in the car were injured, but not severely. The driver of the truck was Roy Hageman, 1944 West Jackson boulevard.

Frances Molin, 9 year old schoolgirl, 6939 Wentworth avenue. Fatally injured when she fell off the rear of an ice truck and struck her head on the pavement in an alley in the rear of 6929 Wentworth avenue.

Donald Evans, 3 years old, son of Clay Evans, 5417 South Talman avenue. Died in South Town hospital of injuries he suffered Thursday when he was struck in front of his home by automobile driven by Peter Young, 5731 South Mozart street. Young was not held.

It Is Written

A HURSEN funeral! Can anything be sweeter to measure the depth of your own devotion! Because, here is the sweetness of unusual attention! The richness of unusual elegance! The beauty of unusual and inspiring environment! The unusual excellence and refinement of equipment, of music and of service!

All these are lavished on every "funeral by Hursen," large or small, regardless of price.

The fullness of the story will never be told. It has been carried to the skies so often—so very often—and written there for all time, "sweetly done"!

There is no charge whatever for the use of the famous Hursen Organ-Chapels. The charges for Hursen automobile equipment are no greater than the charges made elsewhere for less desirable equipment. Besides, Hursen funerals always cost less.

So, call Hursen of course!

New Industry for Chicagoland—Million Dollar Linen Manufacturing Plant

WILL BE FIRST OF ITS KIND IN UNITED STATES

To Be Erected on 7 Acre Site in Cicero.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

CHARLES A. BODY.

Chicagoland is to have a new industry—said to be the first of its kind in America — a million dollar textile plant for the manufacture of fine linens by a new, speedy and economical process. The Gold Shield Manufacturing company of Illinois of which Charles A. Body is president, is to erect a huge plant on a seven acre site in Cicero, bounded by West 28tn street, 61st court, 62d avenue and the Burlington right of way. In addition the company has an option on twelve and a half acres adjoining on the east for future expansion.

The new linen mill, to be the first of five units planned for various parts of the country, will have a capacity of from 80 to 160 tons of flax straw a day. The daily output of linens will approximate 30,000 yards with about the same yardage of burlap, sacking, etc. About 150 people will be employed in the operation of the Chicago unit, with the expectation of increasing this number materially as the plant develops.

Machinery from Germany.

One unit of the big plant will be a remodeled structure now on the site. For this, machinery of the latest type is being shipped from Germany, accompanied by expert mechanics and operators who will set the machines up and supervise their operation, so that production can get under way promptly. Additional machines will be ready for installation as soon as the new units are completed, which will be in about sixty days, it was stated.

For the first time, according to Mr. Body, it will be possible to make linens in America in competition with those manufactured abroad. The placing of contracts for the erection of the factory and the purchase of the machinery is the first step in the realization of more than twenty years of painstaking research and invention by him.

"For the last forty years Americans have been seeking a way to make linen in the United States that could be sold at a figure that would save the American people the millions of dollars spent annually for its importation," said Mr. Body.

Speeds Up Process.

The U. S. department of commerce, in a report on the development of an American linen industry, recently said: "The successful establishment of the industry in the United States depends chiefly upon the development of a process of retting that will relieve the flax grower of this class of work."

The present day mode for retting, that is, preparing the green flax straw for shredding, takes from six to ten weeks. Mr. Body states he accomplishes this by means of an exclusive chemical and drying process in a few minutes.

"My specially designed and patented machines actually produce as much flax 'tow' fiber in eight hours as thirty men working by the old hand method now in use in Europe, and produce twice the amount of tow from the same quantity of straw," said Mr. Body.

Nothing Wasted.

"Nothing is wasted; long straws, short straws, straws broken in threshing all are handled efficiently and economically. Even the 'shives,' chaff from the hard outer casing of the straw, are saved and made into more than a hundred and fifty different valuable by-products.

"Here is an industry which will mean millions to our country in savings and millions to the farmers who will get a good price for straw that heretofore has been left to rot.

"When the Cicero plant is in full operation we intend building branch factories in Canada, Oregon, South Dakota, and Georgia. It's a closed corporation, with no stock to sell and with our industrial program completely financed."

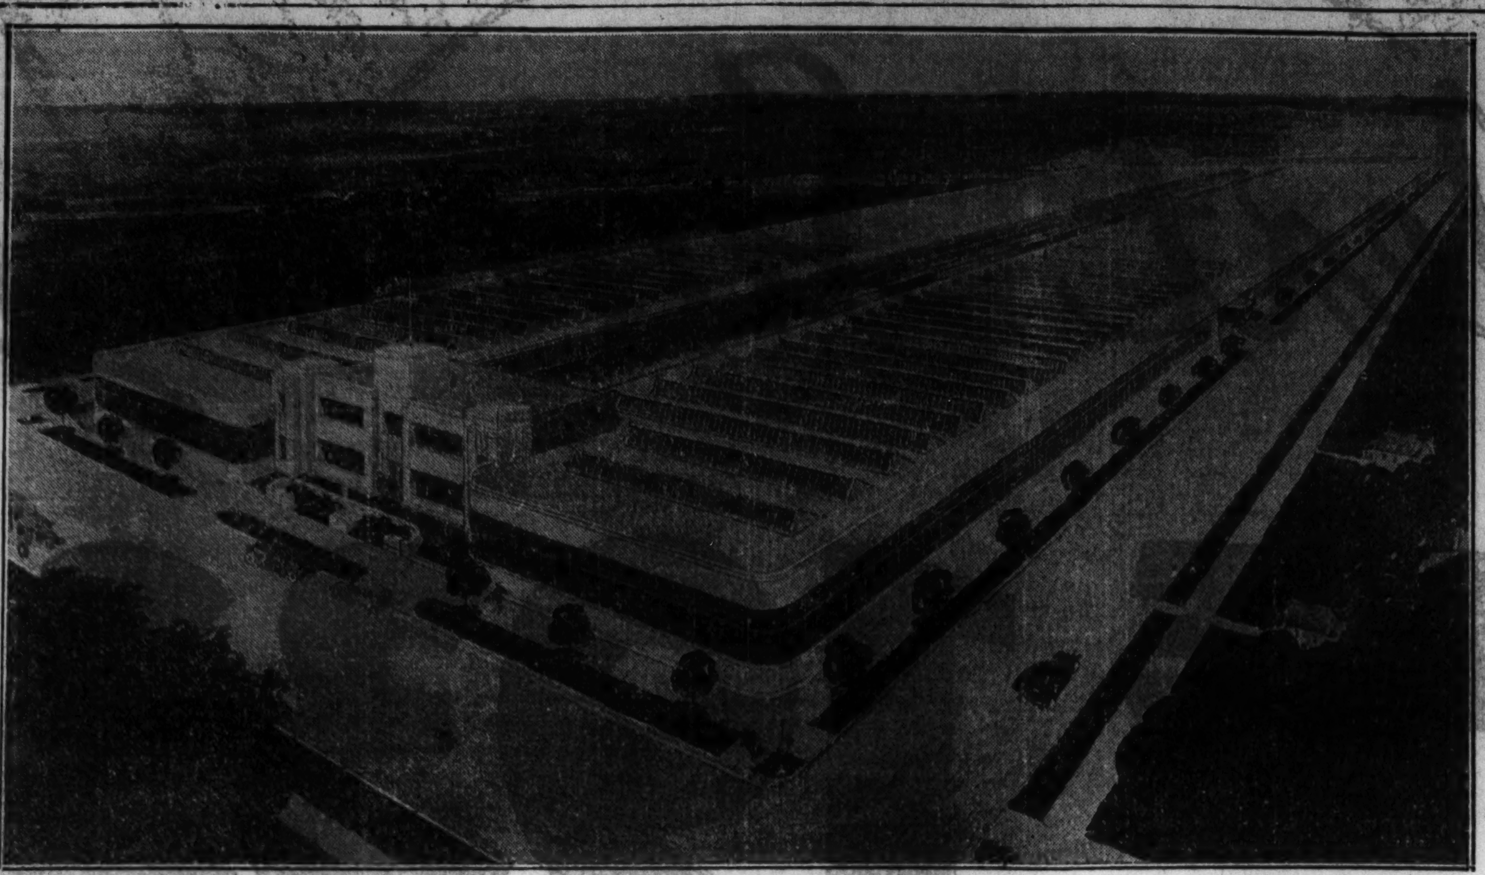
E. E. Boynton Is Secretary-Treasurer.

E. E. Boynton is secretary and treasurer of the Gold Shield Manufacturing company. J. C. Erickson, formerly with the Central Manufacturing district, is general manager. F. W. Welch is in charge of advertising and distribution.

Mr. Body, president, who lives at 554 Park avenue, River Forest, was born and educated in Germany. He has several degrees from Heidelberg university for chemistry, medicine, mining, geology, etc.

The Chicago Industrial Construction company, with offices in the Builders building, designed the new linen plant and will erect it.

PLAN BIG TEXTILE MILL FOR WESTERN SUBURB



Above is shown what is claimed will be America's first linen manufacturing plant, a million dollar establishment to be erected in Cicero. The two story office section will front on West 28th street. The seven acre site is bounded on the east by 61st court, on the west by 62d avenue, and on the south by the Burlington right of way. The Chicago Industrial Construction company designed and will erect the plant. H. E. Davis of that concern was designer. Austin Angell of 418 Scott street, Wheaton, made this pers pective.

ROSSETTER ASKS ADJUSTMENT OF REALTY DEBTS

He Calls It Essential to Prosperity.

GEORGE W. ROSSETTER.

National recovery under the "new deal" and reorganization of defaulted real estate are so closely associated, according to George W. Rossetter, that conditions will not get back to normal until the problems of the bondholders are settled and real estate again is placed on a basis permitting safe investment and a new era of building construction. He points out that reorganizations can be shortened and expenses reduced through coöperation of bondholders with all reputable committees.

As Mr. Rossetter was chosen to head Chicago's drive toward recovery under President Roosevelt's program, and as he is president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, as well as a member of several bondholders' committees, his observations command attention.

Adjustments Essential.

"It should be more widely recognized that adjustments of real estate indebtedness are essential if the country is to go ahead again at a normal rate of progress," he said yesterday. "It also should be recognized that the period required for these reorganizations can be greatly shortened and the expenses kept to a minimum only through coöperation.

"Not only the bondholders themselves, but manufacturers, business men, wage earners, home owners and, in fact, people of all types will suffer so long as real estate is in distress. In this period of national recovery, therefore, all should aid the reputable committees struggling with the complex financial problems of real estate. Coöperation is the spirit of the day and the demand of good citizenship."

Mr. Rossetter estimates that a billion dollars' worth of bonds are outstanding on Chicago buildings alone, with the total in America several times this amount. He believes that speedy reorganization of all properties in default and the subsequent release of credit for new and useful activities are of utmost importance in bringing about national recovery.

Up to Bondholders-Owners.

He puts it squarely up to the bondholders and property owners to bring about this desirable result through their coöperation with the committees endeavoring to reorganize the defaulted properties.

"Under our existing laws, there are only two courses of action that can be taken," said Mr. Rossetter. "Either all the bondholders and the owner must get together or the property must be put through foreclosure. The slow processes and costs of reorganization are chiefly due to this fact.

"Therefore, to speed up reorganization work and keep costs at a minimum, as a majority of committees is vigorously trying to do, the coöperation of all interested parties must be obtained.

"In the reorganizations on which I have worked, a large majority of the property owners has willingly coöperated with the committees. For thus reducing both the time and costs of reorganization, they have usually been given some equitable consideration in working out plans.

Some 100% Deposits.

"From the bondholders we've had a still higher degree of coöperation and in numerous instances the percentage of bonds deposited has run to 98 and occasionally 100 per cent. But for various reasons many committees have not been so fortunate and the result has been that their reorganizations have dragged out over long periods and in some cases have even had to be indefinitely postponed.

"A point which every bondholder should understand is that unless all of the bonds in an issue are deposited with the committee, foreclosure is necessary. Only through this legal procedure, is it possible to obtain good title and eliminate the claims of the nondepositing bondholders, who then receive their pro rata share of the price at which the property is bid in at the foreclosure sale, less their share of the expenses.

Called Sole Duty.

"It is the sole duty of the committee to represent only the depositing bondholders and its entire efforts should be to obtain the property for them upon the most favorable terms. Because of this fact, and because of the present unfavorable real estate market, the prices bid at foreclosure sales are necessarily small. So it is evident that nondepositing bondholders never profit by their obstinate course.

"The experience of the many bondholders' committees now functioning show that foreclosures frequently can be dismissed when the bondholders give full coöperation. That more reorganizations are not consummated without foreclosure, with a resultant saving of both time and costs, is due to the fact that there are almost always a few misdirected persons who try to obtain some advantage for themselves at the expense of the other bondholders.

"In their determination to realize to the fullest possible extent on the mortgagors' obligation to pay, they fail to understand that it is only by coöperation with the majority that they can obtain the largest measure of salvage.

Depends on Both.

"To the extent that the bondholders and owners coöperate with the committee, will time and money be saved for all, the property preserved and its earnings and value increased through capable supervision. Finally the committee is in the best possible position to secure loans for rehabilitation of the property, to engage expert management and to pay taxes for the public benefit.

"If reorganization committees were peculiar to the real estate bond field, there might perhaps be some reason for people misunderstanding their efforts and purposes. But such committees are now functioning in every field of finance."

McGuire & Orr to Have Main Office on Historic Corner

J. FRED McGUIRE.

McGuire & Orr, one of the pioneer north shore realty firms, established in 1893, have leased from Northwestern university the southeast corner of Davis street and Chicago avenue, in Evanston. They are remodeling the old structure and will use it for their main offices about Oct. 1. The loop office in the Title and Trust building, maintained for two decades, will be continued.

J. Fred McGuire said yesterday that he has given his personal attention to the firm during the forty years of its existence. His son, Walter J. McGuire, has assisted him since the death of his partner, Willard T. Orr, in 1912. They have operated a large sales department and conducted a first mortgage loan business, lending millions of dollars on north shore property. In all these years they've had only one foreclosure of a mortgage. Some of their clients, who are investors in mortgages, are the second generation to deal with the firm.

The building at Davis and Chicago recently leased, housed the grocery business of George Taylor for half a century. A grocery store was established about the time of the civil war by Thomas C. Hoag, who also maintained a private bank in the rear room, where the present State Bank and Trust company of Evanston, the oldest and largest bank in the suburb, had its origin.

In 1866 Mr. Hoag was made treasurer and business agent of Northwestern university. In the early 80's he decided to retire and move to California. He disposed of his business to one of his young clerks, George Taylor, who carried on the grocery trade in the same building for fifty years. Having reached the age of 77, Mr. Taylor also decided to retire on July 1st of this year. He sold the building and ground lease to Northwestern university. This property is directly across Davis street from the North Shore hotel.

START WORK ON TOWER SECTION OF FIELD BLDG.

Will Use 4,000 Tons of Structural Steel.

Work was started yesterday on the eighteen story tower unit of the forty-two story Field building, Chicago's largest office structure. With the completion of the 25th floor of the third unit on the Clark and Adams side the steel workers began erecting the first steel for the tower. The topmost piece of steel in the tower will be put in place on Oct. 27 if the present schedule goes through as planned. The total steel to be used in the tower is estimated at 4,000 tons.

The steel construction of the three units of the Field building has made records from the start. The first unit, at La Salle and Adams, erected on the site of the historic Home Insurance building, was completed in forty working days, or 320 hours. A total of 5,600 tons of steel and 195,000 rivets was used.

The average time taken for steel construction of similar proportions had been seventy-five days, or 600 hours, according to A. H. Hansen, who has charge of the steel erection. The first piece of steel was put in place Dec. 12, 1931. This unit was completed Feb. 8, 1932.

Steel for the second unit was started Aug. 1, 1932, and was completed Sept. 16, in thirty-five working days, or 280 hours, using 2,475 tons of steel and 87,500 rivets.

The third unit, now completed to the 25th floor, the start of the tower, was completed in fifty-seven working days, or 456 hours. There were 9,500 tons of steel used in this section and 295,000 rivets. Work was started June 26 and completed Sept. 14.

The name of Wirtz, Hubert & Little, one of Chicago's best known property management concerns, has been changed to Wirtz, Haynie & Ehrat, Inc., according to Arthur M. Wirtz, president. He states that the change has been made to represent better the personnel responsible for the firm's successful growth. The officers, directors and stockholders remain the same. Howard E. Haynie and William Ehrat are vice presidents, H. Lawrence Hendrickson is treasurer, and J. Arthur Friedlund is secretary.

The company, organized in 1927, devotes itself exclusively to real estate management. Its directors are all active officers who personally supervise all activities. The firm has under its management today nearly eighty buildings, containing approximately 3,000 units. Its main office is in the Belmont hotel building at 3152 Sheridan road.

Yesterday he signed a lease, through the office of John J. Ready & Co., for the premises at 4136 Sheridan road, where he'll open the "Red Grange 77 club." Associated with Grange in his night club venture is Roy Keller.

The club will be on the ground floor of the Seville hotel and was leased from N. D. Zaritzky for two years, with option for a longer period. According to John Ready, he'll have the "77" open within three weeks. Various sporting pictures and mementoes, particularly of football, and including an exhibition of all the trophies won by Red since his first days at Illinois, will be on display.

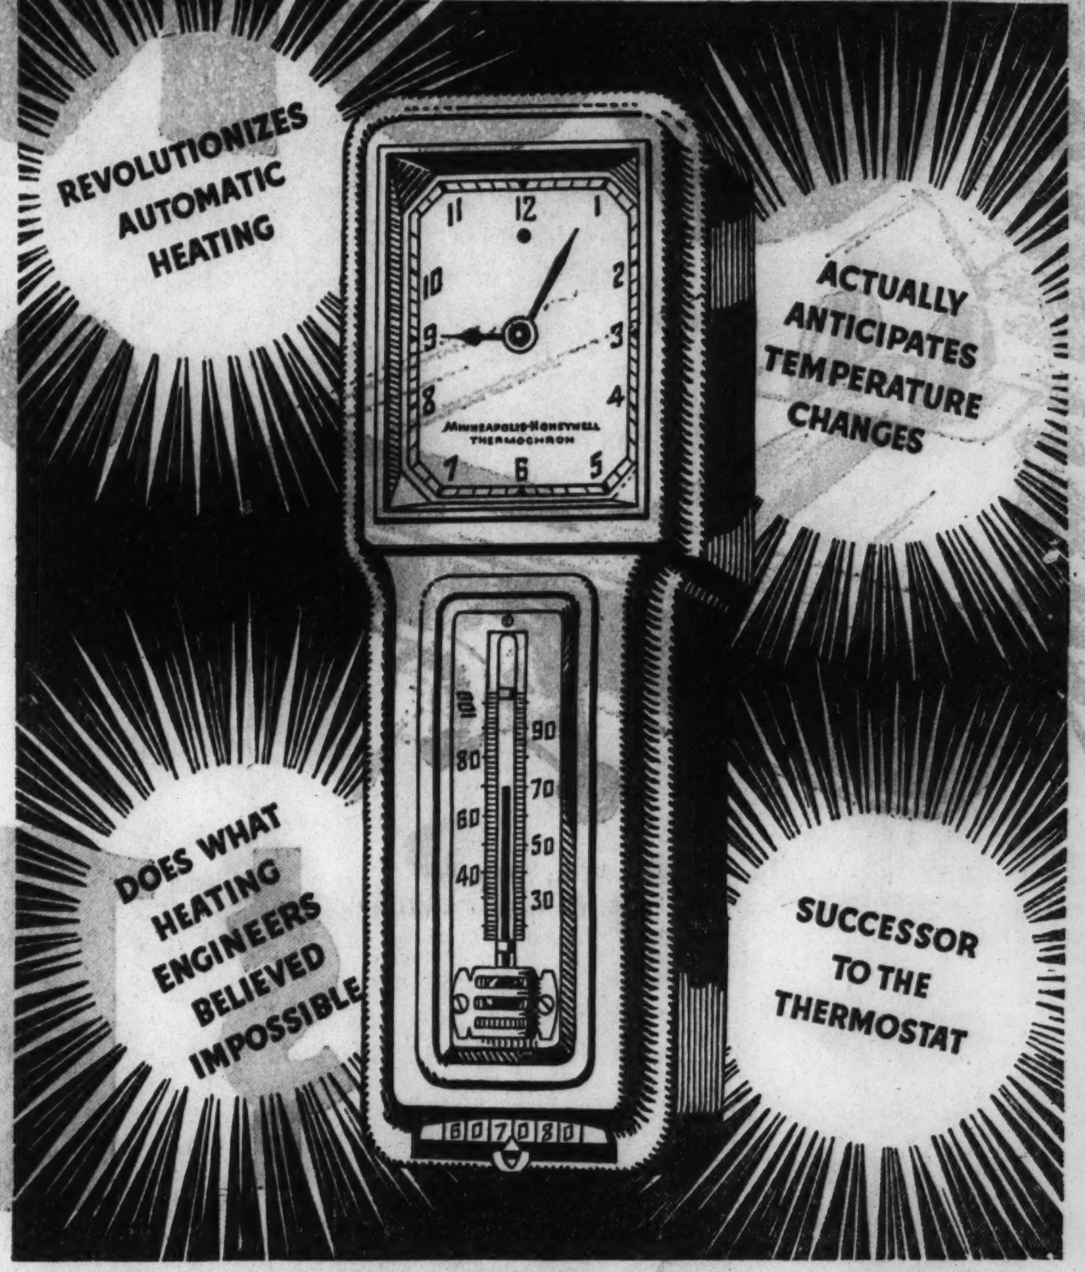
The lease is for 30 years on a percentage basis.



REVOLUTIONIZES AUTOMATIC HEATING
ACTUALLY ANTICIPATES TEMPERATURE CHANGES
DOES WHAT HEATING ENGINEERS BELIEVED IMPOSSIBLE
SUCCESSOR TO THE THERMOSTAT
MINNEAPOLIS-HONEYWELL THERMOCHRON

SEE THIS AMAZING NEW THERMOCHRON
Before Buying Any Heating Plant

● Go to your heating dealer today—see how this revolutionary new Minneapolis-Honeywell invention supersedes the thermostat as the last word in efficient, economical control of automatic oil, gas and coal heating systems.

LEARN THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A THERMOSTAT AND THE THERMOCHRON. See how the Thermochron forever eliminates unhealthful, fuel-wasting temperature variations—heretofore unavoidable due to the inability of even the best heating plants to deliver full heat volume, or shut it off, the instant the ordinary thermostat clicks "on" or "off." As you know from experience, there has been a time lag before the fire slows down or gets up speed during which the temperature often coasts several degrees over or under the set mark.

See how this ingenious device anticipates the coasting action inherent in all heating plants by pre-timing the thermostatic on or off action. In addition to unusually close, positive thermostatic action, every half hour—48 times a day—the Thermochron automatically "feels" the heat trend —even-izing the heat-flow before the furnace has a chance to lag.

CUTS FUEL BILLS 10% TO 30%
See, too, how the Thermochron can be set once and for all to turn down the heat at bedtime to a comfortable sleeping temperature—to fire up automatically before you get up, letting you sleep an extra hour. By thus saving heat during sleeping hours, by preventing overheating daytimes, the Thermochron cuts fuel bills as much as 10 to 30%.

With Thermochron control your family will be protected against colds and other illnesses caused by uneven heating. You will no longer be annoyed by "Gold 70" or air stratification.

FOR ALL HEATING PLANTS
The Thermochron costs only a little more than a conventional thermostat—yet it may save you the entire cost of your new heating plant within a few years. It is already standard on many late oil, gas and coal furnaces—it can be installed on your present plant.

ESTONIAN ARMY BACKS DRIVE TO SET UP 'DICTATOR'

Young Lawyer Leader of Reform Movement.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Sept. 23.—Artur Sirk, would-be Hitler or Mussolini of Estonia, received THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent tonight in his little law office in the back street of the capital. Outside a dozen or more peasants were waiting for legal advice while Sirk expounded or rather dodged expounding the program of the war veterans' movement. This movement is behind the referendum to amend the constitution in order to establish an authoritative rule in the republic. Many believe there will be a coup d'état if the proposal to amend the constitution is defeated.

On the matter of a possible coup, Sirk, of course, was silent. Serious revolutionaries do not discuss their plans in advance, and then, too, there is the martial law under which Estonia is now governed to be considered.

Leader Is Under 30.

At first sight Sirk does not seem to possess the stuff of which revolutionary dictators are made, but appearances may be deceptive. Few who saw Adolf Hitler a year ago would have prophesied that he would soon be the undisputed head of Germany. Sirk is a young man, probably under 30. He is not the blustering, military type but appears to be rather a shrewd, cautious lawyer. His chief care seemed to be not to commit himself on anything.

Asked to explain the program of his movement, Sirk replied:

"We have no program. Our only purpose is to reform the constitution. After that we will see."

He did, however, admit later in a conversation, which dodged all around the real subject, that the war veterans believed the interests of the state came first and afterward he interests of individuals and business.

This apparently is good Hitlerite doctrine and approaches closely to Mussolini's corporative state.

Called Figurehead.

Best informed opinion in Estonia, where few who are well informed care to talk for public consumption, it that Sirk is not the real leader, but is a figurehead for more experienced politicians. He has a reputation of being a good orator, which is rare among Estonians, but he has not so far displayed much original thought or organizing ability.

There is every possibility that if his movement succeeds he will be pushed aside by stronger men who are sincerely desirous of reforming the present too democratic government of the country on modern lines and giving the executive real power to govern. Among these are said to be Konstantin Pats. He has been the state elder, or president, several times and is the grand old man of Estonia who is always called in time of trouble.

At present he is living in retirement on his farm near Tallinn.

Closely associated with Pats is Gen. Laidoner, military liberator in the war with Russia, and who is spoken of as a possible temporary dictator should things get out of hand.

Foreign Chief Has Plan.

It is certain that if Sirk's movement wins at the polls Pats will be the first state elder with presidential powers. If the referendum should fail some reform, it is conceded, must come.

Prof. Ants Piip, foreign minister, has a plan for reform within the present constitution by which the president should be elected by parliament instead of nominated by the chairman of parliament. The reform also proposes he should continue in office throughout the life of parliament, and nominate a responsible cabinet.

He would also cut the pay of parliamentary members in half without reducing the numbers as proposed by Sirk. Few realist politicians, however, believe this would go far enough. They argue it leaves the president still at the mercy of party changes and that he would still be a purely political appointee without real independent powers.

Backed by Army.

Further inquiries about the attitude of the army indicate that practically all officers and noncommissioned officers, all of whom are professional soldiers, are supporters of Sirk's reforms. The home guard also is said solely to favor them.

If the present law, by which the reform of the constitution may be passed by 35 per cent of the total voters, is allowed to remain and the referendum is defeated, probably there will be no trouble. But in the event parliament, as threatened, raises the necessary quota to 50 per cent and the war veterans' poll says 40 per cent, there may be an attempt to put the change in execution by force.

If so, only a show of force would be necessary, as there is no effective force behind the present form of government.

THREE MILITARY GROUPS TO MEET HERE THIS WEEK

The Associations of Military Surgeons of the United States, the National Guard association, and the holders of the Military Order of the World War will convene in Chicago this week as the first military prelude to the American Legion convention, which will open Oct. 2. The surgeons' convention will begin tomorrow at the Congress hotel and will last through Wednesday. Among the speakers will be Maj. W. A. Evans of the medical auxiliary of the Illinois National Guard, who is health editor of THE TRIBUNE.

Both the other conventions will begin on Thursday, continuing through next Sunday. The National Guard association will meet at the Drake hotel. The military order convention will be held at the Congress.

More than 1,000 delegates in all are scheduled to attend the three conventions. Each convention will include several military ceremonies by troops at Camp Whistler on the World's Fair grounds.

AWARDS DIVORCE ON CONFESSION IN HUSBAND'S NOTE

Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy yesterday granted an uncontested divorce to Mrs. Phyllis Davis, 38 years old, 700 Rosewood avenue, Winnetka, from George L. Davis, an accountant. Mrs. Davis charged adultery.

The court procedure was unusual in that Mrs. Davis was the only witness and the name of the corespondent was not mentioned. In lieu of corroborating testimony, attorneys for Mrs. Davis introduced a note written by Davis on Aug. 31 in which he admitted his wife's accusations of infidelity. The note read as follows:

"You were right, Phil. I have had repeated indiscretions with other women, both here in Chicago and elsewhere. I regret, dear, that I haven't turned out to be the kind of husband you deserved."

Judge La Buy agreed with the attorneys that further testimony was not necessary.

Mrs. Davis was awarded $4,200 a year as alimony and support for five minor children.

Bandit Who Shot Self in Critical Condition

Stanley Wonsowski, 18 years old, 5106 West 32d street, the bandit who fired a shot into his own head when he was cornered in an attempted holdup Thursday evening, was in a critical condition at the Bridewell hospital. Physicians said that there was a small chance that he might recover. Wonsowski is suffering from five other bullet wounds, none of them serious, suffered in an exchange of shots with Otto and Rudolph Miller, owners of a store at 4020 West 26th street, where the attempted robbery took place.

U. S. WILL BUILD WATERWAY DAM, LOCK, AT ALTON

Weak Link in Channel to Be Strengthened.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Prospects for strengthening the weak link in the nine foot waterway chain between New Orleans and Chicago have brightened greatly during the last few weeks, with announcements of plans for rapidly improving the upper Mississippi river, from St. Louis to St. Paul.

The weak link in the gulf-lakes route is between St. Louis and Grafton, where the Illinois river empties into the upper Mississippi, forty miles north of St. Louis.

Long Delay on Project.

While the state of the Illinois was struggling to complete the Illinois section of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway to a nine foot depth, and even after the federal government took over the project and started it towards final completion, nothing was being done to connect this nine foot channel with the existing nine foot channels south of St. Louis.

The stretch of forty miles between the mouth of the Illinois and St. Louis came under the head of upper Mississippi river improvements—then being prosecuted as a six foot proposition. Consequently there was no provision made to break this six foot bottle neck until a year or two ago and work has proceeded slowly.

Announcement Is Made.

Now comes the announcement, through the Rock Island offices of the war department, that of the twenty-six lock and dam projects under consideration to create a nine foot channel in the upper Mississippi, St. Louis to St. Paul, one is to be located at Alton, Ill.

The proposed location of this dam is about two miles above the mouth of the Missouri river, some sixteen miles north of St. Louis and twenty-four miles south of Grafton. According to preliminary sketches it is said this dam would overcome a fall of twenty feet in the Mississippi.

Britain Refuses to Receive Ceylon's Revisionist Envoys

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The state council of Ceylon has received a cablegram from Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, colonial secretary, refusing to receive a deputation of five members preparing to sail for London to advance a claim for revision of the constitution. Sir Graeme Thomson, governor of the island, has left for London at the request of Sir Philip, presumably to discuss the constitution.

The ceremony was performed by Judge Francis B. Allegretti of the Superior court. Marchi, who lives at 394 Ravine drive, Highland Park, won an uncontested divorce Friday in the Superior court from Mrs. Olga Marchi of Milan, Italy. He testified that she refused to accompany him to America in 1929. Miss Chronis is a daughter of Andrew Chronis, an official of John Raklios & Co., restaurant operators.

IRISH COPS SWING CLUBS; 20 HURT AT PARTY RALLY

LIMERICK, Irish Free State, Sept. 23.—(AP)—About 20 persons were treated for injuries suffered tonight in a series of riots attending a big demonstration of the United Ireland of people threw missiles from side government of President de Valera.

Wild excitement prevailed as Gen. Owen O'Duffy and former President William T. Cosgrave, heads of the party, addressed a large gathering. During the evening a contingent of blue shirts [national guardsmen] arrived. The national guard recently was ordered suppressed by President de Valera as an illegal organization.

Shouting "Up the republic," knots party, formed recently to oppose the streets as a long procession moved to the place of meeting. Civic guards frequently charged into the groups wielding batons, and finally restored order. While the meeting was in progress there were more skirmishes on the outskirts of the gathering.

After the meeting there were further baton charges and stones were thrown at buses conveying people to their homes. Several civic guards were injured, none seriously. Most of those taken to the hospital suffered scalp wounds.

Blue Shirt Officer Shot.

DINGLE, County Kerry, Irish Free State, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Capt. Martin Fitzgerald of the national guard [blue shirts] remained in a serious condition today from a bullet wound he received yesterday when an attack was made on a guard meeting. The shot was fired from a group of men who shouted for an Irish republic as they attacked the meeting.

De Valero Reviews Troops.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Sept. 23.—President de Valera found himself in an unusual position today when, as head of the state, he reviewed the entire Free State army upon its return from a fortnight's maneuvers. The army was created by the government of former President Cosgrave, and its first active service was to suppress the civil war in which De Valera was the leader of the anti-government forces. Most of the officers and men who saluted De Valera today took part in the civil war against him.

De Valera after today's parade spoke a tribute to the army's loyalty and discipline and congratulated all ranks on their endurance during the trying maneuvers and long marches with full war kits.

"You may well be proud that you are soldiers," he said. "I would be glad if need for armies was a thing of the past, but we live in times when men and nations are unwilling to respect the rights of others and are ready to defy by force the authority of law, domestic and international.

"When force is used against a legitimate authority that authority will continue to need the support of force. But force thus exercised in the cause of justice and order is force ennobled."

Loses 12 lbs. in 3 Weeks

TRUTH is stranger than fiction! Here is an utterly new way to lose fat—without dangerous drugs, violent exercise, weakening physics or starvation diets, and leaves no disfiguring flabbiness nor wrinkles.

How This Treatment Acts

Shadowfoam is a new concentrated form of the famous Vichy and Kissingen Reducing Waters. The value of this treatment was made public by the late Dr. Wm. T. Cathell of Baltimore. In a recent address he stated: "Vichy and Kissingen not only reduce over-fatness but also tend to permanently correct fat-making activity."

Shadowfoam's action is gentle and without dangerous after-effects. As excess fat disappears, you feel more youthful and vigorous, the contours of your face and body become graceful and symmetrical. Thousands are dropping old-style reducing treatments for this new method.

A representative of Shadowfoam Co., Battle Creek, Mich., will be in our Drug Department on the Main Floor (State Street Store) to consult with and give free advice regarding excess weight.

He jumped to the wrong conclusion

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

One of the most surprising letters I have received in a long time came recently. A man wrote to ask why I had "abandoned the low-price field."

We found the writer of that letter. He had used only Ford cars; his present car had served him seven years; he hoped sometime to replace it with a new Ford;—but, as he saw the Ford V-8's grow thicker on the streets, and noted their style and action, he just naturally jumped to the conclusion that these must be expensive cars, and that therefore "Ford had gone out of the low-price field."

Besides that, "did not this new Ford have 8 cylinders?" "Did not that prove that the car was not low-priced—for are not all 8's expensive?"

Hence his letter. He complained that after 30 years of making cars for the low-price field I had deserted my old customers for those who were used to spending more money.

Of course, a price-list soon showed him his mistake.

He was helped to his hasty conclusion by seeing a new class of people riding in Ford cars the last four or five years. It was once believed that no one who could afford a high-priced car would use a low-priced car.

But that has changed. The matter of value now comes first, the matter of price second. America used to buy price-tags, now it demands quality.

That explains why tens of thousands of Americans who can afford to pay higher prices, prefer to buy the Ford at a lower price, because in the Ford V-8 they get the quality, the performance, the comfort, the style which are supposed to be exclusive in very high-priced cars.

To be low-priced, a car is not necessarily cheap. A really cheap or inferior car never could become low-priced. Not enough of them would be bought to make a low price possible.

That means that to keep my prices low I must remain in the high-quality field, for it is impossible to have the price right unless the car is right too.

What I have done is to adapt the expensive V-type 8-cylinder engine to the low-price field, making it simple, and less expensive to own and drive than the 4-cylinder cars were.

There is one thing I would make clear to my friends:—my field is the low-price field and will always remain so.

HARRIS QUITS; DETROIT SEEKS NEW MANAGER

KNOCKING THE FROSH AROUND—HOW WILDCATS DO IT

Bill Lehnhart, varsity back, hopes there will be an opening in the freshman line as he takes the ball in Northwestern university's first test of the football season yesterday at Dyche stadium. Most of the time there were gaps through which the varsity galloped, for the Wildcats piled up a 44 to 0 score in an impressive exhibition that bodes ill for Iowa when Northwestern opens its Big Ten schedule against the Hawkeyes at Soldiers' field next Saturday afternoon. Ollie Olson and Chilly Sutton were the scoring leaders with two touchdowns apiece.

SOX WHIP INDIANS, 6-5, IN 11TH; APPLING IS GOAT, THEN HERO

Errors Hurt Tietje, but Heving Comes to His Rescue.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.—The White Sox this afternoon did a lot of staggering around before they garnered dividends from some good pitching by Leslie Tietje and some really swell pitching by Joe Heving, but they conquered the Indians in the eleventh, 6 to 5.

Luke Appling was the offensive hero and, for many anxious moments, the defensive goat. He made one of those famed college tries of his on a pop fly in the eighth and let the tying run romp home. But he made three hits. The first two drove in runs, and the third, in the eleventh, was the determining factor in deciding the contest. Joining Luke in the offensive heroics was the just restored invalid, Al Simmons, who made a triple and a single to figure in two scoring enterprises. It was he who ran in with the winning run.

They're Near 200 Hits.

Appling lifted his season hit total to 192 and Simmons got his total up to 197. With four games to play, therefore, the Sox have a chance to finish with two owners of 200 hit totals, a magnificent and unusual accomplishment.

The fact that the Sox had 15 runners left on bases should give you some idea of how many times the Sox were disappointed. And the fact that the Indians made only four hits off Tietje in five innings and one legitimate single off Heving in six innings should give you a notion how hard the pitchers worked. Heving was the victim of Appling's grotesque efforts in the eighth but eventually had no complaint, for as a result of the lapse Heving was credited with the victory, whereas the decision otherwise would have gone to Tietje.

The game was won in the following manner: Simmons reached base for the fourth time when he walked to start the eleventh. Appling singled to right, putting Simmons on third, and took second on the throw to third. Kress fanned and Swanson was given an additional pass, filling the bases. Berry flied to right and Simmons scored after the catch. Burnett threw out Heving.

Indians Score First.

Opportunity knocked at both doors in the second inning and the Indians let her in to the extent of making one run. In the Sox half Simmons landed on Hale's bad throw, paused while Appling flied to Averill, and stopped at third on Kress' double to center. English bounced to Hale and Simmons was out at the plate, Hale to Pytlak. Berry fouled to Pytlak. With one down in the Indian half Hale doubled to right and Ferrell walked. Pytlak singled to center, Hale scoring and Ferrell reaching third. Harder fanned and English threw out Porter.

The Sox tied the score in the third without the aid of hit or error. Tietje and Stoneham walked and moved up on Haas' sacrifice. Dykes was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. The runners held on while Simmons popped to Knickerbocker. Appling walked, forcing in Tietje. Then Kress flied to Porter.

Sox Infield Falls Apart.

Harder's wildness was a bad example for Tietje, as revealed in the Indians' half of the third. And Tietje was pushed along in his embarrassment by Dykes and English. With one down, Burnett and Averill walked. Trosky singled to right, Burnett scoring and Averill reaching third. Hale bounced to Dykes, who had an easy play at the plate, but dropped the ball. Averill scored and Trosky and Hale were safe.

Ferrell grounded to Appling, who tossed to English for the start of what appeared to be an easy double play. English caught the ball to force Hale, but in trying to throw to first, hit the ground half way between the bases. Kress, with some skill, could have caught the grounder throw by English, but if you have been following the Sox you know how those things are. Anyhow, Trosky scored while Kress was chasing the ball. Pytlak bounced to Kress.

Well, Well, an Honest Run!

In the fifth Simmons and Appling produced the first run of the game in which passes or errors did not figure. With one down, Al socked a triple to the flagpole in left center and scored on Luke's single to center. Appling went to second while Harder was throwing out Kress, and the side was out when English, at-

Greentree Is 14-13 Winner in Open Polo

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Coming from behind with a story book finish in the last period, Greentree took the first game of the national open polo tournament from Templeton at the Meadow Brook club this afternoon. The score was 14 to 13. Ivor Balding, who picked up a great drive by his brother Gerald, a second before the final bell rang, sent the winning goal through the posts.

Four Greentree goals and as much excitement as the ordinary game packs into its full length were contained in the last period. All afternoon the crowd of 4,500, which came bundled in raincoats and carrying umbrellas against the occasional showers, had watched Templeton, playing superb polo, keep control of the game. Greentree had constantly threatened, but never had been able to overcome the advantage gained by Templeton when it scored four goals in the opening period. Greentree never had come within a goal of the leaders until that final chukker.

Whitney's Goals Tie Score.

Entering the eighth, Greentree trailed by two goals, 12 to 10. Play worked into a corner of the field near the Templeton goal. Cecil Smith backed the ball out from there and Jock Whitney poked it through the goal to make the score 12-11. From the next throw-in, Whitney sent a shot wide of the posts. Ivor Balding drove the ball out of a tangle of players and as it was rolling past the posts Whitney leaned wide on his saddle and shot the sphere through to tie the score.

A moment later Whitney, riding Socks, which has been his best pony for the last two seasons, came popping out in front again to take a pass from Gerald Balding and carry it on with three careful strokes to the goal. This put Greentree in front for the first time during the game. Whitney had made costly misses earlier in the game, but he more than made up with that dash down the field.

Templeton Fights Back.

That didn't finish the excitement, however. Templeton, defending the title won last year, was not going down in defeat quite yet. Stewart Iglehart, who had played beautifully throughout the afternoon, backed a ball down from the throw-in and he and Cocie Rathborne came on it together. Rathborne's mallet flicked and the ball traveled straight on a line from 50 yards out to tie the score at 13-13.

With the marker on the time clock moving rapidly to the close of the period, the sides lined up again and the ball came out toward the Templeton goal. Gerry Balding, riding at an angle, slammed hard under his pony and the ball, from almost the sixty yard mark, rolled toward the goal. Ivor Balding galloped hard to be sure there was no miss and tapped it through. Before the teams could line up again the final bell had rung.

Guest Plays Great Polo.

The game was a hard one for Templeton to lose. The team which last

CUBS WHIP REDS, 7-1; HARTNETT HITS HOMER WITH BASES FULL

Bush Wins No. 19; 27th Defeat for Derringer.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs lost no time yesterday making it a bit more definite that they'll at least get third place money out of the world series pot. They transacted their afternoon's business in the brief space of 79 minutes, the action being made up of nine innings in which the tail end Cincinnati Reds assimilated their 91st defeat of the season. The score was 7 to 1, a figure that made Guy Bush's 19th victory a mere romp.

Of greater interest than Bush's progress toward his coveted 20 mark was the involuntary step taken in the opposite direction by Paul Derringer, once a budding great with the Cardinals. The luckless pitcher departed from the scene in the sixth just before Gabby Hartnett settled everything by uncorking a homer wtih a full house. When Derringer went away he carried with him his 27th defeat of the year, two under the National league record compiled by Vic Willis with the Braves in 1905 and one over the American league mark. The latter belongs to John Townsend and Bob Groom, both ex-Senators.

He Is O. K. for Five Innings.

The hapless Derringer was quite a worker for five innings, the Cubs being limited to two hits, one of them being good for a run. Apparently that effort exhausted the tall boy. In the sixth he was noisily greeted by four hits in a row, a matter that caused his banishment. Ray Kolp took over the job, filled the bases in response to orders, and then turned red in the face when he saw Hartnett's 16th homer of the season go whistling out of the park.

Bush was in control of his fifth shutout until he had one man out of the way in the ninth. Then Jim Bottomley ruined that part of Bush's performance by hitting a home run into the right field bleachers. However, the shutout possibility had been sustained almost to the finish mainly because of brilliant fielding by Billy Herman. He stole three certain hits, two directly back of second and one almost back of first base.

Reds Get Hits, No Runs.

About the only pleasure the Reds derived from their work was that they had an edge during the first few innings. Adams opened the battle with a single to left, but the next three batters did nothing. Morrissey popped up with a single in the second, but it came after two were out, so proved harmless. Bottomley and Lombardi also contributed single in the fourth, but Koenig ended the inning by tossing out Morrissey. Up to this point the Cubs hadn't been able to get anything even resembling a hit off Derringer.

The first Cub hit was a triple by Koenig to open the fourth. Billy Herman made it easy for him to score by slamming a long fly to Moore. Cuyler then was hit by a pitched ball, but Babe Herman forced him and Demaree bounced neatly to Bluege. The next Cub hit was a bunt which Jurges beat out after two were deposed in the fifth. Bush ended this inning by fanning.

Koenig Starts Big Sixth.

The big rumpus in the sixth started with Koenig's single to right. Billy Herman hit to the same spot. Cuyler bunted, but Derringer took a nap before picking up the ball, so Ki beat it for a hit, filling the bases. Babe Herman singled to left, scoring Koenig and W. Herman. Derringer was excused and Kolp replaced him.

Demaree did his bit by sacrificing, putting Cuyler on third and Babe Herman on second. Kolp was told to give Grimm an intentional pass, filling the bases and making a double play possible. The strategy was good enough, but it didn't work. Hartnett hoisted a fly into the wind and the last seen of the ball was when it bounced out of the right field bleacher into the street beyond. Cuyler, the Babe and Grimm preceded Hartnett over the plate.

After the Hartnett blast the show was conducted in orderly fashion, barring the ninth inning home run with which Bottomley cheated Bush of his fifth shutout of the season.

Esseff Fails in Marquette; At Top Wins

BY FRENCH LANE.

Another western turf idol, Esseff, which had won seven races and finished second twice in ten starts, was tumbled from her throne in the Marquette handicap at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Before 17,000 racegoers gathered for the last day of racing at the Crete track Esseff lumbered home—not first, not second nor third in the five horse stake race, but fourth.

At Top, carrying a feather impost of 96 pounds, from the stable of Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago, was the winner. She came with a mighty dash in the stretch to wear down Late Date and win by a length. Late Date managed to beat Glynson by a head for second money in one of the most exicting finishes of the Lincoln Fields season.

She's Well Whipped.

Esseff wasn't even near the leaders. She was beaten by five lengths by Glynson. In a few more jumps she might have bene last, for Dusky Devil, the last horse, was putting on quite a rally at the end.

The Marquette, which was a dash at a mile and a furlong carrying a gross value of $2,950, was run over a muddy track. The sun was shining brightly and a strong wind was blowing. It all tended to dry out the track just enough to make it more difficult.

Despite the tough going At Top's race was most creditable. The first mile was reeled off in 1:42 4-5 and the Nash filly rounded out the mile and an eighth in 1:57 1-5.

Winner Lags At Start.

Early in the race it didn't appear so good for At Top. She rounded the clubhouse bend last in the field. Glynson was leading, Late Date was running second, Dusky Devil, third and Esseff, fourth.

At Top didn't improve her position much going down the backstretch, where Glynson and Late Date were staging a desperate struggle for the lead. But when they rounded the bend and started into the homestretch At Top began to move up like the wind. She conquered Esseff and Dusky Devil and began to move along toward the leaders.

Late Date conquered Glynson in a brisk struggle and moved into the lead. She was leading a sixteenth out from the finish and her backers began to cheer. At Top was running over horses by this time. Jockey Ruder brought her up on the outside to conquer Late Date just a few strides from the wire.

No. 2 For Nash Boys.

At Top paid $16.50 to win, $7.08 to place, and $4.08 to show. Late Date was at $4.00 to place and $3.38 to show. Glynson paid $5.82 to show.

At Top, a daughter of American Flag-Lovers Lane II., has developed into a real iron horse. She has made 21 starts this year. She won the Jefferson Park Derby in New Orleans in January. She has been running after good horses throughout the spring, summer, and autumn, and when weighted lightly she has always given a good account of herself.

RESIGNATION OF TIGER PILOT EFFECTIVE AT END OF SEASON

Navin, Surprised, Has No Word on Successor.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Explaining that he felt somebody else should have a chance to see what he could do with the Detroit Tigers, Manager Stanley R. [Bucky] Harris today submitted his resignation to Frank J. Navin, the club's president.

Navin reluctantly announced Harris' resignation at the close of today's game with the St. Louis Browns, adding that he had been unable to persuade Harris to change his mind.

Harris said he was resigning because he felt it only fair to Navin that he step aside and give some one else an opportunity to direct the team. "Perhaps he can do better," said Harris, referring to his successor who Navin said he had not yet selected.

Hopes to Stay in League.

"I am not going to sit around and blame the breaks," Harris said. "I dislike to sever my connection with the Tigers, but under the circumstances feel that it is the only fair thing to do."

Harris said he had no plans for next season, but hoped to remain in the American league.

The Tigers' retiring manager came to Detroit in 1928, succeeding George Moriarty as the team's pilot. Although he won two American league championships and one world's series with the Washington Senators before coming to Detroit, Harris was unable to make any headway in his efforts to give Detroit a winning team.

Finishes Fifth in Best Year.

During the five seasons Harris has managed the Tigers he has virtually rebuilt the team. Despite his efforts fifth is the highest the Tigers have finished under him. That was in 1932.

"When the current season began," Harris said today, "I honestly believed we had a club that would finish in third place and no lower than fourth, at least. We had what seemed a fine pitching staff and a crop of likely looking youngsters at various stations in the outfield and infield.

"With this talent to help us I felt we could beat out the Macks and Indians, and still feel we would have done so had not the breaks gone against us. The loss of Schoolboy Rowe has been a severe blow to the team.

No Word on Successor.

Rowe, who showed great promise as a pitcher earlier in the season, developed an ailing arm and was unable to play during the last three months.

Navin said that Harris' resignation had come to him so suddenly that he had not had time to consider candidates for the managership.

CAN SENATORS BEAT GIANTS' FOUR ACES IN SHOWDOWN?

The New York Giants will go into the world series against Washington with four aces—a pretty tough hand for the Senators to beat. Hubbell, Schumacher, Fitzsimmons and Parmelee, the Big Four of the National league race, will do the pitching for the New York entry, with Hubbell likely to start the opening game at the Polo grounds Oct. 3.

Schulte Rounds Out Big and Tough Senator Outfield

[This is the sixth of a series of sketches of the Washington Senators, who will meet the New York Giants in the world series.]

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.—Fred Schulte, native of Belvidere, Ill., and still a resident of that fair city, rounds out, with Heinie Manush and Goose Goslin, a rugged, bonecrusher outfield of the type that Manager Joe Cronin wanted when he accepted the job of managing the Washington Senators. Cronin likes 'em big and tough, able to stay in there day after day, and if he had to probably would sacrifice a little talent for ruggedness. Fortunately for the Senators, no such sacrifice is necessary in the case of Schulte and his partners.

Schulte, who is 29, has plenty of speed, despite the fact he flirts with the scales when they are set for 200 pounds.

Becomes Demon with Bat After Joining Senators.

Freddy's lifetime batting average prior to this year was .296, but as soon as he joined up with Washington he became a demon with the bat and for the first couple of months was either leading the league or challenging the leader. He since has leveled off considerably, but all season he has made things uncomfortable for pitchers, especially those whose control was such that they could not pitch to his reputed weaknesses.

Until he went to the Senators this year with Goslin and Pitcher Wally Stewart in a deal involving Carl Reynolds, Sam West, and Lloyd Brown, Schulte's athletic career had been confined to the middle west. He was a four letter man at Belvidere High, started his professional career with the semi-pro outfits of Illinois and Missouri, entered organized baseball with the Waterloo team of the Mississippi Valley league, and played two years —1925 and 1926— with the Milwaukee Brewers. Then followed his six year stretch with the St. Louis Browns, a connection which terminated with the aforesaid trade on Dec. 10, 1932.

Associates Respect His Great Physical Power.

Schulte is of the quiet, almost stolid type. He has little interest in human activities not linked with baseball or his home life. He is, nevertheless, good natured and friendly with his associates, all of whom respect his great physical power. One of these mates said to us the other day:

"On every ball club there are several fellows who like to romp and play and wrestle in the clubhouse. There are several such on the Senators, but you never see any of them getting fresh with Freddy. He has the most powerful hands and arms I ever saw. He could take a fellow by the wrists and snap his arms off at the shoulders. The clubhouse pranksters soon spot this kind of a guy and leave him alone."

STRONG BOY

FRED SCHULTE.

Mills to Play Logan Squares 2 Games Today

The Mills and the Logan Squares of the Wisconsin-Illinois Semi-Pro Baseball league, rivals for many years, close their annual series this afternoon in a double header at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue. The first game will start at 1:30 o'clock.

The Squares will be seeking to even the series. The Mills have won four of six games this season. Last Sunday the Mills defeated the Squares in a double header, 8 to 6 and 6 to 2, for their 31st and 32d victories of the year.

Malcolm Moss and Jim Vaughn, veteran southpaw, will pitch for the Squares, while Gordon McNaughton and Lefty Sullivan, who won last week, will pitch for the Mills. Sullivan has scored 16 victories this season and was defeated five times. One of the defeats was at the hands of the Squares.

The Mills will count heavily on their hard hitting outfielders, Lefty Shaner, John Conlan and Barney Neis. Conlan former star in the International league who was obtained by the Mills this season, is leading the club in hitting.

The Duffy Florals will play a double header against the Minor League All Stars, a team selected from players of the International league, the American association and the Southern association, at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets. Bartulis of the Buffalo club is assigned to pitch one of the games. Bedore of Indianapolis will play third base, Sheehan of Chattanooga, second, and Holm, formerly of the St. Louis Cardinals, is to do the catching for the All Stars.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 23.—[U.P.]—Rice institute scored late in the fourth quarter to defeat Texas A. & I., 7 to 6, today.

GREAT PITCHING IS GIANTS' ONLY HOPE IN SERIES

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There'll be a few people picking the Giants to capture the choice portion of the financial loot from the Washington Senators in the impending world series. The few, however, will be making their pick on sentiment or hope. Those are about the only obvious reasons for believing the National league entry has anything except a beating ahead. So far as balance is concerned the National league will be depending on about the weakest entry it has turned out in many years.

The Giants have one thing and it's the thing that won a pennant for them. We speak of the pitching. Their four regular hurlers have compiled over the season a remarkable record for refusal to yield much in the shape of runs. They've consistently bothered the good and the weak hitters alike. If they can do the same to the Senators it will be fine for the Giant adherents, provided the Giants themselves can score a few runs per game.

They're Bashful About Runs.

It so happens that the Giants as a team are as backward about scoring runs as their own pitchers are about allowing them to the enemy. The pitchers didn't turn in shutouts and one run games day after day because it was a pastime. It was a matter of necessity because their mates seldom furnished them enough leeway to permit a little easing up along the nine inning route. Any time the Giants scored a half dozen runs in one game the pitching staff marked it up as a red letter day.

There's no reason to think the Giants, while hitting Washington pitching, are going to have an easier time than when facing National league pitching. The Senators aren't shy in that particular, although their staff was slightly off color at various stages of the race. Whitehill, Weaver and Crowder can easily be rated alongside of any three picked from the Giants' quartet of Hubbell, Parmelee, Schumacher, and Fitzsimmons.

Might Emulate Braves.

There is one consolation for the National leaguers and that is that another team, built along the lines of the present Giants, scored a world series triumph that nobody had anticipated. The deeds of the Braves of 1914 will be recalled. All they had was pitching—Bill James, Dick Rudolph, and Lefty Tyler—and nobody figured that alone could beat down Connie Mack's great machine. But the Macks succumbed in four games before the work of the three fellows mentioned.

One thing not consoling, however, is that the new National league champions under a world series strain could easily fall victims to a sad case of the jitters. That might be brought on easily if the Senators should happen to uncork some unexpected hitting in the first couple of games. If any blowup happened around second base it would be fatal. The fielding combination of Blondy Ryan at short and Hughey Critz at second has had much to do with the success of the pitchers. Any time that combination errs the pitchers get into trouble.

Schedule Favors Giants.

The series schedule undoubtedly favors the Giants. They open in their own park, where the short foul lines are made to order for certain of their hitters, notably Mel Ott, Bill Terry, and Lefty O'Doul, who for that reason might be used in right field for the games played there. However, the Senators have at least a couple who have a fondness for short right fields. Goose Goslin and Joe Kuhel need watching under such conditions.

Picking his pitcher for the inaugural offers Joe Cronin, the Senators' boss, a neat little problem. Alvin Crowder, a foxy old fellow, who mixes things up well, would be the logical man, but there is more than a slim possibility that he might be withheld until the second day. Such procedure would give Earl Whitehill the call for the first game and his left handed throwing certainly should slow down the big barkers in the Giant attack.

PARROTS, TROJANS TO MEET.

Melrose Park Trojans will play the Berwyn Legion Parrots this afternoon in a football game at Solar-Sturgis park, 25th avenue near St. Charles road.

tempting to dodge a pitch, knocked a grounder to Trosky.

Bocek, batting for Tietje, beat out an infield hit to open the sixth. Stoneham fouled to Pytlak, but Haas lined a double to right center, scoring Bocek. When Burnett relayed the ball to the screen, Haas took third. Dykes walked. Simmons lined a single to center, scoring Haas with the tying run and putting Dykes on third. Appling again came through with a single, Dykes scoring and Simmons stopping at second. Kress walked, filling the bases. Swanson batted for English and flied to Averill.

Luke's Still Trying.

Heving took over the pitching job in the sixth and didn't allow a runner to get near first until two were out in the eighth. Then Hale singled to left. Ferrell followed with a pop fly that Simmons could have caught with his teeth, but Appling, who has been trying ever since his Oglethorpe days to catch such a looper, charged out and after running Simmons away from the ball, quit on it. The thing fell for a single and enabled Hale, who, of course, was running with two out, to score the tying run. Ferrell took second on the throw to the plate. Dykes threw out Pytlak.

With two out in the ninth Swanson was safe on Hale's error and stole second, but Brown threw out Berry.

After the Sox put over that run in the eleventh Heving fanned Hale and then made Ferrell tap to Dykes and Pytlak fly to Simmons.

NORTHWESTERN PILES UP 44 TO 0 SCORE ON FRESHMEN, WITH FIRST AND SECOND STRING ELEVENS DIVIDING HONORS.
Chilly Sutton of the second team, who accounted for two touchdowns, tries an end run in the second quarter and, with good interference, makes a sizeable gain. The first team was held to one touchdown in the opening quarter, but, after watching the second team push across three scores in the next period, the select group came back to continue the process of shoving the freshmen around until the score reached its decisive figure. (Story on page 4, Sports.)

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 23.—Green Bay, oldest city in Wisconsin and likewise a pioneer in professional football, tonight was waiting the annual battle with the Chicago Bears at City Stadium tomorrow afternoon, a fight which may largely determine the championship of the western half of the league. Twelve thousand, near capacity crowd, are expected to see the oldest professional rivals clash in their 27th game since the inception of the series in 1921.

The Packers and the Bears are outstanding in the list of five western teams in the revamped National Pro league. Only the Portsmouth, O., Spartans, who lost the league championship to the Bears last year in a playoff, are considered their equal, although the Chicago Cardinals, with added strength, may figure in the battle. Cincinnati, a newcomer in the league, already has lost one game.

East, West Winners Meet.

While games are scheduled as usual this year with all teams in the circuit, a title game has been planned between the winners in the east and west. Hence, there is added importance to tomorrow's game.

Unlike collegiate football, every game in the National league is important. While the Packers probably will play the Bears twice at Wrigley field, Chicago, the team which wins tomorrow will have a jump on the others for title consideration. Last year the rivals played a scoreless tie here, which eventually helped place the Bears at the top with Portsmouth. In the three preceding years the Packers won and continued on to take the championship.

Last Sunday Boston, by virtue of a fourth period pass, tied the Packers, 7 to 7. The result, however, does not affect the Packers' standing in the western half of the league.

Hinkle to Help Packers.

Curly Lambeau, whose service with the Packers has been continuous as player and then as coach, is confident Green Bay will win. Possessed of an advantage in playing on home soil, the Packers also will have added strength in Clark Hinkle, one of the best backs in professional circles, who, a week ago, was not in the best of condition. Hinkle will give the Bays greater running power, which naturally will increase the effectiveness of the passing attack. And Green Bay's passing is just about perfection.

With Arnold Herber throwing, the Packers always are dangerous. They are no respecters of gridiron strategy which restricts passes to midfield or enemy territory. Green Bay throws the ball any time and the chances for completion are always excellent with such receivers as Verne Dilweg, Milt Gantenbein, Al Rose, Roger Grove, Johnny Blood, and Les Peterson. It was Grove who took a pass which brought the Packers into position for their touchdown last Sunday. They scored on a pass to Rose.

Bears Can Crash Line.

The Bears, while not as adept as the Packers at passing, will have an advantage in plunging. In Bronko Nagurski and Jack Manders, former Minnesota full backs, the Bears have the best pair of line smashers in the league. Nagurski overpowers the opposition, while Manders is equally dangerous because of his ability to pick his openings.

Even so, when Coach Halas sends John [Bull] Doehring into the game, the Bears' aerial chances are excellent. Doehring throws left handed and his passes frequently travel 50 yards with accuracy.

Red Grange will make his seventh appearance at Green Bay tomorrow. Grange may not be as shifty as during the years he made history at Illinois, but he's still a dangerous runner and none is better on defense. Gene Ronzani, who performed for Marquette last season, and Cliff Hansen, another newcomer from Luther college, are ready to fill in for Red. Johnny Sisk, also from Marquette, who played with the Bears last year, is a second reason why many fans are coming from Milwaukee tomorrow to see the game. Ronzani's home is in Iron Mountain, Mich., and a delegation also is expected from northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan.

Hubbard vs. Lyman.

Joe Zeller, who played last year in Green Bays' line, will greet his former mates tomorrow in a Bears' uniform. The game also brings together a pair of veteran tackles, Cal Hubbard of Green Bay and Link Lyman of the Bears. Each, despite years of service, is considered in the first rank of the many star linemen in the league.

The Bears' squad, 25 in number, Coaches Halas and Laurie Walquist, and a party of Chicago fans arrived tonight. The special train will leave tomorrow night an hour after the game.

Al Feeney, one of Notre Dame's greatest centers nearly a score of years ago, and now a state official in Indianapolis, Ind., will referee tomorrow's game.

La Porte, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Riley of South Bend defeated La Porte, 6 to 0, in its opening N. I. H. S. C. conference game of the season today.

ONE DOZEN THREATS FOR OLD PURDUE

Illini Defeat Strong Frosh Team, 19 to 6

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The Illinois varsity eleven defeated one of the heaviest and best looking first year teams seen here in years, 19 to 6, today.

Long passes by Beynon to Froschauer accounted for two varsity touchdowns and the third score was made by Dave Cook, who ran 80 yards from scrimmage.

After Coach Bob Zuppke sent in a reserve squad, Bob Grieve, interscholastic sprint star from Glen Ellyn, received a pass from Ken Meenan and scored the first touchdown made in the annual game by a freshman since Gil Berry did it in 1929. Meenan played an all around game in fine style. Lineup:

11 GOPHERS INELIGIBLE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Head Coach Bernie Bierman by no means was enthusiastic today when he started the second full week of practice with the University of Minnesota football team.

No less than 11 men who had been counted upon to fill in for regulars and reserves of last year are ineligible at present.

The principal shift in the Gopher lineup was to try Julius Alfonse, Cumberland, Wis., boy, at full back. Alfonse is the hardest man on the squad to knock off his feet, and his blocking is effective. Alfonse will fight it out with Sheldon Beise for full back if he can make up a clasroom deficiency.

IOWA KEEPS OUT CRAYNE.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Dick Crayne, University of Iowa full back, was withheld from a practice game today as a precaution against injury before the Northwestern game next week. In four fifteen minute quarters the first team scored five touchdowns against a second string with Joe Laws, Russ Fisher and George Teyro, leading the offense. Teyro was not in the starting back field but replaced Fisher in the last half.

Francis Schammel, 215 pound veteran guard, was out of the lineup with a recurrence of boils but was expected to report ready for action Monday. His place was filled by Casey Jones, 180 pound sophomore.

10,000 WATCH WOLVERINES.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Ten thousand saw the Michigan football squad scrimmage on Ferry field this afternoon under a hot sun.

The "Blue" team, made up of men who ranked slightly higher than those opposing them, piled up six touchdowns and kicked five goals. Everhardus was the individual star among the backs, making several long runs and kicking three goals in as many attempts. He scored the first touchdown after a 50 yard run. Westover also turned in some brilliant play in the backfield. The regular linemen piled through their opponents with little difficulty. Good work in the line was done by Ponto, McGuire, Hildebrand and Johnson.

Scores Two Aces, but He Loses Title Golf Match

NEW CASTLE, Ireland, Sept. 23.—[U. P.]—Eric Fiddian today scored two holes in one but could not win the Irish open amateur golf championship from Jack McLean. The defending champion won the final match over 86 holes, 3 and 2. Fiddian's aces came on the 128 yard 7th hole in the morning, and on the 205 yard 14th in the afternoon.

Michigan City Prep Eleven Defeats Morgan Park, 7-0

The defeat of Morgan Park and the auspicious starts of Mount Carmel, Lindblom, and Oak Park marked yesterday's Chicago district high school football competition. Morgan Park, defending champion in the Chicago Public High School league, lost to Michigan City, Ind., 7 to 0, in its opening practice game. The game was played at Michigan City.

Mount Carmel, holder of the Chicago Catholic High School league championship for the last two seasons, scored its first victory by defeating Horace Mann of Gary, Ind., 13 to 7, at Shewbridge field.

Armour Scores Twice.

Led by Armour and Motz, Oak Park, 1931 champion of the Suburban league, overwhelmed Bowen, 35 to 0, at the Oak Park stadium. Armour scored two touchdowns, plunging five yards in the first quarter and running through tackle for seven yards in the last period.

Touchdowns by Daly, left half back, and Rulis, quarter back, gave Lindblom a 13 to 0 victory over Calumet at Normal park. Rulis scored on a lateral pass from Shimaek in the first quarter and Daly ran eight yards for the second touchdown in the second period.

Tilden Is Beaten.

Tilden Tech suffered its second successive defeat at the hands of La Salle-Peru, Ill., at White City stadium. The score was 19 to 0. La Salle-Peru won the first game between the schools last year on the latter's field, 25 to 6.

'Ridiculous,' Says Lott of Charges Made by Vines

George M. Lott Jr., Chicago Davis cup player, yesterday branded as ridiculous charges made by Ellsworth Vines Jr., former national singles champion, that members of the 1933 United States Davis cup team were treated as "babies."

"Ellsworth Vines' statement that members of the 1933 Davis cup team were treated as babies is ridiculous," declared Lott.

"Capt. Bernon Prentice gave each of us 'carte blanche' as to training methods, and Vines' failure was entirely his own fault. I believe this is doubly proven by his unsuccessful campaign in the United States after his Davis cup rout, when he was most certainly his own trainer and captain."

year was the youngest in modern polo history to win the national championship, went down with flying colors. Winston Guest stayed at No. 3, where he was stationed in the last Templeton practice before the start of the tournament. He was again the slamming, hard riding player of his international years and a great factor in the showing of his team.

Rathborne, riding at back with his rein hand in a steel brace guarding a thumb broken earlier in the season, hit superbly. Mike Phipps again had spots of brilliant No. 1 play. At No. 2, where he has not been seen very often, Stewart Iglehart continued the play which this season has made him one of the best in the country.

STAGG SMILES IN DEFEAT; SEES GOOD SEASON

Portland, Ore., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Defeated by a youthful coach and a left handed passer in his début in Pacific coach football, Amos Alonzo Stagg smiled today and predicted he would have one of the strongest teams in its class in the far west.

"It was a great game," the gray haired veteran of 41 seasons at the University of Chicago, said after watching Oregon Normal conquer his college of the Pacific eleven, 12 to 0, last night.

The "Grand Old Man" lauded young Larry Wolfe, Oregon Normal coach, known for producing some of the trickiest football teams in the Pacific northwest.

Coach Wolfe, expressing his admiration for Stagg and the team he is developing at Stockton, Cal., grinned and remarked:

"This was Stagg's first game on the coast, but he sure knew a lot about our team. He was set for every trick we had in the bag except one—and that was a left handed passer."

Scroggins, the southpaw passer, was responsible for both touchdowns. In the third period, after he had returned the kickoff 10 yards and collected 10 more on a fake around end, Scroggins whipped a left handed pass 20 yards to Phillips, who ran the remaining 25 yards to score.

After College of the Pacific, at the start of the final quarter, had passed from its own 35 yard line to Oregon Normal's 20, it was Scroggins who dashed up to intercept a pass and race 60 yards for the final score.

Boxer's Purse Held Up; He Starts Hunger Strike

CONCEPCION, Chile, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Mexican boxer, Harrison Sasaki, began a hunger strike today in front of the home of the president of the boxing federation until the federation pays him his purse for a bout last Saturday with Arturo Scheckels of Belgium. The bout was close and the federation decided to retain both purses.

Pilney Leads Irish Varsity to 33-0 Win

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Andy Pilney, former Harrison High school star in Chicago, led the Notre Dame varsity eleven to a 33 to 0 victory over a picked reserve team today.

He worked through the narrowest of holes and got out of the grasp of secondary tacklers frequently for long runs. He scored three touchdowns on runs of 13, 40, and 33 yards, respectively.

Alternating with John [Red] Tobin of Janesville, Wis., Pilney carried the ball to the one yard line, after returning a kickoff 45 yards, and Don Elser, giant sophomore full back, split the center of the line for a fourth touchdown.

Lukats Also Gets Going.

Nick Lukats, senior varsity left half back, whose regular job was placed in jeopardy today by Pilney's work, dominated the play in the third quarter, and scored from the one yard line.

Tonny Mazziotti, sophomore quarter back, utilized the opening scrimmage to get the jump on the other three candidates. He directed the varsity to all of its five touchdowns and kicked the extra point from placement in three out of five attempts.

Krause Still a Star.

Ed Krause of Chicago, giant senior left tackle, and Joe Pivarnik, senior right guard from Bridgeport, Conn., turned in the best line play for the varsity.

The blocking was more effective when the sophomore back field was in action, but Pilney made several runs which started through very small holes.

PURDUE IN SCRIMMAGE.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Three Purdue varsity squads engaged in offensive scrimmage simultaneously against picked freshmen elevens this afternoon. Reserve back field combinations, one made up of Jim Peelle, quarter back; Vernon Craig and Butch Keegan, half backs, and Doxie Moore, full back, and the other with Dan Toriello at quarter back; Leon Dailey and William Riblet at half backs, and Dick Sandefur at full back, turned in smooth performances.

EXAMS SLOW UP BADGERS.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Minus four of the most promising sophomore candidates who were taking examinations to determine their eligibility, the Wisconsin varsity went through the first long scrimmage of the season against the freshmen this afternoon.

Those taking examinations today were John Golemgeske, Waukesha; Russ Callahan, Wausau; Bill Millar, Marshfield, and Harry Klawitter, La Crosse.

Coach Spears used two sets of half backs, with Kenny Kundert and Red Peterson changing off with Jimmy Bingham and Carl Sanger. Capt. Harold Smith was at full back, while Bobby Schiller saw the most service at quarter back.

HOOSIERS ROUT SPY.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—In a practice game enlivened by a sideline skirmish in which a group of students seized a book containing a chart of Indiana football plays from a Miami university scout, the Crimson varsity trounced the freshmen today 26 to 0. Four of Indiana's most promising players starred in the game and received public acclaims, but their fellow students who conquered the "enemy" in the bleachers will have to go down in I. U. annals as unknown heroes. Indiana will open its schedule against Miami here next Saturday.

Don Veller scored the varsity's first touchdown and then kicked goal. After catching a pass, Attore Antonini ran 95 yards for the second touchdown. R. Dauer kicked goal. Louis Sutherland dashed 50 yards for the third touchdown and Wendell Walker ran 70 yards for the other score.

EASY DAY FOR OHIO.

Columbus, O., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—After four days of hard scrimmage Ohio State's football team had an easy time of it today. Signal and forward passing drill took up most of the morning session and only signal practice was ordered for the afternoon because of a drizzling rain.

On the first team, Padlow and Gillman started at ends; Conrad and Rosequist at tackles, Delich and Gailus at guards, and Vuchinich at center. In the backfield Coach Williaman had Cramer at Quarter, Smith and Boucher at halves and Wetzel at full back.

WILDCATS BEAT FRESHMEN, 44-0, WITH LONG RUNS

Cruice and Leeper Lead Varsity Attack.

Northwestern's varsity football team employed a diversified attack to overwhelm the freshmen, 44 to 0, in their annual clash at Dyche stadium yesterday.

Four of the varsity's seven touchdowns were scored on short plunges, but only after some well executed passes and excellent open field running had placed the ball in scoring position. The other touchdowns were scored by Harry Leeper and Walt Stanul, each of whom ran 30 yards to the goal line, and Eggs Manske, who took a 25 yard pass from Roy Auguston.

Cruice Gets Away.

Fumbles at strategic points cost the varsity several scoring chances, while at other times a well executed block would have paved the way for long runs. Intensive drills on these two fundamentals will be held this week in preparation for Saturday's season opener against Iowa at Soldiers' field.

The varsity was slow in getting underway. The first quarter was nearly over before the regulars produced their first score. Olson passed 20 yards to Manske to place the ball on the Freshmen's 15 yard line. Cruice then reeled off 12 yards around left end. Olson plunged the remaining distance and drop kicked for the extra point.

Second Team Scores.

The second team started the next quarter and promptly marked up three touchdowns. Two 20 yard runs by Bill Lehnhardt and plunges by Chilly Sutton accounted for one. Sutton crossed the goal line again after the ball was advanced to the five yard line on a 20 yard pass from Auguston to Manske. Stanul ran 30 yards for the final score of the period.

The regulars returned in the third quarter and following the kickoff Cruice tossed a lateral pass to Leeper for a 25 yard advance. Leeper followed this with a 30 yard run for a touchdown. Cruice returned the next kickoff 40 yards. Olson ripped through center for the remaining distance to the goal. The final touchdown was scored by Manske who took Auguston's 25 yard pass behind the goal.

MAROONS SCRIMMAGE

Coach Clark Shaughnessy surprised his Maroon football team and more than a thousand spectators yesterday by staging a long scrimmage at Stagg field, the first of the season on the Midway. The first string team, using the third back field during most of the hour and a quarter of play, defeated the second team, 20 to 0.

The Varsity back field, composed of Vin Sahlin, Jay Berwanger, Pete Zimmer, and Ewald Nyquist, played only the first and last five minutes of the encounter, and the match served chiefly to call attention to the defensive ability of the varsity line and abilities of several reserve backs who have received little attention.

Reserve Guard Hurt.

Raymond Pokela, second string guard, became the first casualty of the season when he sustained an elbow injury which was diagnosed tentatively as a fracture. If X-rays sustain this diagnosis he probably will be lost for most of the season. Pokela, a sophomore, is from Bessemer, Mich.

The B team intercepted a pass by Berwanger early in the game, but Womer recovered for the Varsity on the Reserves' 12 yard line after one play. Two short thrusts put the ball in position for a touchdown plunge over center by Nyquist. Berwanger dropkicked the extra point.

Two long runs by Tommy Flinn, who starred for the Varsity, again put the Varsity on their opponents' goal line, but a fumble checked the threat. The next attack, with the third string backs in action, ended in a pass over the goal line, after Ed Culen and Gordon Watrous, a sophomore, had made several good gains on runs and passes.

Hatter Runs 55 Yards.

The B team then kicked out to Keith Hatter, junior half back, who raced 55 yards for a touchdown. Watrous kicked the goal. Five minutes later Cullen intercepted a B team pass and ran 40 yards to the goal for the third touchdown, Watrous missed the try for point.

The only first down made by the B team was on a 25 yard buck by Barton Smith, who has been converted from an end to a full back. Flinn, who played the second part of the match with the Reserves, was the chief offensive spar for the B's. In the final few minutes the varsity back field was reinserted and Zimmer plunged for 8 yards, then passed to Wells for 15 more to put the ball on the 12 yard line. Berwanger, who had made two good gains earlier, was stopped dead twice at this point.

TRAINING TABLES.

RESTORATION of training tables for their football squads is favored by a majority of Big Ten coaches. Sooner or later, we think, their arguments will prevail with the more conservative faculty conference board. The Wake for several years has been aligned with proponents of the plan. Last fall, before the annual faculty meeting, we urged adoption and stated arguments in favor thereof which we propose to repeat and keep repeating.

Training tables went out of the conference in the reform wave of 1905-'06, induced by "evils" which had crept into the system as then practiced. Present suggestion negatives those evils by removing the cause.

When training tables were in vogue—and in some instances living dormitories as well—board and room were not free to the football candidates. The rule was that a player should pay to the athletic department the same amount he was paying at his usual boarding place. From this provision grew the so-called evils.

Boys living at home in the town where the college was located of course paid nothing at home. Therefore no payment was made for training table board. Now, youth is imaginative. Therefore it became customary for youths who were not living at home to acquire "imaginary" uncles, aunts, other relatives or friends with whom they "boarded" while at college and to whom they paid no board. Hence, like the chaps who actually lived at home, they paid no board to the athletic department.

At some colleges payment became an exception rather than the rule. There is a story told of one squad on which only one player was paying table board. He happened to be a star lineman. When he heard of the conditions he was so incensed he promptly acquired an "uncle" and demanded his money back on pain of deserting the squad. It did not seem desertion to him, but simply fair play. He received his refund.

If training tables are restored we think there should be no charge for food. Thus all chance of favoritism or bad faith on that score would be eliminated. Back in the early years of the century athletic funds were smaller than now. While depression has reduced gate receipts, football admissions are still plethoric compared to 25 years ago. That football revenue now is diverted to so many other purposes is the principal reason for curtailment of expenses.

Furnishing adequate nutritious warm food to athletes who bring in football revenue during the comparatively short gridiron season does not grate on our conception of amateur ethics. At least dinner should be furnished if for no other reason than a matter of convenience to the boys who after practice arrive late at the usual boarding and fraternity houses. Of other arguments in favor of the plan we'll speak at another time.

LACROSSE, AUTO RACING ADDED TO CARD AT STADIUM

Bidwill Announces Sport Setup for Winter.

Lacrosse and miniature automobile racing have been added to the schedule of sporting events which the Chicago Stadium Operating company is planning for the winter season.

The racing will be an individual enterprise, Charles W. Bidwill, president of the company, announced yesterday, but lacrosse will be league competition against Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, and two other cities as yet undesignated.

Plans for the formation of the lacrosse league, complete organization of which will be made within the next two weeks, calls for two divisions. Chicago will be a member of the western division of the league, with New York, Philadelphia, Toronto, Buffalo, and Rochester in the eastern division.

Plan Ross Bout.

The Stadium's schedule calls for the customary hockey competition between National league teams and the Blackhawks, bicycle racing, boxing, wrestling, football and a rodeo. The winter season at the west side arena will open early in November to avoid conflict with A Century of Progress, Bidwill said.

The first event in all probability will be a boxing bout between Barney Ross, world's lightweight and junior welterweight champion, and a leading junior welterweight contender. The early part of the schedule will not have much boxing, however.

"There are only two fighters now in active training capable of drawing the crowds necessary for a Stadium appearance," Bidwill explained. "They are King Levinsky and Barney Ross. These men are practically without opponents at this time. Only Max Schmeling and Max Baer can be considered as possible opponents for Levinsky. Schmeling is in Germany and will not be ready to fight until a month after his return late in October. Baer is making a picture in Hollywood and likewise will not be ready to fight for another two months. Another drawback in Baer's case is his affiliation with Jack Dempsey, who has the coast heavyweight under contract for future bouts.

"Several opponents might be obtained for Ross, but Ross is planning a vaudeville tour and possibly a fling at motion picture shorts, making him unavailable immediately."

Expects Lacrosse to "Take."

Of the new sports, Bidwill expects lacrosse to catch on as readily as hockey did when first introduced to the Chicago sports public. The miniature automobile racing, he feels, will be an outstanding attraction in the city this winter. The drivers pilot little cars barely able to carry a man. In England, where the sport is enjoying a prosperous season, the average speed is said to be between 50 and 60 miles an hour.

Two six day bike races will be held, one starting Oct. 29 and another in March. The rodeo also has been tentatively scheduled for next spring.

The football games will involve the Cardinals, which Bidwill recently purchased, and the Bears, either against each other or against other National league teams.

Bidwill also announced the signing of an agreement with Ed White, manager of Jim Londos, heavyweight wrestler, whereby Londos is to wrestle against whatever opponents the Stadium Operating company designates.

A. A. U. Track Meet Ends in Big Argument

Table of Points

South Parks	44	Olde Tymers	16
Lincoln Parks	41½	Colored Olympiad	3
Unattached	56½	North Central Col	2
Northwestern U.	21	Avondale	5

The 32d annual Central A. A. U. track and field meet at Ogden park yesterday wound up in an argument with the South Parks team in temporary charge of the championship.

South Parks accumulated a total of 44 points, but when it prepared to receive the trophies the Lincoln Park squad protested.

The South Parks team contended that Lincoln Park had signed Kurt Richter, John Budgen and Jim Bliss at the last minute, after those athletes had arrived at the meet to compete unattached.

South Parks claimed the Lincoln Park team, as it originally arrived, scored 41½ points and that the team, as it finished scored more than 50 points.

The registration committee of the A. A. U. agreed to meet tomorrow or Tuesday to consider the protest.

DIVORCE DECREE AWARDED WIFE OF SONNENBERG

Reno, Nev., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Marie Elliott Sonnenberg, Boston society girl known to the Hollywood film colony as Judith Allen, were divorced here today.

The decree was awarded the actress on her cross-complaint charging extreme mental cruelty.

Although details of her testimony, which were presented by deposition, were not revealed, Miss Allen was understood to have informed the court that their unhappiness was caused principally by Sonnenberg's objections to her continuing her dramatic career.

The wrestler and actress married two years ago in New York City. It was not until recently, however, that their marriage became known.

Hampden Sydney Ties Virginia Eleven, 7-7

University, Va., Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Hampden Sydney Tigers tied the University of Virginia, 7 to 7, today. The Tigers marched 60 yards to a touchdown after Virginia had scored in the second quarter.

SUN ARCHER IS WINNER IN RICH POTOMAC STAKE

Conquers Barn Swallow by Half a Length.

Havre De Grace, Md., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Archer, winner of only one previous race this year, further scrambled an uncertain three year old championship situation today when he won the $10,000 Potomac handicap before a crowd of 20,000.

E. R. Bradley's Barn Swallow, heroine of the Alabama stake and the Kentucky Oaks, was second, a half length back, with Joseph E. Widener's highly regarded Golden Way third. War Glory, winner of the Lawrence Realization and the favorite to repeat the 1920 triumph of his famous sire, Man o' War, just missed getting into the money, finishing fourth in the field of ten.

Winner Pays $43.40.

Lightly regarded in the wagering, Sun Archer paid $43.40, $17.00, and $9.80 and won for his owner $8,100. His time of 1:44 4-5 for the one and one-sixteenth miles was four-fifths of a second off the track record.

Pete Walls rode Sun Archer perfectly. He broke the Kilmer colt alertly and placed him in third position on the outside as Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Okapi stepped along in front followed by Barn Swallow. Rounding the lower turn, the son of Sun Briar moved in on Barn Swallow as the Bradley filly displaced Okapi as the pace setter.

Wins Going Away.

Straightened out for the run to the judges' stand, Sun Archer and Barn Swallow, the latter with Don Meade up, battled closely lapped for a furlong. Then the Kilmer speedster surged ahead and won going away.

Following the four leaders were W. R. Coe's Pomposity and Black Queen, C. V. Whitney's The Darb, Mrs. Sloane's Inlander, winner of the Arlington classic and Travers, and Adolphe Pons' Swivel.

DOMINUS IS VICTOR

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—William Woodward's Dominus, a 3 year old son of Stimulus, was first today in the Bay Shore handicap at a mile which featured the racing program at Aqueduct. The largest crowd of the meeting, estimated at 8,000, saw the race which was worth $1,780 to the winner. He won by two lengths from G. H. [Pete] Bostwick's Blind Bowboy, while Allan Ryan's Larranaga was third.

In the Harbor Hill steeplechase, the second stake on the card, Thomas Hitchcock's Wywandanch was the winner by a nose due to the overconfidence of Jockey H. Jeffcott, rider of Mrs. Gladys Whitney's No Frills.

Jockey Is Suspended.

No Frills appeared assured of the victory in the last fifty yards, but Jeffcott was caught napping and did not ride out his horse. He was suspended for the balance of the meeting for "careless riding." Third place fell to Nesconset, stablemate to the winner.

The card was the most interesting of the meeting and saw Jockey Johnny Stout lose his five pound apprentice allowance when he rode his 40th winner aboard Cohort Miss in the third race. Stout scored with four winners yesterday.

Stout's Ride Helps Dominus.

In the feature race Stout rode to the post aboard Dominus a full fledged jockey. His powerful ride had much to do with the victory of the Woodward color bearer which ran coupled in the betting with the Wheatley stable's Notebook.

The entry was held at 13 to 5, while even money w's laid against Blind Bowboy.

PARI-MUTUEL WINS

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Pari-Mutuel, wearing the black and white dotted silks of C. Leroy King, Memphis turfman, today won the Autumn handicap, one and one-sixteenth mile feature at the Detroit track.

Pari-Mutuel set a new track record, running the distance in 1:45 2-5. Hope To Do, property of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, was second, with the Audley farm's Royal Blunder third.

The race was worth $2,325 net to the winner. Pari-Mutuel paid $13.40 for a $2 ticket.

CHICAGO SLOVAK NINE TO OPPOSE STEELTON TODAY

The Chicago champions of the First Catholic Slovak union, St. Stephen, will meet Branch 241 of Steelton, O., this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue, in one of the games of a national tournament being conducted by the society. H. Janetka, Chicago pitcher, will try to halt Steelton's streak of 23 straight victories.

RACING STARTS AT WASHINGTON PARK TOMORROW

Long Stake Events Feature 18 Day Schedule.

No sooner had the racing ended at Lincoln fields late yesterday than the turf colony—men, horses, jockeys, and hangers-on—began to move toward Washington Park, where an autumn meeting of eighteen days opens tomorrow afternoon.

It is the first time autumn racing ever has been offered at Washington Park.

Col. M. J. Winn has fashioned the stake race program to encourage long distance racing. Only one stake is offered at a distance of less than a mile and that is the Lake Side handicap for 2 year olds at 6 furlongs.

Cup Race Is Marathon.

The Washington Park Cup for 3 year olds and over will be 2¼ miles and is the longest race run in Chicago this season. It promises to attract a big field.

Other stakes to be run during the Washington Park season include Homewood handicap for 3 year olds and upward at a mile, and the Harvey handicap at a mile and an eighth.

There will be more than 1,000 horses available at Washington Park so the fields promise to be large and the winners hard to pick.

Feature Attracts Good Field.

The Washington Boulevard purse at 6 furlongs, which features the opening program, has drawn a stylish field of sprinters. It is backed by one of the best balanced cards of the season.

Post time for the first race each day at Washington Park will be 2:15 o'clock.

Baggage Express, a promising 2 year old brown gelding in the stable of B. S. Mitchell, former trainer of Reigh Count, dropped dead during a workout on the Lincoln Fields track early yesterday morning.

◆

Go Forth and Sister Zoe were the winners of second and third races yesterday and completed a daily double which paid $102.68. Go Forth is owned by Bob Collins of Lexington. Sister Zoe hails from the Four Oaks farm in Louisiana and is trained by Tony Pelleteri.

Bitty Bit, which A. A. Baroni claimed from Col. E. R. Bradley a month ago, ran another winning race for his new owner yesterday when she accounted for the Golden Gloves purse.

WHITE HOUSE TO TAKE A NEUTRAL STAND ON SERIES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—[U.P.]—President Roosevelt, one time star third baseman and captain of the Groton school nine, intends to root for both the Giants and Senators when he throws out the first ball for the world series games here.

The White House, diplomatic as usual, explained the President would "cheer for good plays on both sides."

It was also made clear that while Mr. Roosevelt considers Washington at present his "home town," he also has a home on 65th street in New York, so what else can he do but be neutral?

However, the President does not intend to see series games in New York. He will attend the opening game here.

The chief executive saw the opening game of the American league season here this year, but has been too busy to go to a ball game since. He has watched the races in both leagues closely.

Douglas Will Get That "I" if It Takes 20 Years

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 23.—The ambition of Douglas Monsson of Chicago, once a Telden High school football player, to win a varsity letter at Illinois was thwarted, temporarily, at least, today.

Monsson, entering the university in 1923, was compelled to withdraw in 1925, but he never resigned his determination to gain a college education and a letter. Six years later, in the fall of 1931, he was able to return.

In spring practice Monsson became a leading prospect for tackle but in today's freshman game, in which he was a varsity player, his right leg was fractured.

"I'll make it next year," Monsson said.

MICHIGAN SHOWS WAY TO INCREASE PHEASANT CROP

Plan Easy to Follow and Cost Is Low.

BY BOB BECKER.

Land owners, farmers, and sportsmen of the central west who want to increase the number of pheasants on a tract of farmland in a simple, efficient, and economical manner can find the answer to their problem in the state of Michigan. This state, a leader in wild life research, has had Howard M. Wight, professor of forest zoölogy, of the University of Michigan, at work for five years studying the habits of pheasants, and out of this study has come a scheme of management practices which will be invaluable to the farmer and land owner.

The technical and high sounding phrase, "management practices," simply means in a broad way providing the proper kind of cover, food supplies, and rearing grounds and maintaining the correct balance among game birds, predators, farm stock, rodents, insects, and song birds on a farm. Then nature does the rest. There is nothing intricate about the plan. Any farmer or land owner can take Mr. Wight's charts and follow it with little expense.

Greatly Reduces Cost.

Prof. Wight has demonstrated that a farm which takes care of the food and cover requirements of pheasants can show an increase of 400 per cent in the bird population, whereas on the ordinary farm the pheasants will increase only 100 per cent or less. Furthermore, this method of producing pheasants costs about 47 cents per bird, as compared with the usual propagation cost in hatcheries of from $2 to $3 per bird.

If there is any one thing which the Wight cover control plan reveals it is a lesson on "clean farming." Farms which have been denuded of cover along hedgerows, fences, in field corners, and in woodlots cannot house a large bird population of any kind. This is a lesson which must be learned by states before they can expect to make any marked progress in growing more birds per acre of farmland.

Project Urged for Illinois.

Farmer groups worked hand in hand on this important study of how to increase food and cover to obtain more pheasants on farmlands, a partnership that should give Illinois a hint on a similar project in this state.

The conservation department of Michigan has published in pamphlet form a preliminary report on the Wight study which tells how simple it is to increase pheasants on a farm. The booklet is entitled "Suggestions for Pheasant Management."

LITTLE 19 OPENS FOOTBALL TITLE RACE THIS WEEK

Two Games Friday, Two Saturday.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The quest for the twenty-second Little Nineteen football championship begins the coming week with four conference games. Neither Illinois Wesleyan nor McKendree, which enjoyed undefeated seasons last year, will meet conference foes, but Carthage, Augustana, Shurtleff, Illinois college, Macomb Teachers, Knox, De Kalb Teachers, and State Normal will start the race for the title.

Fourteen games are scheduled for the week, th eother ten featuring nonconference opposition.

Monmouth college plays its first game of the season at Burlington, Ia., Junior college Tuesday. Coach H. L. Hart of the Scots is handicapped because several of the 1932 regulars did not return to college. Among them were McDaniels and York, tackles; Gray, guard, and Mazaika, center. Bobby Woll and Ed Brown are veterans available for the back field. Cactus McConnell of Arizona, Ed Wingler of Monmouth, and J. Pressly of Sparta are experienced linemen who will start the Burlington contest.

Bradley's line that will face Ripon will average close to 200 pounds. Capt. Dale Daugherty, center last year, has been shifted to guard, pairing with Warren Peterson. Elmer Harms took over the center job, while Ray Lindenmeyer and Nevius Harms are again available for the tackle positions. Frank Sepich and Bob Zimmerman will handle the ends.

Six nonconference contests round out the week's activity: McKendree at Washington university, St. Louis; Elmhurst at Milwaukee Teachers, Iowa Wesleyan at Monmouth, North Central at Kalamazoo Teachers; Northwestern of Watertown, Wis., at Lake Forest, and Northwestern B at Wheaton.

WOMEN BOWLERS READY TO START CLASSIC LEAGUE

Marie Warmbier to Bid for 200 Average.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

An average of 197 for a woman is bowling that makes the mere man envious, but Marie Warmbier hopes to improve upon that figure this season or she will not be satisfied with her efforts in the women's Classic league, which will open Wednesday evening with ten teams comprising the best feminine bowlers of Chicago. Two hundred or better will be Miss Warmbier's objective.

Bessie Fender, captain of the Petersens, is president of the league; Violet Whitney, captain of Hardings, vice president; Mrs. Frances Luecker, secretary; Bee Hochstadter, captain of the Stevenson and Schalks, treasurer, and Mae Ebert of the Windy City quintet, sergeant at arms.

Other captains are: Marie Warmbier, Schueneman's Logan Square; Henrietta Wilman, Windy City; Grace Smith, Garden Recreation, and Mrs. Kehres, Cinderella Recreation.

The task of keeping pace with Miss Warmbier's 197 average, if she maintains that average this year, will be a difficult one, but Mrs. Wilman, who wound up with 180 last season, and Betty Ramsey, also of Windy City, who rolled 177, hope to give the Logan Square star an argument for the individual championship.

Steers Still on Job.

The Randolph league went into action for the 22d annual battle with the pins on Thursday and, of course, Harry Steers was among those present. No league conflicts would be complete without this veteran of the Mineralites, who has not missed a league match in all these years. Pins did not fall so easily in the opening session, only Joe Fliger, with 656, of the Mineralites, who won all three games, and Ed Kortum, with 616, of the Von Thenen Cafés, who likewise swept their series, having much success with the newly done over Randolph alleys. However, better totals are predicted by Secretary Bill Wernecke next time out. Thursday's schedule will be:

First squad, 7 p. m. — Sunkist Pies vs. Mell-O Ice Cream, Curtiss Buy Jiminy vs. Anheuser-Busch, Greyhound Lines vs. Chuckles Bowl, and Birk Brothers vs. Ault and Wiborg.

Second squad, 9 p. m.—Noble and Peterson vs. Burlington Route, Mineralites vs. Litsinger Motors, Live Stock Press vs. Wagner and Hanson, and Bowlers Journal vs. Von Thenen Café.

Tie for Classic Lead.

The spotlight in the men's Classic league tonight will center on the Moulding-Brownells and the Baby Ruth Candys, who go into the next phase of the season tied for first place with 14 won and 7 lost. Among the individuals with lofty totals during the week, were: A. Carlson, 725; E. Riskowsky, 708; J. Brichetto, 707; B. Krause, 690; K. Pagel, 678; A. Devries, 677; L. Fuller, 674; J. Gratz, 671; E. Zajac, 671, and R. Pehrson, 670. In 21 games Carlson has averaged 215, four higher than Pagel. Tonight's schedule:

Lorenz Knitting vs. Edelweiss at Harding, 2701 Milwaukee avenue; Old Manhattan vs. Olive Can at Madison-Kedzie Arcade, 3137 Madison street; Moulding-Brownell vs Budweiser at Cinderella, 5612 Madison street; Stevenson Heating vs. A. J. Cermaks at Windy City, 2101 South Cicero avenue; Baby Ruth Candy vs. Arlington Bowlers' Aid at Petersen's, 2055 West 35th street.

Pies Undefeated.

How to beat the Illinois Pies, headed by S. Kosobucki and A. Komrska, is the problem facing the A. J. Cermaks, who will oppose the undefeated leaders of the Windy City Major league Wednesday at the Windy City alleys. In six games thus far the Pies have hung up a perfect record, but the Atlas Wet Wash five is close behind them, with five won and one lost. E. Fragel of the last place Vogels is leading the individual averages with 216, followed by G. Morrison, 212; P. Peterson, 211; O. Svestra, 209; J. Broz, 201; H. Lorenz, 200, and S. Kosobucki, 200, of the league leaders. Wednesday's schedule:

Soper Brothers vs. Blazek Tailors, Pilsen Olympia vs. Svehl Primas, Rosedale Dairy vs. L. J. Hiles, Vogel Brothers vs. Corina Cigars, Cicero Boosters vs. Atlas Wet Wash, A. J. Cermaks vs. Illinois Pie Company, Rock Garedn Tavern vs. Curtiss Candy, and J. M. Kralovec & Sons vs. Mineralites.

Harding Teams Tied.

By winning three games the Logan Gardens went into a tie for first place with the Harding Billiards in the Harding league. Frank Andrews is the new individual pacesetter with an average of 199, but Carrol Hoag is right behind him with 198.

League Openings.

Fourteen teams started the firing in the Burlington Route league at Schueneman's West Town alleys with the Fast Mails living up to their name by shooting a 2,789 series and high game of 972. Curda's 245 was high individual game, while Sedlacek had high series with 605. . . The Byllesby league with eight squads inaugurated competition at the Congress alleys with fair scores which will be improved upon before long, the boys say. . . . The Peoples Gas club, which claims the distinction of being the largest single industrial league in the country, opened its 22d annual bowling season with 30 teams of men and ten teams of women in action on the Wabash alleys under the guiding hand of Secretary Peter J. Harrison. Musicians of the Peoples Gas club band vied with the din of the pins in making the inaugural a lively one, while James Woddack, president of the club, addressed the assemblage.

Whalens High.

Scores that were excellent and some that were not so good marked the opening of the Woodlawn Major league, Secretary H. W. (Sarah) Bernhardt reports. The James M. Whalens were the hottest bowlers, shooting a 3,039 total, which included a 1,161 game, while beating the Crest Recreation two out of three. Darling contributed 232; Plant, 197; Bernhardt, 276; Klatt, 252, and Cooksey, 204, toward the big game.

The Young Boosters from South Chicago took two out of three from the Brucks and in the middle game shot 1,106, with Young getting 213; Mareticк, 250; Logan, 246; Brown, 206, and Lindemark, 191.

Milfords Win 8 Straight.

The Goldammer Milfords, with eight straight victories, are tied for first place in the North End Traveling league with the Birk Brothers. Each team has won eight and lost one. Joe Traubenick of the Birks is on top in the individuals with 209, while Frank Carney of the Michelobs is on his heels with 208. Jerry Zobott of H. B. Kaads was outstanding in last week's rolling with a high game of 289. The schedule for tomorrow night:

Luxor Cigars at Harry Kaads at 7 p. m.

Birks' Superbs at the Milford at 7 p. m.

National Teas at the Idle Hour at 9 p. m.

Michelobs vs. Birks Brothers at Samuelson's at 7 p. m.

Fox's De Luxe at the Bryn Mawr at 7 p. m.

Butler Brothers League.

The Frying Pan, weekly organ of the Butler Brothers leagus, is keeping pace with the doings of bowlers of that organization and calls attention to the fact that Cy Young is president and Harlan Hanway treasurer of the league, which has ten teams in action. The Rezny Flashes and Textiles started off with three victories apiece to top the standings in the first week. M. Faetz with a 649 series leads the individual rankings. The league bowls every Friday at the Bensinger alleys.

No team was able to win three games when the Traffic club league embarked upon its season which indicates how well the quintets are matched, says Secretary A. W. Fox. Mark, 196, and Jones, 190, head the individual averages for the 16 team league, which takes to the drives every Friday.

U. S. BANK PLAN TO FREE BILLION IN CHICAGOLAND

Effect of Roosevelt Scheme Estimated.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

A billion dollars of depositors' money would be freed in the Chicagoland area if the President carries out his plan to reopen closed banks by having the RFC pour money into them.

Probably little more than five millions of this money, however, would be released in the city of Chicago itself, because of the fact that Chicago's post moratorium record of bank openings has been so much better than that of other sections of the nation. Chicago banks representing more than 99 per cent of the city's aggregate banking resources reopened on an unrestricted basis immediately after the March moratorium.

Deposits of closed banks throughout the nation on July 26 totaled $6,336,000,000, according to the current issue of the federal reserve bulletin. This figure does not include deposits of banks already placed in liquidation or receivership.

Nearly Billion Frozen in Midwest.

Of the $6,336,000,000 total, $982,803,000 represented deposits of closed banks in the Chicago federal reserve district, which covers all of Iowa, northern and central Indiana, and Illinois, southern and central Wisconsin, and the southern peninsula of Michigan.

About three-fourths of the Chicago reserve district's frozen deposits is in closed state banks, and the remaining one-fourth is in closed national banks. In this district there are approximately 800 state banks and 212 national banks still unlicensed, excluding banks already placed in liquidation or receivership.

Chicago itself has only four banks that would be candidates for reopening under the President's plan. These banks with their total deposits as of Dec. 31, 1932, are as follows: Aetna state bank, $418,000; Austin State bank, $2,033,000; Halsted Street State bank, $1,160,000, and West Side Trust and Savings bank, $5,635,000. Combined deposits of these banks as of the date they closed, had declined considerably from the December figures by the time they closed, and it is estimated that not more than five millions of deposits are still tied up.

Many Illinois Banks Reopened.

In the entire state of Illinois, including Chicago, 625 state banks have been opened on an unrestricted basis since the moratorium, 20 have been liquidated or consolidated with other institutions with no loss to depositors, 39 have been placed in receivership, and 19 are still suspended. These 19 still in suspension would be the only Illinois state banks to benefit by the President's plan, in the opinion of experts here.

Figures compiled recently show that there are still 86 national banks in Illinois, 34 in Indiana, and 51 in Iowa that are still closed.

Whether state banks in Illinois will be able to take advantage of the administration's proposed plan has not yet been settled. The program is to reopen the banks by having the RFC subscribe to preferred stock. Illinois statutes do not permit state banks to issue preferred stock and the laws could be amended only by a statewide referendum. That would take much time.

Another complicating factor is the RFC insistence that the new preferred stock to be issued be nonassessable. That would necessitate an amendment to the state constitution if Illinois banks are to participate.

May Surmount Legal Handicap.

M. A. Graettinger, executive vice president of the Illinois Bankers' association, says, however, that state banks may be able to get around these difficulties by issuing capital notes or debentures to the RFC, instead of preferred stock. Such action, he says, would probably be possible under existing statutes.

The RFC objection to this plan is said to be that it prevents that body getting control of the banks' management, but the proposal has been made that the common stockholders in such cases transfer their voting rights to the RFC.

The administration's plan to reopen closed banks on a wholesale basis has convinced bankers that practically all banks now open will be admitted to the deposit guaranty corporation being set up under the provisions of the banking act of 1933. They point out that if closed banks are to be reopened there is little likelihood that open banks will be closed.

Those banks now open which are not sufficiently sound to qualify for the deposit guaranty will be made sound by putting more capital into them, it is believed. If the present stockholders cannot raise this money it is to be supplied by the RFC in exchange for preferred stock or capital notes.

Atlas Brewing 5 Month Net Equals $1.60 a Share

Net profit of the Atlas Brewing company for the five months ended May 31, 1933, was $479,276, after depreciation, taxes, and all other charges. This was equal to $1.60 a share on 300,000 shares of $5 par capital stock outstanding. While the statement for the comparable period of 1932 is not available, net profit of $215,988, or 71 cents a share on the present capitalization, was reported for the year ended Dec. 31, 1932.

Activity in Three Leading Industries for First 8 Months of Each Year Compared Higher Prices, More Credit Roosevelt Aim

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Substantial increases in farm prices "all along the line" in the next two months today was marked off as the goal of the Roosevelt administration through extension of the cotton loan plan to drive farm purchasing power upward.

President Roosevelt has summoned his financial leaders to work out plans to assure the credit for his price-lifting drive. Release of millions of dollars in closed banks and a pumping into trade channels of other idle millions now on deposit in banks was described today as the main objective of the parley which has been set for tomorrow night.

Secretary Woodin heads the group called into conference. Others understood to have been invited are the heads of the federal reserve board, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Bank Deposit Insurance corporation, and the farm credit administration.

Production Control Planned.

Production control will be definitely linked with the plan of credit extension, farm officials said. They expressed belief this would guard the government against monetary losses and that the credit extended would reflect the administration's own confidence in its drive for recovery and better prices, and remove the efforts from the realm price fixing or stabilization.

Both Secretary Wallace and George N. Peek, the farm administrator, prepared for early meetings with representatives of producers of major crops to consider definite plans for applying a method similar to the cotton loan program which they announced yesterday after conferences with President Roosevelt.

One purpose of the plan is to boost farm prices at a rate commensurate with increases in industrial prices. There have been complaints that the prices of materials farmers buy have been increasing at a much more rapid rate than the farm commodities.

"We don't want the farmer to get hooked in the next two or three months," Wallace said.

Seek to Support Cotton.

The cotton loan plan is an effort to put a "bottom" under cotton prices by offering loans of up to 10 cents a pound on all cotton held by farmers, provided they agree to join in production control plans for next year.

The loan plan will operate on the theory production control will assist in cutting the potential future supply of the staple to such an extent as to assure better future prices. Through it farm officials hope to reflect at once gains in the prices they expect to come later from the production control plan.

The next commodities in line for special treatment are hogs and corn directly. Administrators hope to get their long range corn-hog plan in shape within two weeks. It will supplement the emergency pig and sow purchasing program, costing $50,000,000, which will wind up Friday.

To what extent the loan program will be applied to wheat depends upon what representatives of wheat producers propose, Peek said. The wheat production control campaign will be completed Tuesday, after which benefit payments of up to $90,000,000 are to be distributed.

Dairy Program Hurried.

The dairy program is also being hurried, and the credit system will be employed for it in some manner to fit the particular characteristics of this branch of agriculture which involves more farmers than any other. Already the agricultural administration has committed itself to an advance of $30,000,000 to the dairy industry for the improvement of butter and cheese prices if satisfactory production control plans are shaped to assure that the trend of production will be toward lower rather than larger supplies. These plans will reach final shape within ten days.

One particular form of credit expansion on which the administration is hard at work is that of releasing deposits tied up in closed banks. A plan is understood to be under consideration, and probably will be extensively discussed tomorrow night, under which four government agencies would coördinate their efforts into a united campaign in this direction. These are the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Deposit Guarantee corporation, the Home Owners Loan corporation, and the farm credit administration.

RFC CREDIT TONIC IS BAD MEDICINE FOR BANK SHARES

Jones Plan Leads to Price Declines.

The credit tonic recommended to bankers by Jesse H. Jones, Reconstruction Finance corporation chairman, was bad medicine to bank stocks as shown by the course of prices of leading Chicago bank shares last week.

Bank stock prices here began to fall as the full significance of the Jones proposal began to percolate through the financial community. Mr. Jones wants the banks to sell preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and along with it he wants the banks to turn over to the governmental agency dictatorial powers over the banks.

Banks May Be Forced In.

Those were indications that the banks would be forced into the plan whether they liked it or not.

Reflecting these developments leading bank stocks here sold sharply lower. As the market in bank stocks is thin it took only moderate offerings to depress prices. Bank earnings are now at low ebb and with RFC preferred stock ahead of the capital stock, future dividends are uncertain.

Shares of the Continental Illinois National bank reached a record low of 32, then rallied to close at 34 bid, 35 asked, off 16 points for the week.

First National Off 6 Points.

First National sold down 12 points, then came back to close 6 points lower for the week at 85 bid, 89 asked. Both institutions are national banks, to whom the RFC chairman is especially anxious to sell the idea of issuing preferred stock.

The Northern Trust, and Harris Trust and Savings, both state institutions, were little affected by the preferred stock furor. Harris Trust closed unchanged at 235 to 245, and Northern was steady at 380 to 385.

RUBBERMEN WORK ON CODE; DIFFER ON PRODUCTION

Cleveland, O., Sept. 23.—(AP)—A conference of executives of leading rubber companies was held today in an effort to draft a code that will be acceptable to all. Their conclusions will be presented to a general meeting of executives of rubber companies in New York Tuesday.

One of the principal difficulties in the way of reaching an agreement was said to be an attempt to agree on a balanced production clause.

WOODLAWN BUSINESS DISTRICT TO OBTAIN BANKING FACILITIES

The Woodlawn business district will have banking facilities soon again, it was indicated yesterday. The district has been without a bank for more than a year.

J. J. Burgess, receiver for the Washington National building, 6308 Cottage Grove avenue, formerly occupied by the Washington Park National bank, said that the quarters will soon be taken over by an "old established banking concern." Mr. Burgess did not name the bank. It was reported, however, that the Drexel State bank, [illegible] Cottage Grove avenue, may move its business south. Officials of the bank could not be reached yesterday.

It was also learned that a group of former officials of the Midway State bank, 6236 Cottage Grove, are considering the organization of a new national bank. The Midway bank closed voluntarily eighteen months ago and paid off depositors in full.

Mr. Burgess said that the bank to take over the Washington Park quarters has a capital of $300,000, surplus of $100,000, and reserve and undivided profits of $100,000.

World Trade of U.S. Goes Far in "Red"

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—America's largest unfavorable foreign trade balance in seven years was reported today by the commerce department for August, when imports exceeded exports by $24,000,0000.

Ordinarily the balance is on the other side of the ledger, with American business men selling more abroad than they buy in foreign markets. Including August, only four months in the last 72 have shown unfavorable balances.

August exports totaled $131,000,000, as compared with $144,194,000 in July and $108,599,000 in August, 1932. Imports stood at $155,000,000, while the July figure was $142,980,000 and that of August, 1932, was $91,102,000.

For the first eight months of 1933, exports aggregated $944,527,000, compared with $1,055,441,000 in 1932. Imports totaled $890,131,000 and $917,309,000. The eight months gave a favorable balance of $54,396,000 for 1933 and of $138,132,000 for 1932.

Higher Prices Draw Exports.

"Rising import totals during each of the last four months have resulted from an enlarged volume of trade at high dollar prices," said E. A. Tupper of the division of economic research.

"Expanding domestic activity has been partly responsible for the greater import demand, but the possibility of still higher dollar prices for foreign merchandise has exerted an important influence on this trade.

"The gold exchange value of the dollar averaged 38 per cent less in August than six months earlier. This declining rate of exchange is evidently stimulating immediate purchases of foreign goods. As a result of the exchange movement more dollars are required to purchase these goods. In the long run this will tend to discourage their use as substitutes for domestic products."

Tupper explained that in August the value of both exports and imports generally shows an increase of about 5 per cent, while this year imports were up 8 per cent and exports off about 9. There was an unusual increase of 20 per cent from June to July, he said, adding this had been only partially offset by the August totals.

Explains Drop in Exports.

Tupper interpreted the decline in exports as a readjustment following an unusually large total for the preceding month.

"Smaller exports of unmanufactured cotton and petroleum, both of which increased sharply from June to July, contrary to the usual seasonal movement, were largely responsible for the lower export value in August," he said.

Although imports from all geographic regions tended to increase, gains were relatively small from Central and South America, with the exception of Argentina, Tupper added. He said that "imports from Canada, the Philippine islands, Japan, and the United Kingdom, our four leading suppliers, have shown marked increases.

The largest unfavorable trade balance of recent years was $68,000,000 in March, 1926, due almost entirely to the high price of rubber, then a British monopoly. In the last six years there have been adverse balances of $2,457,000 last June, $1,871,000 in August, 1931, and $15,136,000 in May, 1929.

COURT ORDER HALTS WORK ON NEW EXCHANGE

N. Y. Board's Move to Escape Tax Hit.

New York, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—With the announcement today that Newark had been selected as the location for the New Jersey Stock exchange, the authorities there immediately began renovation of their Center Market property in preparation for the actual transfer of the New York security market to New Jersey.

A crew of workmen began dismantling the garage equipment in the structure, while telephone men started installation of the necessary communications facilities and engineers and draftsmen set to work designing the remodeling of the property.

Their activity was halted by court order late tonight when Vice Chancellor John J. Fallon, in Hoboken, granted an order to the present lessees, the City Center corporation, restraining the city of Newark from interfering with the corporation's possession of the property.

Must Show Cause Oct. 3.

In granting the order Vice Chancellor Fallon cited the city to show cause on Tuesday, Oct. 3, why an injunction should not be issued restraining the city from interfering with the corporation in that possession.

The vice chancellor added a provision to the restraining order that either party might sue for a modification of it upon three days' notice. The order and citation was returnable in Newark. At once, Mr. Fallon mailed the documents to the chambers of the chancellor in Trenton.

In their bill of complaint the City Center corporation pointed out that it had a fifty year lease on the property. To protect it it put up $100,000 as security, which later was reduced to $50,000.

An ejectment suit for nonpayment for rent was started in the District court in August, it was admitted, asserting the suit was not prosecuted. In Newark, however, it was said the suit is scheduled for a hearing before Judge Cecil H. McMahon Tuesday.

The corporation said it was ready to make the rent payment due, but it's proffer of the proper sum had been rejected. This, it argued, jeopardizes a valuable leasehold.

Before the arrival of the crew of workmen, the complaint asserted, a man presented to an officer of the corporation a letter from Commissioner Anthony F. Minisi, ordering the lessees to turn the property over to the bearer. Then the workmen began dismantling the property and installing a telephone system.

Cites Considerable Loss.

The corporation claimed that the interference with its business resulted in a considerable loss, jeopardized a valuable leasehold and the $50,000 security it had offered.

Vice Chancellor Fallon granted the citation and the order on representations that the attorney for the plaintiff could not find a vice chancellor before whom to present its case in Newark. He will not hear the case, he said.

The New York Stock exchange selected the site in New Jersey to escape the taxes on stock transfers and brokers' income imposed by New York City and the state.

Howard Froelick, chairman of the committee of organization of the New Jersey exchange, and Mayor M. C. Ellenstein of Newark, jointly made the announcement which called for the transfer from New York of a large part of the security business which has centered here for more than a century and a half.

Rent $25,000 First Year.

It is understood that Mayor Ellenstein approved of the terms of the lease by telephone from Chicago. The terms provide for a payment of $25,000 for the first year, $50,000 for the second, and $100,000 for the next three.

"The Center Market building is ideally suited to the needs of the New Jersey Stock exchange," Mr. Froelick said. "It will provide a trading floor substantially larger than that of the New York Stock exchange.

"The proximity of Jersey City to the offices of members of the exchange at present situated in downtown New York makes it the logical place for this organization, which will receive and deliver the securities traded on the New Jersey Stock exchange."

Costs to Be Reduced.

Members of the New York Stock exchange appeared enthusiastic today over the outlook of starting trading on the New Jersey Stock exchange. In addition to the probability of improved trading service to the public, they could perceive a substantial reduction in their overhead, including office rent and the elimination of the New York state tax of $4 a hundred shares on the transfer of stock.

Members of the stock exchange continued today to file applications for membership in the New Jersey Stock exchange. By noon 1,283 applications had been received.

Applications for membership in the New Jersey Curb exchange, to be formed by members of the New York Curb exchange, increased today to 686. There are 590 members in the New York Curb exchange which also is expected to locate in Newark.

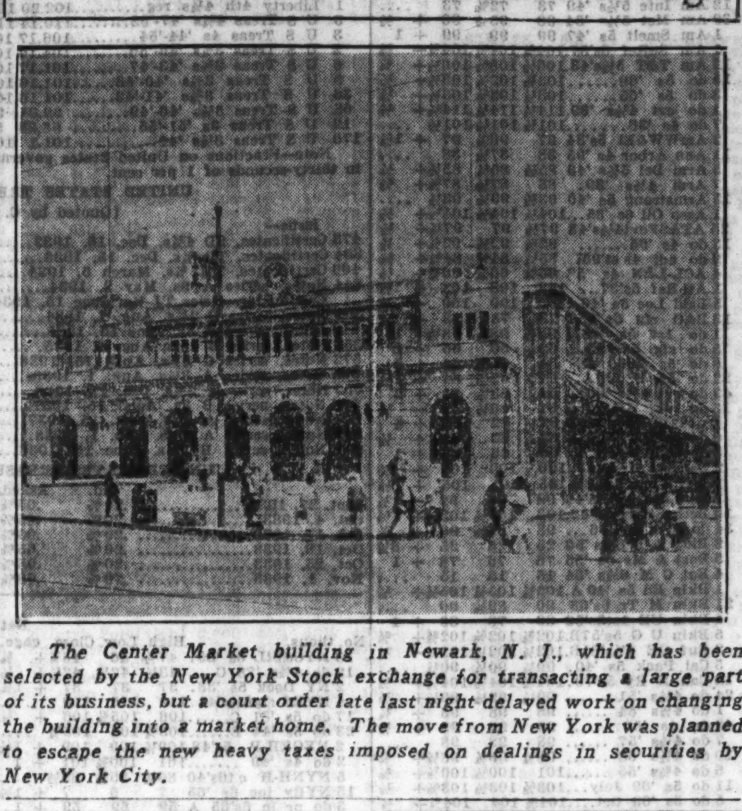
Court Order Halts New Stock Exchange



The Center Market building in Newark, N. J., which has been selected by the New York Stock exchange for transacting a large part of its business, but a court order late last night delayed work on changing the building into a market home. The move from New York was planned to escape the new heavy taxes imposed on dealings in securities by New York City.

Begin Fight for Financial Trade Here

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

With the speech making and resolution drafting behind them, the committees selected to promote Chicago as a securities and financial center yesterday completed arrangements for the determined drive that opens tomorrow morning.

The Chicago Association of Commerce committee, headed by Mark A. Brown, yesterday made public a list of 56 large middle western corporations whose securities will be sought for Chicago exchanges. The principal operations of all the companies named are in the middle west as are a great number of the stockholders.

It is the expressed purpose of the committee to get these companies to list their securities on the Chicago market.

First Step in Diverting Trade.

This is the first step toward diverting the middle western business in these issues now clearing through eastern exchanges to the Chicago markets. By so doing stockholders will save millions in stock transfer taxes which would otherwise go into the coffers of the city and state of New York.

The list of companies with which the Brown committee will begin follows:

Addressograph-Multigraph corporation.
Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company.
American Radiator and Standard Sanitary company.
American Seating company.
American Steel Foundries, Inc.
Aviation corporation.
Baltimore and Ohio railroad.
Barnsdall corporation.
Borden company.
Brunswick-Balke-Collender company.
Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railroad.
Caterpillar Tractor company.
J. I. Case company.
Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad.
Chicago Great Western railroad.
Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad.
Chrysler corporation.
Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company.
Container corporation.
Corn Products Refining company.
Deere & Co.
Fairbanks, Morse & Co.
Florsheim Shoe company.
General Motors corporation.
Great Western Sugar company.
Holland Furnace company.
International Harvester company.
International Shoe company.
Jewel Tea company.
Kelvinator corporation.
Kroger Grocery company.
Lambert company.
Libby-Owens-Ford Glass company.
Link Belt company.
Loose Wiles Biscuit company.
Nash Motors company.
National Biscuit company.
Owens Illinois Glass company.
J. C. Penney company.
Phillips Petroleum company.
Pullman, Inc.
Pure Oil company.
Purity Bakeries, Inc.
Real Silk Hosiery Mills, Inc.
National Tea company.
Simmons company.
Skelly Oil company.
Stewart-Warner corporation.
Texas corporation.
Electric Auto-Lite company.
Liquid Carbonic company.
Timken Roller Bearing company.
Transamerica corporation.
Montgomery Ward & Co.
Wilson & Co.

Chicago Is Favored Today.

The Brown committee is sponsoring the cause of all the Chicago markets, with no particular exchange being favored. Officials of the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Stock exchange were laying plans for diversifying their stock listings and creating active markets in issues now inactive.

Attempts have been made before to accomplish these ends, but never before have the circumstances favored Chicago as they do today. The confusion in the minds of investors over the organization of a new exchange in New Jersey to handle the business now done on the New York exchange will work to the benefit of the Chicago markets, it is contended. The makeshift arrangement of the New York brokers to escape the onerous New York taxes is not likely to attract the middle western business that formerly went east, it is claimed here.

Also Seeks Eastern Trade.

While the committee went ahead with its plan the Chicago Board of Trade announced that it has already launched a determined drive to bring eastern trade in securities to the board.

"Eastern houses of issue have been invited to participate in a larger way in securities on the Board of Trade," Robert P. Boylan, vice president and chairman of the stock list committee, said.

"The evidence that results have been achieved is found in many inquiries pertaining to listings which our securities department has received recently and which are being considered."

Not only the tax savings, but the quicker delivery on stocks traded in Chicago is being stressed by the Board of Trade officials.

"We naturally point out as another Chicago advantage," Boylan said, "that western commission houses can retain a larger proportion of their commissions when conducting their trading operations on the Board of Trade."

AMERICAN DOLLAR STAGES FIRST RISE IN LAST TWO WEEKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 23.—The American dollar today staged its first advance in two weeks against leading foreign currencies. The dollar was worth 64.71 cents at the close as measured in French gold francs, an advance of 33 points from last night's final price.

Despite the advance in the dollar quotations the treasury fixed a higher price for newly mined gold. The bid announced was $31.86, an advance of 11 cents over yesterday's price. It was explained that yesterday's price was fixed before the late slump in the dollar and today's higher price reflects the current market.

In the London market the dollar opened 2 cents weaker, at $4.79, but advanced to close 1¼ cents higher at $4.73¼. After New York trading began the pound dropped to $4.78, a loss of 1½ cents for the day. The French franc closed at 6.05½ cents, a loss of 2¼ points.

Dutch guilders declined 25 points, to 62.40 cents, Canadian dollars advanced 12¼ points to 97.93¾ cents.

PLEDGED COTTON WILL BE SOLD TO HELP BORROWERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the farm credit administration, said today that sale of approximately 560,000 bales of cotton, pledged as collateral for seed and crop production loans prior to the crop of 1933, would be completed by Nov. 30.

Proceeds will be pooled for the amounts of borrowers. Payments will be made to borrowers where either the net sales proceeds or the value of the pledged cotton at 9½ cents exceeds the amount of the notes.

For every bale of spot cotton sold, a bale will be purchased in the futures market for the use of the secretary of agriculture in carrying out the acreage reduction program.

HOW TO INVEST THE FORGOTTEN WOMAN'S MITE?

Safe Use of Funds Forms Problem.

BY REUBEN CAHN.

What can a widow do with her money?

This is a question which is bewildering not a few women, who, finding themselves possessed today of inherited or insurance money, are seeking to invest their funds profitably and with safety.

The problem which confronts them is one of exceeding difficulty. For, investing, once a means of securing a return on one's accumulated funds has become a well nigh certain process of dissipating personal capital. This result has come about from the breakdown of business morality, the removal by government order of former investment safeguards, and most of all through the levying by practically all governments of confiscatory taxes.

Huge Fund Wiped Out.

Under the most favorable circumstances of the past, the selection of appropriate investments suitable to the circumstances of the individual involved many pitfalls. But what was difficult in ordinary times has today become an impossibility. Having what has been regarded as the best informed investment management available in this country, a 10 million dollar fund, established in 1907, which rose above a hundred million dollars at one time has been completely wiped out. Some less well informed have done better than this, but some even win shooting craps. Loss of capital during the last four years is a very general condition.

Today in the light of this experience, and particularly in the light of the conditions which now exist, those who would invest their funds wisely cannot know where to turn. To make the case specific, consider a widow left with $20,000 seeking to obtain an income adequate to maintain her and yet to conserve her capital.

Plight of Real Estate.

In ordinary times, real estate might have been appropriate for her funds. In the past, investments in good real estate have rewarded holders with steady income and a more or less regular rate of increase in value. But governmental expenditures have increased taxes so much that ownership of real estate and of investments based upon real estate have become liabilities instead of assets.

With $20,000 a widow could purchase a six apartment building in Chicago outright today. Assuming that she occupied one of the apartments and that the others were rented for $50 per month each, she would realize a total rental of $3,000. This assumes that all the apartments were rented throughout the year and that every tenant paid the full amount of his rent. That is, of course, an ideal condition obtained in but few cases.

Heavy Expenses to Meet.

There should be deducted at least $600 to allow for a vacancy and uncollectable rents. That brings the total down to $2,400. Based upon experience in apartment building management reported in THE TRIBUNE, the cost of decorating, janitor service, repairs, services, etc., would amount to $1,653, bringing the income down to $747. Assuming that the assessment of the property was made upon present values instead of the greater previous values, the tax bill would amount to $551, or nearly three-quarters of the net income from the building. But no allowance has as yet been made for the depreciation of the property. Assuming that the building would last twenty-five years, a 4 per cent depreciation allowance would amount to $500 per year, leaving the widow with a loss of $300 from her investment.

There is a further consideration. If the present efforts at raising prices by the national administration do not succeed the value of the building will soon be less than what was paid for it. The experience of owners of Chicago real estate in this regard has been so bad during the last few years that no one with the interests of the widow at heart would advise her to buy real estate.

HOW TO INVEST THE FORGOTTEN WOMAN'S MITE?

Safe Use of Widow's Funds Forms Problem.

Real Estate Bond Losses.

During the period immediately following the war it was the usual practice for widows to invest their inheritances in real estate bonds. That was particularly true in Chicago, the home of the real estate mortgage bond and of most of the leading real estate mortgage bond houses.

Although these houses could for many years make the claim that they had been many years in business without a loss to any who invested in their bonds, so great have the subsequent losses been that nearly all of the firms have been forced out of business.

Following is the current price of real estate mortgage bonds, originally sold to widows and others for $100:

	Bid.	Ask.
Adams Franklin, 6¼s, '41	14½	17
Arlington, The, 6½s	8	10
Baker Hotels [Dallas] 6½s, '45	20	22½
Clark-Arlington Garage, 6¼s, '38	6	9
Faust, The, 6½s	4	6
New Rockwood Terrace, 6s	7	10
The St. Clair, 6¼s, '30	8	9½
The Windermere, 5s, '47	9	12

Certainly no widow could be encouraged to rely upon this type of investment at the present time for financial independence.

Mortgages Also in Trouble.

A type of investment which also was based upon real estate and which was commonly recommended for widows and orphans before the war was the real estate mortgage. But the same objections now apply to real estate mortgages as apply to real estate mortgage bonds or real estate. Extravagant expenditures of money by governments have made taxes so high that it is more common to default on the interest and principal on mortgages than to pay.

During the first 7 months of 1933 there were 11,122 foreclosures in Cook county for a total of 272 million dollars. This was a quarter less than in the same period last year, but the amount was nearly five times the total of new mortgages written during the same period. And by no means are all defaulted mortgages foreclosed. In these circumstances a real estate mortgage cannot be approved as a reliable investment for our widow.

Cities Fail on Obligations.

Municipal bonds were formerly regarded as conservative. They were obligations of cities, were exempt from federal income taxes and were bought by our very best people. However, the interest and principal of municipal bonds has to come out of taxes. And the expenditures of governments have gone so far beyond the capacity of the people to pay taxes that the cities have not been meeting the interest and principal on their obligations, in a very large number of cases. The defaulters include some of the largest and statistically wealthiest cities in the country. In these days a municipal bond is not a dependable source of income.

The bonds of leading railroad and industrial concerns were long considered prime investments and some of them are still so regarded. However, even with the best selection of bonds there are now great risks. The government, having suspended the gold clause in bonds, they are now payable in current dollars. And with inflation threatened and even realized in part, no one could reasonably indorse an investment payable in dollars, which are diminishing in purchasing power. The present dollar with which the bonds and the interest on them may be paid is already reduced to a 65 cent unit, measured by reference to gold. A leading senator says that the further depreciation to a fifty cent dollar is likely. The selling of bonds by informed investors during the last week or more in anticipation of a cheapened dollar has driven bond prices down sharply. We cannot indorse an investment for the widow when depreciation seems more than probable.

Gold Clause Repudiated.

A similar objection applies to government bonds. The gold clause in them has been repudiated and in addition the rate of return for those of nearby maturities is exceedingly small. Informed selling has been going on in this type of investment also during recent weeks with prices declining as a consequence.

Some types of stocks might be suitable investments for a business man, but with the uncertainties existing at present and the great increases that have already been registered in the prices of common stocks, they can hardly be considered as appropriate for a widow's funds.

What is our $20,000 widow to do with her money? He is a hardy optimist, indeed, who would presume to tell her how she can invest her money with some reasonable prospect of getting an income and retaining a substantial portion of the principal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 23.—The price of silver has appreciated about 43 per cent over the average value of the white metal last year with the result that prospects of silver mining companies are brighter than they have been in several years.

Silver sold in the spot metal market for 40½ cents an ounce here today, the highest price since May, 1930. Sales for future delivery were made at prices as high as 43¼ cents on the commodity exchange, on contracts due next May. These were the highest prices paid in this market since May, 1930.

The top price for silver in 1931 was 37¼ cents an ounce, while the maximum price in 1932 was 31 cents.

24¼ Cents Lowest Price.

The lowest price on record for silver was 24¼ cents in December, 1932. The lowest price paid this year was 24½ cents, last January. The appreciation in value at maximum prices this week was about 65.3 per cent. The average price last year was 27.8 cents an ounce.

The silver market in New York today is probably the most active in that metal in the world. As a result of the demand for the metal it has been selling recently at a premium over the London market, which is recognized as the world center for metals, although that premium has not been sufficiently high to render it profitable to buy silver abroad and ship it to this city for sale.

Many Factors in Rise.

The rise in prices is ascribed to a variety of factors besides the belief that the government will launch a campaign of currency inflation. Among these are the improvement in commodity prices generally, the end of sales by India, purchase of the metal by the United States government, and the authorization by Washington to foreign nations to pay part of their debt in silver.

Many people are converting dollars into commodities, of which silver is one of the favorites. Dealings in the metal are conducted on the commodity exchange, where active speculation has been going on for months. Transactions for the eight months ended with August this year totaled 33,703 contracts of 25,000 ounces each, or a grand total of 842,575,000 ounces.

Stocks Are Increasing.

The activity of the silver market here and the great rise in price has resulted in a substantial movement of the white metal to this city. Safe deposit vaults are choked with silver.

While there are no official figures on the amount of such hoardings, it is estimated in the trade that the aggregate runs all the way from 100 to 125 million ounces. At current prices that metal is worth anywhere from 40 to 50 million dollars. Before active speculation in silver started there were no stocks of silver here worth mentioning.

Reading Reports August Net Operating Income Up

New York, Sept. 23.—The Reading company reports August net operating income of $1,478,689 against $1,069,719 a year ago. St. Louis Southwestern's August gross totaled $1,084,917, compared with $885,222 last year. Net operating income for the month was $108,697, contrasting with a deficit of $169,491 a year ago.

An August deficit of $276,069 was reported by the Soo Line system, compared with a $716,791 deficit in the same month last year. The Soo line proper lost $288,385 last month.

Postal Opens 32 Offices in Indiana and Illinois

The Postal Telegraph-Cable company has opened fourteen new offices in northern Illinois and eighteen in southern Indiana in the last thirty days, Ellery W. Stone, vice president, said yesterday. Mr. Stone is here attending a conference of divisional executives. The additions result from the steady improvement in business, Mr. Stone declared. Further expansion will be carried out, he said. The company's central division, with headquarters in Chicago, now has 1,000 direct telegraph points.

COMMODITY PRICES SHIFT WITH GREAT RAPIDITY FOR WEEK

Commodity prices fluctuated with extreme rapidity in the last week, in the main reflecting the various developments regarding inflation. Wheat had a range of more than 10 cents for the week, and closed 5¼ cents under the close of the preceding week. Cotton, coffee, rubber and silver were the only commodities to close higher than a week ago. Final trades on leading commodities the last two weeks and lowest levels of the season follow:

PRICES OF WHEAT RISE ON FEDERAL RECOVERY MOVES

Small Buyers Active in Closing Trade.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The grain trade yesterday construed President Roosevelt's latest ideas as how to keep agricultural products and general business on the upgrade as constructive.

While his plans were regarded as inflationary, operators generally were highly pleased with the prospect of a release of frozen bank deposits and took the buying side at the opening.

Wheat advanced as much as 3 cents at the start on the Chicago Board of Trade with the May soaring to 96¾ cents, 5½ cents above the low of the previous day, before the bulge was checked. A good reaction on profit taking followed, but the close was within a fraction of the top, many traders taking the buying side late in the session on the belief further developments might occur over the week-end favorable to higher prices.

Net Gains 2¾ to 3 Cents.

Net gains on wheat for the day were 2¾ to 3 cents, with December 92 to 92¼ cents, and May 96⅜ to 96½ cents. Corn gained 1⅞ to 2 cents with December closing at 52⅝ to 52¾ cents. Oats were up 1⅛ to 1¼ cents with December 40½ to 40⅝ cents and rye 1⅜ to 1¾ cents higher at 71¾ for December. Barley gained strength due to buying by the northwest and was up 1⅜ to 2 cents at the finish with December at 59 cents.

The construction placed by the general public on the overnight developments at Washington was shown in the large number of small buying orders received by all grain commission houses. This class of buying, rather than spectacular purchases by local western and eastern speculators, was largely responsible for the upturn. A strong bullish undercurrent was noted in the trade gossip, especially in quarters that made an analysis of the proposed moves to stimulate general business.

No Big Outside Interest.

There was not the big outside interest in the markets which was so much in evidence during the height of the wild advance in July which carried the December wheat delivery up to $1.24. Price movements in the main were distinctly orderly, and all sharp dips found support.

In addition to the Washington news the corn market was helped by the announcement the federal hog and corn committee had reached an agreement and an attempt would be made to curtail the acreage to an extent that the crops of 1934 and 1935 might be cut down to around 2,000,000,000 bushels. This figure is around 800,000,000 bushels less than the average in recent years and the smallest since 1901. Local experts, however, were not inclined to comment freely on the proposition until it was presented in detail and could be analyzed.

Molasses Plan Interests Trade.

The proposition which seeks to curtail imports of black strap molasses, which has competed heavily with corn in recent years in the production of alcohol, attracted considerable attention in view of the prospective ending of prohibition in the next few months.

Routine news again failed to have any effect on the grain markets. Winnipeg wheat was ⅝ cent to ¾ cent higher at the close with export sales of 500,000 bushels or more. Liverpool wheat was ⅛ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower. Good rains were reported in the Argentine, ranging from ½ to 1½ inches, and crop reports on all grains from that country were more favorable.

Rye lagged somewhat as compared with wheat, due to persistent selling by northwest and Canadian interests. A cargo of 225,000 bushels of Canadian rye was due to arrive here overnight.

STOCKS CLIMB ANOTHER PEG ON NEW U. S. PLANS

Loans for Cotton Growers and Banks Help.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 23.—Overnight announcement of the government projects to lend the cotton farmer 10 cents a pound on this year's crop and to reopen banks still closed through RFC loans stimulated the stock market to fresh endeavors on the upside today.

The end of the two hour session found leading issues up anywhere from a fraction to 3 points over yesterday's closing figures. Liquor stocks and metals made the best showing. In the last named group, Federal Mining and Smelting, which has been trying lately to break into the circle of star performers, such as the repeal issues and awhile back by Auburn Auto and two or three other so-called volatiles, distinguished itself by a 10 point jump on a nominal turnover.

This issue has been bouncing all over the board for the last two or three weeks. A few days ago it went skyrocketing to a new peak of 103, which compares with its low of 15 some six or seven months ago. United States Smelting rose 4 points, National Lead, 3½, and a number of other mining issues bettered their ratings by a point or so.

In the repeal section, National Distillers clinched its leadership anew by moving up more than 2 points on brisk trading. Owens Glass, United States Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol and others, which have come to the front in such aggressive fashion since the state-by-state votes began to erase whatever doubt was left regarding the outcome of the move to repeal the 18th amendment, stepped up 1 to 2 points or more.

Farm Group in Demand.

Farm and mail order shares were in demand, as is usual when there is any bullish news about affecting the farmer. J. I. Case, International Harvester, Montgomery Ward and others shared in the popular favor.

The feeling in the speculative community seemed to be that the plan to buy cotton would silence for the time being, at least, the increasing clamor for currency expansion as an antidote for low prices of that commodity. The line of the administration's campaign for higher prices was more clearly defined, it was held, as a result of the announcement.

Talk of higher transit fares in New York as one of many proposals under consideration in the desperate effort of officials and bankers involved in loans to save the city from bankruptcy was reflected in a lively demand for local traction issues, especially Brooklyn, Manhattan and Interborough. The first named stock rose nearly 3 points.

Oil Issues Are Active.

Oil stocks came in for their share of the day's buying in spite of the growing indications that the government will go slowly in exercising its authority to fix oil prices. Standard of Kansas stood out with a gain of more than 2 points.

Profit taking bore some of the old line leaders like United States Steel and American Can down from their highs of the day. Celanese rose more than 2 points. General Motors and Chrysler gained fractionally, as also did New York Central and Standard Brands.

The day's shares totaled 1,004,748 shares, which compares with a turnover of only 303,000 shares last Saturday.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was strong today, although trading was only of small proportions, with final prices 20 to 23 points net higher. Bleachable spot and September closed 4.80c, December 5.10c, January 5.18c, March 5.35c.

BUTTER AND EGGS FIRM

Butter and egg futures were unchanged to ⅛c higher at the close on the Chicago Mercantile exchange Saturday, receiving moderately active support in the last half hour. Butter continued quiet and eggs active.

Egg futures opened with fractional gains but eased later. Covering and new buying appeared near the close and a recovery set in. The four markets took out 5,200 cases more eggs than last year, which helped improve the buying. Butter dropped slightly early but support carried prices back at the last. Stocks moved rather heavily into storage, increasing the four market surplus 453,000 lbs. Sales: Butter, 14 cars; eggs, 200 cars.

HOGS CLOSE WEEK AT HIGHEST MARK IN MANY MONTHS

Light Weights Command Best Prices.

The recent announcement of the government agricultural committee, to the effect that an attempt would be made to lift hog prices and cut corn and hog production, failed to have any bullish effect on yesterday's hog market. In accordance with the usual tendency on Saturday, the market was dull and weak. Only a few droves of hogs were offered on the open market. Receipts of 35,000 included 25,000 government "bonus" pigs and sows and 8,000 hogs billed direct to packers.

Prices on the few desirable lightweights offered that scaled under 170 lbs. were steady. The bulk of the supply sold 10 to 15c under Friday's prices and the top was $5.30. The average was $4.70, off 5 cents from the previous day, 10c from Thursday, the highest day in many months.

Light Hogs Sell Best.

Hogs weighing under 200 lbs. have been scarce and have led the advance to higher ground. However, all classes have soared to the highest position in nearly two years, but the spread in prices for various weights has widened greatly.

The average price of hogs for last week was $4.60, a gain of 50 cents over the previous week, and 55c over the corresponding week of last year.

An unusual condition exists in the cattle market at present, and that is the relatively high position of the plainer grades of light steers and yearlings, including grassers and shortfeds. In other words, the spread in the price range is narrow, with these poorer grades crowding prices of choice, long fed steers.

Plain Cattle Strong.

Usually, at this time of the year these plainer grades are numerous and long fed cattle are relatively scarce, a condition that brings a substantial premium for quality and condition. Sellers were unable to sell steers above the $7 mark last week and the best cattle closed steady with a week earlier, but they did succeed in boosting the level of prices on the rank and file of the offerings.

Lighter eastern demand and lower prices for dressed lamb last week contributed to lower live lamb prices, but the market fluctuated widely and at times showed considerable strength. Receipts fluctuated just as widely, as the early decline served to hold back supplies. An advance of 50c or more followed, and this in turn brought in excessive numbers so that closing prices were again lower. The week's top of $7.75 was only 10c lower than that of the previous week.

Estimated Receipts.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 21,000 cattle, 70,000 hogs and 22,000 sheep; against 15,764 cattle, 61,752 hogs, and 25,495 sheep a week ago, and 21,974 cattle, 33,231 hogs and 27,152 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 47,000 cattle, 30,000 hogs and 80,000 sheep; against 45,648 cattle, 115,287 hogs and 104,618 sheep a year ago; and 52,620 cattle, 138,665 hogs and 135,011 sheep two years ago.

COTTON SHARPLY HIGHER

Cotton advanced around $2 a bale, lost the greater part of the gain, and finally closed 27 to 43 points up on futures in Chicago, with New York 33 to 49 points better on futures and 35 points up on the spots, the latter reaching 10.15 cents. New Orleans advanced 30 points to 9.90 cents, with Houston and Galveston the same. The government is expected to loan 10 cents on cotton, which is regarded by the trade as pegging the market. The census bureau report suggested 3,100,701 bales ginned to Sept. 16, as compared with 2,636,630 bales last year. The big movement is in Texas. Trade reports were given little attention.

LARD ADVANCES

Buying of lard was instigated by the latest move on the part of the government to advance hog and corn prices and sustain them at a higher level, starting Nov. 1. Prices advanced with an irregular trade and closed 5 to 12½ cents net higher on futures, with cash lard up 5 cents for regular at $5.87½, 2½ cents higher for loose at $5.02½, while leaf was wanted at $5, an advance of 12½ cents for the day. There were deliveries of 50,000 pounds on September contracts. A fair business was on in bellies, with futures unchanged to 2½ cents net lower, while cash lots were off 12½ cents at $5.87½. Pork loins were in demand at 9 to 15½ cents, the highest in several months. The general cash trade was fair. Hog prices were 10 to 15 cents lower and heavy receipts are expected Monday and for the new week.

EVANSTON CUTS OPERATING COST; REDUCES TAXES

Saves 27.2 Per Cent on Government.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Notable progress in tax reduction has been made in Evanston as a result of rigid economies put into effect in the operation of the city government. The favorable financial situation of this north shore suburb is disclosed in a report submitted to the city council by Herbert S. Simpson, chairman of the finance committee.

Mr. Simpson's report shows that the gross cost of operating the Evanston city government has been reduced from $28.17 per capita in 1931 to $20.51 per capita in 1933, or 27.2 per cent. After deducting revenues received by the city from licenses and other sources of the net cost, which must be met through general taxation, was reduced from $15.84 in 1931 to $8.78 in 1933. The per capita tax spread has been reduced from $18.39 in 1930 to $12.06 for 1933, or 34.4 per cent.

The figures shown in Mr. Simpson's report were obtained from an audit by E. M. Yahnke, an employé of an accounting firm which is engaged by the city to check its finances.

Cost Drops Sharply.

The total gross cost of running the city in 1931 was $1,830,412; in 1932 it was $1,665,047, and in 1933 it was $1,393,635. The net operating cost was $1,027,793 in 1931, $867,465 in 1932, and $640,659 in 1933.

"We were able to cut the cost of our government without curtailing any of our essential services," Ald. George Paddock explained yesterday. "Our police and other essential services are being carried on with the same high degree of efficiency now as obtained in the years before the depression. Our savings have been made in luxuries—pleasant to have when the cash for them was available, but not justified now when every one's income has been reduced.

Watch Lesser Items.

"In going over the operating costs of the various departments the finance committee applied the hatchet to the lesser items as well as to the major ones. We found that by watching the small items we could effect a worthwhile saving in the totals."

Mr. Simpson's report to the council discloses how close city operating costs are to the tax spread. In 1931 the $15.84 net per capita cost of operating the government compared with a tax spread of $14.35 per capita. The 1932 net operating cost of $13.16 compared with a probable tax spread of $13.91. The difference between the net cost and the tax spread in 1931 was obtained from a surplus left from previous years.

Mr. Simpson stated that for 1933 the net operating expense will be $8.78 per capita, compared with a tax spread of $12.06.

Hopes for Further Cut.

"The reason for this greater margin," Mr. Simpson stated, "is because of the nonpayment of taxes and the necessity of financing ourselves from an amount equaling 60 per cent of our 1933 tax levy because that is the limit against which tax warrants can be issued. There is every reason to believe that after the year 1933 has ended and before the 1933 taxes are spread we should be able to reduce the 1933 tax levy so that there will be a lesser cost per capita than is now contemplated."

The manner in which economies were put into force is found in a comparison of 1931 operating costs of a number of departments with 1933 costs. These disclose the following reductions: Public works, 54 per cent; building department, 51 per cent; sewer department, 40 per cent; police department, 30 per cent; fire department, 27 per cent; health department, 43 per cent; small park fund, 50 per cent, and playground fund, 70 per cent.

INDEX FIGURES INDICATE TRADE IS STABILIZING

New York, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Statistics appearing during the last week indicated a stabilizing business tendency, according to Moody's index figures for freight carloadings, electric power production, and steel ingot output.

These index figures are adjusted for seasonal variation—that is, if the change from the previous week should coincide with the normal seasonal change, the index figure would be unchanged.

MOTORS · TRAFFIC · HIGHWAYS

KEEP TO RIGHT RULE VIOLATED BY MANY AUTOS

Decreases Efficiency of Highways.

BY HAL FOUST.

One of the earliest rules of the road, "Keep to the right," is ignored by too many automobile drivers, increasing the hazards of travel and decreasing the efficiency of the public's investments in pavements.

In its earliest application, in the days of the ox carts, the elementary mandate was a direction to pull to the right of the center of the beaten path in passing a vehicle moving in the opposite direction, or in allowing a vehicle to pass from the rear. On today's broad pavements the rule means to keep the traffic lane closest to the right curb.

On Chicago's broad streets and boulevards many slow drivers hug the center line, forcing faster vehicles to make an illegal pass on the right of the overtaken motor. The situation is so common in Chicago that the general practice ignores the law on passing.

On Own Responsibility.

The civil courts, however, still hold that a driver passing to the right of an overtaken vehicle does so at his own risk and on his own responsibility and liability for any accident.

Section 40 of the Illinois motor vehicle code reads:

"Any such person operating a motor vehicle or motor bicycle shall, on overtaking any such horse, draft animal, or other vehicle, pass on the left side thereof, and a rider or driver of such horse, draft animal, or other vehicle shall, as soon as practicable, on signal, turn to the right of the center of the beaten track of such highway so as to allow free passage on the left.

"The rule might be posted to advantage on the city's main thoroughfare," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "It seems peculiar, but it's true nevertheless, that automobile drivers must be reminded to keep to the right. Motorcycle police also could help by waving slow vehicles to the right lane."

Careless Drivers.

On the forty foot rural highways most drivers obey the mandate, keeping in the outside lines except when passing. There are a few, however, who wander into the middle of the road, blocking traffic, negating the value of the millions spent in widening the arterial highways.

The Tribune roadster, in a tour in the metropolitan area last Sunday, encountered several of these careless, indifferent, or ignorant drivers. In Manheim road a sedan, with license Illinois 747-488, issued to F. C. Prueser, 1035 Elgin avenue, Forest Park, was overtaken as it was loafing in the lane next to the center line. Only after repeated sounding of the horn did it move to its proper lane, and after it was passed it again returned to the wrong lane.

Straddles Marker.

In Roosevelt road a car with license Illinois 753-827 (issed to Valentine and Anna Dall, 7556 Eggleston avenue) was overtaken suddenly on the downgrade of a hill. It was moving so slowly in the center lane that The Tribune roadster, traveling at a moderately brisk pace, was forced to pass on the right rather than swing to the left of the center line into the path of oncoming traffic.

In Waukegan road a roadster, Illinois 513-373 (issued to Elmer Stamper, 3d field artillery, Fort Sheridan), was riding astride a lone marker, blocking two traffic lanes. The driver was a young girl, apparently 12 or 13 years of age. A grown woman was with her.

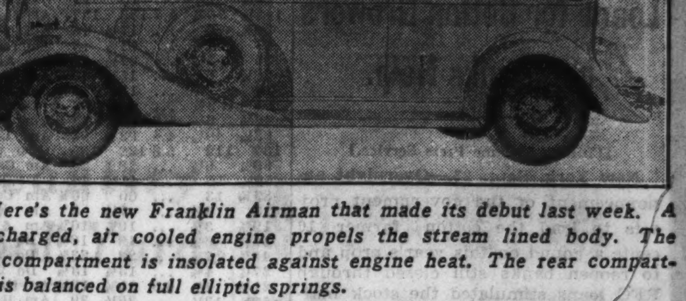
A truck, with license D-8126, carrying the name Bismark Beer, but loaded with household furniture, was riding the inside lane in Mannheim road.

No Lane Markers.

On River road, with no lane markers and with construction joints wandering from one side of the concrete to the other, a sedan with an Illinois plate, 657-229 (issued to August Sidowske, 3853 Leland avenue), was overtaken as it was straying far from the right edge of the road.

"You can't blame that driver," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, who was accompanying the inspection tour. "Where there are no lane markers the highway officials are responsible for disorderly traffic. But where the lanes are marked the drivers who fail to keep to the right should be disciplined, or at least lectured by the motorcycle police."

NEW FRANKLIN AIRMAN



Here's the new Franklin Airman that made its debut last week. A supercharged, air cooled engine propels the stream lined body. The front compartment is insolated against engine heat. The rear compartment is balanced on full elliptic springs.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Production of Ford cars and trucks in September has been scheduled at the same high daily rate as in August, it was announced at the offices of the company in Detroit. This situation, it was said, is unprecedented. August production was the greatest for the year to date.

August retail deliveries of Ford cars and trucks reached the greatest volume for the year thus far, and were 41 per cent greater than August, 1932, indicating the rising volume of Ford sales during a time when usually sales volume registers a decline.

The hand of the musician has entered into the building of motor cars. However, this latest recruit from the ranks of the arts has used his master touch to kill notes rather than produce them.

In the new model Packard cars the musician has been called upon to aid in suppressing exhaust noise and, it is said, with much success. Both the violin and the pipe organ contributed to the work.

In the muffler itself exhaust noise is directed through a slot by an inclined vane. Partitions catch it in compartments of the muffler and roll it back on itself. This development follows the pipe organ.

Definite nodes are established in the tail pipe, or tube which carries the exhaust gasses to the outer air from the muffler. These nodes function like the fingers on a violin string, although permanently located. They divide into many sections any exhaust vibrations which may escape into the tail pipe, just as the finger on a violin string divides the vibration of the string into sections. Splitting up the vibrations in this manner changes their frequency to the point where they are not heard at all.

Retail deliveries of Buick cars for the first 10 days of September are reported by W. F. Hufstader, Buick sales manager, at 182 per cent of the total for the corresponding period of last year.

Five days after they had participated in the record breaking assault on Pikes peak in the Labor day hill climb for stock cars, two Terraplanes stopped in Salt Lake City for a day and captured two more stock car performance records, running Terraplane's list for the last thirteen months to fifty-one. A few hours after the victorious efforts were finished the two cars and their drivers were on the highway headed for California in search of further A. A. A. records.

Pierce-Arrow shipments for August were 85 per cent greater than shipments for the corresponding month a year ago, according to Roy H. Faulkner, vice president in charge of sales. The company is confident of further increases in September, Mr. Faulkner said, because reports from distributors during the last few weeks have reflected a continued improvement in retail sales.

J. P. Fitzpatrick, salesman with Auburn-Chicago company, won first place in the recent nation-wide Auburn salon-dual ratio demonstration campaign in which cash prizes were awarded to distributors, dealers, and salesmen who reported the most demonstrations. By winning first place in the salesmen's division Mr. Fitzpatrick helped his firm win second place in the distributors' division.

J. L. Armstrong, A. L. Barlow, C. C. Clayton, W. J. Hicks, P. R. Moeller, C. D. Motherwell, and H. S. Watson, tire salesmen in the Chicago district for the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company, are among leading contestants in their company's nation-wide sales organization for the award of master merchandiser in 1933, it is announced by A. C. Kelly, Chicago district manager for Goodrich.

Chicago Fears Diversion Of Gasoline Tax

The Chicago Automobile Trade association, in its current weekly bulletin, is apprehensive of further diversion of highway funds for relief by the special session of legislature which will convene on Tuesday of next week.

"At this session," the bulletin reads, "another attempt will be made to divert the gasoline tax from highway purposes to provide unemployment relief money to be used chiefly in Cook county. A bond issue of $30,000,000 will be asked, to be repaid by each county receiving unemployment aid from its share of the gas tax.

Higher Truck Fees.

"Other legislation intended to produce revenue for the state may also be considered. It is said that if the governor includes additional state revenue in the call for the special session another attempt may be made to enact truck laws requiring higher license fees.

"All of these legislative matters are of vital importance to the automotive trade, as it is already carrying a heavy tax load and any further increase will only make the burden still worse.

"There is now outstanding another such bond issue which takes approximately one-half of Cook county's present share of the gas tax to meet principal and interest. This second issue if authorized would take practically all of this money and Cook county would be left without funds of this kind for road work for many years to come.

"At the special session in 1932 a $20,000,000 bond issue was authorized by the legislature. Revenue from these bonds proving insufficient, the regular session in 1933 enacted the two per cent sales tax. Now it is found that even this measure fails to meet the demands, so the state again looks with longing eyes upon the gas tax—the easiest way known to politicians to extract money from the public.

"A decision was handed down by the Supreme court a few months ago that diversion of the gas tax from road work is unconstitutional. While no effort has been made to apply this decision to the $20,000,000 bond issue already sold, which is being repaid from the gas tax, it has been suggested that this decision might apply to bond issues repaid from the gas tax. Should further efforts be made to divert this money to other than road purposes there is always the possibility of court action."

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

AN EVANSTON ARREST.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Might I cite the following incident as a warning to innocent motorists who may be contemplating a trip through Evanston? Recently I was riding with my boy friend and three other gentlemen down Asbury avenue at a maximum speed of 30 miles per hour between Howard avenue and Davis street. An Evanston motorcycle policeman pulled alongside of the car and calmly told us we were under arrest for speeding and to please follow him to the station.

The boy's father put up a $10 bond to insure his appearance in court. At the court the bailiff read the charge as follows: "The defendant is charged with speeding at a rate of 45 miles per hour between Howard avenue and Davis street and of passing six other cars while traveling at this speed." The truth is that we never exceeded 30 miles per hour, and furthermore never passed a single car. Other cars passed us, but the officer apparently didn't want to exert himself to catch these. Incidentally, it cost the young fellow $9 at the Evanston court of justice.

HAROLD C. JENSEN.

PARKING LOT GAG.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 18.—The great majority of national advertisers who are capitalizing upon A Century of Progress for increased trade are certainly within the bounds of the advertiser's code. Many of the smaller fry, however, are going far beyond the limits of decency.

Near the gates of the Fair the matter assumes large proportions, for the city of Chicago and its legitimate business reputation are at stake. For instance, a parking space at the foot of Cermak road, near the approach to the 23d street bridge has a large sign advertising, "PARKING: DAY or NIGHT, 25 CENTS."

The unsuspecting tourist who is willing to walk a few blocks to avoid the higher priced spaces drives in at 5:30 in the afternoon and returns for his car at 10 in the evening. "Fifty cents," says the attendant, and in response to the objections of his customer points to the word "or" on the sign and mentions a 6 o'clock deadline, which cannot be found on any sign. One night recently I watched ten consecutive arguments.

For that same 50 cents the tourist might drive two blocks closer to the Fair, obtain a prompt delivery service by a company whose advertising is accurate, and leave our city without a bad taste in his mouth.

JOSEPH WARD II.

ARRESTED AT FOX POINT.

Wilmette, Ill., Sept. 21.—You may be interested in my experience in being stopped by an officer of the village of Fox Point, Wis., on highway 141 on Sept. 4. I drove on Green Tree road, having the car under complete control at all times and finding the road entirely deserted. I stopped at the stop sign at the railroad close to the village hall of the village of Fox Point and then pulled out onto highway 141 and was then hailed by the officer, taken back to the village hall, and introduced to the chief of police. After some little discussion the chief suggested that I deposit a cash bond of $10 and I was given receipt.

It was quite apparent to me that they did not expect me to appear and that the entire procedure was designed so that the forfeiture of the cash bond was expected.

Frankly, the entire procedure impressed me as being a form of legalized racketeering, and until I hear that some effective curb has been put on this practice I intend to give Milwaukee and northern Wisconsin a wide berth on future week-end trips and recommend to my friends that they do the same.

OAK PARK, CICERO AT FAIR THIS WEEK

BERWYN PLANS GALA WEEK TO BOOST HOSPITAL

Carnival, Ball Game to Be Features.

Plans for a Berwyn Community Hospital week, to be held from Oct. 8 until Oct. 13, were announced last week by Dr. Edwin Russell, president of the Berwyn Kiwanis club, originator of the project. Dr. Russell heads several other civic organizations which will coöperate in boosting the hospital.

Activities of the week will begin with a ball game on Sunday, Oct. 8, between two civic groups, sponsored by the Young People's Civic club of Berwyn, of which Mrs. Frank Novotny, wife of Mayor Novotny, is president. David Abram is chairman in charge of arrangements for the game. The Young People's Civic club will also sponsor a Berwyn community hospital tag day during the week.

Dr. Charles Farrell of the Berwyn Lions club will head that group in sponsoring a food show. A movie will be shown at a Berwyn theater and the price of admission will be an item of canned goods.

Carnival on Friday.

A carnival, in which civic, social, and fraternal organizations of Berwyn will take part, will close the week on Friday, Oct. 13. Various organizations will be asked to take charge of booths and concessions. The carnival will be sponsored by the women's auxiliary of the hospital of which Mrs. Arthur MacNeal is president. The auxiliary committee making arrangements for the affair is composed of Mrs. R. A. Moore, Mrs. F. M. Lindley, and Mrs. H. P. Sumrow.

Tentative plans for a dance and a gift day are under discussion. Gifts acceptable by the hospital, according to Miss Marion Mann, superintendent of nurses, include bathrobes, footstools, dresser scarfs, flower vases, water pitchers, canned fruits or vegetables, cribs, bedroom slippers, diapers, baby shirts, nursing bottles, pickles, jams, jellies, and drinking glasses.

Open to Every One.

The Community hospital, at 3345 Oak Park avenue, was founded by the late Dr. Arthur MacNeal as a private institution. A short time after his death two years ago the hospital was turned over to the community as a nonprofit organization. It is open to all physicians and patients in Berwyn and the surrounding community.

Members of the hospital board of directors are F. L. Dole, president; E. J. Drije, vice president, and Arthur A. R. Nelson, secretary-treasurer.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

TWO members of the Parkholme Democratic club lost a close race with the stork, it was learned last week. Mrs. Catherine McDermott of 6109 West Roosevelt road gave birth to a baby girl in the automobile of Mrs. Florence Sheridan, 6015 West Roosevelt road, recently on the way to St. Anthony's hospital, where the event was scheduled to take place. The two women were stopped on the way by a motorcycle policeman, who accompanied them to the hospital. Baby, who tipped the scales at eight pounds and four ounces, will be called Cathleen. Walter McDermott is the proud daddy.

With the celebration of Oak Park's 100th anniversary at A Century of Progress looming in the near future, Philander W. Barclay, old time villager, brought forth from his collection of more than a thousand pictures of Oak Park a bird's eye view of the village drawn in 1873 by a German artist. The view is looking southwest and shows River Forest and Forest Park as they looked in the days when this section was known as Harlem.

MRS. M. C. FRAZIER, 321 Highland avenue, Villa Park, entertained her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Smith of Oskaloosa, Ia., Wednesday at A Century of Progress. The occasion was the 57th wedding anniversary of the Smiths, who visited the Centennial in Philadelphia on their wedding trip in 1876 and also attended the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893.

THE 93d birthday of Mrs. Margaret Kamin was observed last week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Irene Becker, with whom she resides at 5021 Wabansia avenue. Many friends and relatives visited Mrs. Kamin this day. She is an early settler of Chicago, has six children, twelve grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, and one great, great-grandchild. She is in good health and spends her spare time in reading, all of which we think is some record!

Opens Drive to Beautify School Yards

An appeal to beautify every school yard with a view to inspire similar development in surrounding homes and the entire community has been made by Otto F. Aken, county superintendent of schools.

"Every school yard," said Supt. Aken, "should be landscaped from a definite design. It should be beautiful with trees, shrubs, flowers, and a well kept lawn, and have flower and vegetable gardens for the lower grades."

Supt. Aken points out that where cities, towns, and villages have redeemed unsightly school yards, civic pride has been aroused. The attractive school center furnishes an incentive to make the home yard attractive. The real estate man appreciates the consequent increase in values. Pupil, parent, and property owner are benefited.

In answer to the question of various school boards and teaching staffs on how added responsibilities and expense may be assumed at a time when teaching work and income have both been curtailed, Mr. Aken explained that the work is to become a part and be substituted for the present school achievement and school home project program.

"Learn to Do by Doing."

"We must help the economic conditions of the child, parent, and community," he said. We return to Edward J. Tobin's slogan 'Learn to Do by Doing,' to help the community so that it can again help us from increased incomes."

J. H. Prost, consulting garden expert of the county school system, declared that the execution of the landscape design of the school yard should be sponsored by the school boards, in many cases the older school boy, the parents, and the board members doing the actual work under expert direction.

"Trees, shrubs, and flowers needed may be obtained from nurseries maintained by the various park systems and the forest preserve," he continued. "In many cases public and private donations may be obtained from local nurseries and citizens interested in beautifying the school yards. This has been done in many communities throughout the nation.

"The older boys can develop and maintain a small nursery near the schools. Trees, shrubs, and flowers can be propagated from cuttings, seeds, and root divisions. This nursery and propagating work is simple and most fascinating for boys. Think what pride and satisfaction these boys and girls will experience in after years, when, as grownups, they return for a visit to the school of their childhood days, where they planted this elm, that maple, linden, ash, or mulberry tree."

Expert to Give Aid.

As a suggestive outline, to be revised and improved upon where possible and desirable, upper grade pupils are to make drawings and designs for landscaping of school grounds and the expert will help with suggestions, instructions, and advice Credit will be given as for school-home project work and the best design will be given meritorious recognition. A final plan will be compiled from these school plans, approved by the superintendent and adopted by the school board as a permanent landscape design to be executed as time and conditions permit.

It has also been suggested that lower grade pupils make school yard or vacant lot vegetable garden and flower garden plans. A further suggestion is that pupils and their parents make and submit plans for their home yard beautification, these to be inspected, improved, and approved by the garden expert, and the work to be done at the various school-home project meetings.

School yard beautification, school vegetable gardens, and home yard gardening, comprise the three divisions of community improvements in the program.

A Model for Community.

Mr. Aken pointed out that beautiful school grounds would not only help train the chold to know and appreciate the value of gardening, but beautiful school grounds would become a model for the community, where the home owner could learn by example just how to beautify his own home yard.

Beautiful school yards would stimulate community gardening, it is held, making a suburban community a more desirable place to live in increasing the value of real estate, and providing ultimately a larger and surer tax return for school operations.

"This is one thing we can do as an educational contribution to help the present conditions of our outlying communities," said Supt. Aken.

Mr. Prost, who has been engaged to direct and supervise the work, has had long training in gardening. He has a degree in landscape architecture from the Michigan State college, worked as a landscape gardener in the Chicago parks when the war garden campaign was conducted during 1917 and 1918, and has contributed many articles on city forestry, school gardening, and home yard beautification.

200 FAMILY CO-OP. IS PLANNED FOR WEST SUBURBS

A coöperative community project which is designed to provide for the future welfare of at least 200 families, operating under the NRA, is being planned by an organization with Lincoln Zavertnik of Clarendon Hills as chairman, and James D. Black of Westmont as secretary.

The movement has in mind a membership that will not only include tillers of the soil, but men of various vocations and crafts. The community plans to raise its own foodstuffs, provide electric current, grind its wheat, bake bread, slaughter animals, and conduct a dairy.

EXPECT 65,000 TO TURN OUT ON SPECIAL DAYS

Schools and Stores to Be Closed.

The streets of Oak Park and Cicero may be as deserted as those of abandoned mining towns of the west two days this week when these communities have their days at A Century of Progress. On Wednesday 20,000 Oak Parkers are expected to join the festivities at the Fair and 45,000 residents of Cicero are expected to turn out for Friday for their gala day.

All schools, business houses and stores will be closed in both suburbs on their respective special days. Residents will flock to the Fair grounds in special trains, buses, and automobiles. Buses will leave the World's Fair bureau in Oak Park at 9:15 and 11:15 o'clock and at 1:30 and 6 o'clock. Buses will stop for passengers also at the Municipal building and the Oak Park Arms hotel. Special trains will be added to the Lake street elevated lines as needed.

The 18th street entrance to the Fair grounds has been recommended to those driving their own cars as being the most accessible to Oak Park day events. Tickets for Oak Park day are on sale in all Oak Park banks, elevated platforms and at A Century of Progress bureau there.

McFeely to Give Welcome.

Willis McFeely, president of Oak Park, will make a welcoming speech prior to the historical pageant to be given at 8 o'clock. A final rehearsal of the pageant will be held today in the fieldhouse of Oak Park and River Forest Township High school. Costuming of the 2,000 participants has been handled by Mrs. Hugh Duffield, Mrs. Frederic T. Metcalf, Miss Eleanor Wells, Miss Marjorie Lufkin, and Mrs. G. V. White.

As a feature of the Oak Park day celebration and at the suggestion of Dudley Meyers, commissioner of public works in Oak Park, the week of Oak Park day, Sept. 25 to 30, has been declared homecoming week in Oak Park. Oak Parkers have been urged to write to former residents, asking them to be present at the Fair on Sept. 27.

Changes in Schedule.

Changes in the tentative Oak Park day program announced in last Sunday's west side Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE are as follows: Historical pageant at 8 o'clock instead of 8:30 o'clock; musical program at Illinois Host building, Court of Hall of States, Little theater on Enchanted island, Hall of Religion, Court of Hall of Science, from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m., instead of from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Added to the program will be another presentation by Oak Park playground children at Enchanted island at 5 o'clock.

Cicero's Program on Friday.

Cicero's program will open Friday at 1 o'clock in the Court of the Hall of States with music by the grade schools band, an invocation by the Rev. John A. Dedera, welcoming speech by Joseph G. Cerny, president of Cicero; the coronation of "Miss Cicero," sponsored by the Cicero Tribune; a demonstration of physical education in Cicero schools, an address by George Schwebel, superintendent of schools; selections by the orchestra of J. Sterling Morton High school, the drum and bugle corps of the High school and the drum and bugle corps of Post No. 55, American Legion.

The prize essay, written by a Cicero school child on "Why Cicero Is a Good Place in Which to Live" will also be read at this time.

Program at Floating Theater.

At the Foating theater there will also be a program from 7 until 10. An invocation will be given by the Rev. Stuart Pratt and President Cerny will award the Cicero Tribune Softball league championship medal and also give the main address of the day. A program of dancing, singing, and drama will be presented by various clubs and organizations of the town. Prizes will be awarded to the oldest resident and also to the largest family present.

A drill and exercises will be presented by the Bohemian Sokol and music will be furnished by the Morton High school band, the drum and bugle corps of Post No. 55, American Legion, and the Aliabad bugle corps. Miss A. M. Knight will sing a solo.

"Miss Cicero," with her maids-in-waiting, selected in a contest sponsored by the Cicero Tribune will be given complete outfits by the town and during the evening will be taken over to Hollywood, where screen tests will be taken.

ELMHURST OPENS WITH A RECORD FRESHMAN CLASS

Classes at Elmhurst college began last Wednesday with an enrollment of 100 freshmen, the largest group of newcomers at the school since 1930. The percentage of students from Elmhurst also shows an increase over recent years.

New members of the faculty include: Dr. E. H. Dummer, head of the German department; Prof. W. P. Carter, sociology; Prof. Paul Lehman, religion; Oliver M. Langhorst, athletic director; Dr. Rudolph Priepke, chemistry.

Prof. Lehmann is the son of Timothy Lehmann, president of the college, and has recently returned from a year of university work abroad. Dr. Priepke is taking the place of Dr. H. H. Helmick, on leave of absence for a year. Prof H. L. Kreiterbach, of the German department, is taking a year's leave for study at Northwestern university.

DR. RICE IS HERE TO AID MINISTERS WITH PROBLEMS

Opens Federation Parley Tomorrow.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dr. Merton S. Rice, widely known Methodist pastor of Detroit, will open the monthly union ministers' meeting sponsored by the Chicago church federation tomorrow morning at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 S. La Salle street. Dr. Rice is internationally noted for his success in solving pastoral problems and will discuss his methods before Chicago pastors.

The union pastors' meetings the last few years have attracted hundreds of the pastors of the city each month. Each meeting is devoted to some phase of pastoral interest.

Stress Evangelism.

In as much as the primary interest of the federation during the coming year is evangelistic, tomorrow's meeting will be held under the direction of the department of evangelism, with the Rev. Dr. Frank Wakefield presiding.

Next month's meeting will look toward what is expected to the greatest missionary demonstration ever held in Chicago. The demonstration will center about a great massmeeting at the Chicago Stadium Sunday afternoon, Nov. 5, when Dr. E. Stanley Jones will be the principal speaker. Following the massmeeting a series of conferences will be held which will present surveys of conditions found in all countries of the world.

Clements to Speak.

Dr. Robert Clements, president of the federation will deliver the keynote message prior to Dr. Rice's address. He will review plans for the coming fall and winter and describe the advance made in interdenominational coöperation under the federation auspices. Dr. Robert E. Pugh, secretary of the Illinois council of churches will make an announcement concerning the peace declamation contest to be held during the fall.

The missionary conference and massmeeting will be one of thirty similar meetings held in various metropolitan centers of the country under the general auspices of the National Missionary conference. Arrangements for the Chicago conference are being made by a special committee appointed by the Chicago church federation of which Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal church is the chairman.

WORLD'S FAIR RALLY

What Episcopalians consider the "World's Fair Rally" of that church, will occur next Friday night at the Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street. The affair has been announced as a missionary massmeeting celebrating the centennial of the Oxford movement.

This is the movement which, generally related to the high or "Catholic" wing of the Episcopal church, is credited with spiritual revitalization of the Anglican communion. It started at Oxford university when the Rev. John Keble preached the Assize sermon in which he bitterly attacked existing conditions in the established Church of England.

Bishop William T. Manning of New York will preach the sermon. The presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, the Rt. Rev. James DeWolf Perry, also is scheduled to be present to pronounce the blessing at the close of the service.

The Stadium will be converted into a religious edifice for the occasion.

It will be the first time in the 100 years of history of the denomination that a massmeeting on such proportions has been staged. Tickets for the service are being distributed free of charge through all Episcopal churches of the city and at the Episcopal exhibit in the Hall of Religions at the World's Fair. Numbers of churchmen and women are expected to come into the city from neighboring cities and towns to spend the day at the World's Fair and then to attend the Stadium service at night.

Cardinal Mundelein, representing Pope Pius XI., will perform the prescribed ceremonies and invest the jubilarian in St. Procopius church, Chicago, formerly the abbatial church of the Benedictines of Lisle, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

THE RT. REV. VALENTINE KOHLBECK.

The church program will consist of a procession from the St. Procopius rectory, the singing of a hymn, the reading of the brief or papal letter in Latin, English, and Czech; the singing of the "Veni Creator Spiritus," the profession of faith by the Rev. Mr. Kohlbeck, the blessing of the Cappa Magna, and English address by the cardinal, a Czech address by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Peter N. Cerveny, pastor of St. Procopius church, Cleveland; solemn benediction by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Kestl, pastor of Blessed Agnes church.

FIVE CHILDREN HELP COUPLE CELEBRATE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Married in Germany fifty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. John Hinz, 108 East Mineola avenue, Hinsdale, recently celebrated their golden wedding, surrounded by five of their children and five grandchildren. All but one year of their married life has been spent in the Chicago area. Mr. Hinz is 87 and his wife 77.

JOHN HINZ.

MRS. HINZ.

During his Chicago residence Mr. Hinz followed his trade as a butcher, but on moving to Hinsdale, 23 years ago, he became a gateman in the suburb for the Burlington railroad. It was work from which he retired reluctantly a year and a half ago.

While preventing accidents for more than two decades. Mr. Hinz was himself an accident victim three years ago when an automobile parked on the railroad embankment slid backward upon him.

FORWARDALWAYS RULE OF L. KLEIN STORE 64 YEARS

Anniversary Observance Starts Tomorrow.

Preserving the business principles of its founder and alert to the latest trends in the modern scene, the L. Klein store, Halsted, 14th and Liberty streets, tomorrow starts the observance of its 64th anniversary. The story of those 64 years gives ample proof that business may go hand in hand with romance.

An old photograph in the offices of Irving N. Klein, son of the founder and now head of the enterprise, shows a two story frame structure, the lower floor only given over to business. There is a board sidewalk in front of the place and oil lamps are used for street illumination. L. Klein had opened the one room "dry goods and notions emporium" with the first $500 he had saved after coming to Chicago as a German immigrant boy.

Mr. Klein had definite ideas of the sort of a store he wished to conduct. Goods were to have one price and be sold at small profit, and customers were to find the store something more than a mere place to trade. As he phrased it, patrons should receive "something more than is wrapped in the package."

Patronage of 4 Generations.

That first store was located only half a block away from the site of the present store with its selling space of 169,000 square feet. The modern four story building has, in fact, 112 times the space of that first store. But every effort has been made to retain the courtesy and individual attention to customers which existed in pioneer times. How well this spirit has been maintained is demonstrated through the patronage today of children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of the loyal customers of the store in the long ago.

There is an oil painting of L. Klein in the big store of today. Oct. 16 will mark the 89th birthday anniversary of the merchant who died in 1912, and following a long time custom, the day will be specially observed at the store.

Another painting portrays the store as it appears today. The architect, back in 1872, designed its first unit with a 16 foot ceiling that was a marvel of interest at the time. The great Chicago fire had missed the earlier Klein store, although located less than half a mile from where Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lantern.

Mrs. O'Leary a Customer.

Mrs. O'Leary, by the way, is said to have been a customer of the Klein store and a personal acquaintance of the owner.

It is significant that the architecture of the 1872 store has been incorporated into the building of today. Space was added in 1877, a new building added in 1890, a four story building added in 1892, a 70 foot addition made in 1894, a floor added in 1905, and the entire store enlarged in 1907.

The 64th anniversary sale at the L. Klein store, which starts tomorrow and will run three weeks, finds what is one of the oldest and largest of Chicago's out of the loop department stores flying the NRA flag, employing nearly 400 persons and drawing customers from all sections of the city and suburbs.

Expects Record Sale.

"We expect the anniversary sale to be greater than any the store has held since 1927," said Irving N. Klein. "There is very noticeably an atmosphere of renewed hope. One of the effects of the NRA has been the bringing of money out of hiding. Those who are employed have a new feeling of security and feel free to go ahead.

"The sale finds us liberally provided with merchandise at a reasonable price compared to today's wholesale costs. And this will enable us to feature with moderate prices for the present period.

"I feel that the NRA has united people more completely than they have ever been before during peace times. It has created a new hopefulness in the minds of the general public. Realization has come that we are to go on living and that eventually we will be happy and contented again, collectively and individually."

HOUSEWIVES UNITE FOR CONCERT

HARMONY CLUB TO APPEAR IN LOMBARD SOON

Concert Singers Will Hold Benefit.

A card party on Friday and rehearsals for a program to be given at Lombard early in October are taking the immediate attention of the Hinsdale Harmony club, a group of women singers residing in Hinsdale, Westmont, and Clarendon Hills.

Friday's card party, a benefit to provide funds for costumes to be worn at the Lombard program, as well as uniform evening gowns, will be held at the home of the club's director, Mrs. Margaretta Shott, 220 North Monroe street, Hinsdale. The club will present "Gypsy Bargain" at the First Methodist church in Lombard.

The club had its beginning two years ago at the time of THE TRIBUNE Music festival, when it was given fourth place in its classification. At the festival this year the club tied for first place with Naperville.

Legion Music Chairman.

Mrs. Shott, who has met with unusual success as a choral leader, became music chairman for the auxiliary of Hinsdale post, No. 250, of the American Legion five years ago. Her glee club of untrained voices went to the Aurora state convention and won first prize. The following year the club lost first place by two points in the competition at Peoria, and last year tied for first place with the Cook County Glee club at Danville.

For two years Mrs. Shott has been district director of music for the Eleventh district auxiliaries, and recently, at Rockford, the district carried off all of the prizes offered, the Downers Grove trio winning first place in its class. Mrs. Shott has recently been chosen state chairman of music for the auxiliary.

Although she studied for a time with William Shakespeare, Mrs. Shott's talent has been largely self-developed. Her father was a choir leader, and at seventeen she was leading her own choir at Hammonton, N. J. Her daughter, Miriam, 13, is the youngest member of the Harmony club, mostly made up of housewives.

Meets Every Monday.

The club meets every Monday night at Mrs. Shott's home, and when there is an overflow gathering rehearsals are held at the Union church of Hinsdale, where Mrs. Shott is soprano soloist.

Under a new arrangement men will be included in the club this season. There will be work on a mixed chorus as well as the women's chorus, and it is possible that the men will form a chorus of their own.

Nothing but classical music is studied by the club. New members are welcomed, but the process of elimination takes care of any overflow of talent. A fine spirit of friendliness prevails among the choristers, and the reputation of the group has spread to surrounding suburbs. Concerts have been given at St. Charles, Elmhurst, Lombard, Villa Park, Downers Grove, and Westmont.

Active members of the club at this time include Mrs. Anna Anderson, Mrs. Mame Balusek, Mrs. Pauline Borson, Miss Ethel Brodin, Mrs. Linda Cherry, Miss Ruth Cooper, Mrs. Pearl Frank, Mrs. Silena Kennedy, Miss Jarmila Klosik, Mrs. Dorothy Montgomery, Mrs. Elaine Paul, Mrs. Julie Phipps, Miss Lucille Marfrin, Miss Marie Marfrin, Mrs. Ann Bradford, Mrs. Hazel Donaldson, Mrs. Dorothy Cropp, Mrs. Martha Baur, Mrs. Maud Spier, Mrs. Elsie Stark, Mrs. Marian Waterfall, Mrs. Mary Weinbremmer, Mrs. Velma Evans, Mrs. Alice Beardsley, Mrs. Maud Faber, and Mrs. Ann Kensinger. Mrs. Helen Ruthheart is accompanist.

CHORUS LEADER

Mrs. Thirza Mosher Parmenter of Oak Park will lead the combined women's chorus of some 60 voices which will sing at Oak Park day, Wednesday at A Century of Progress.

VOICE of the WEST SIDE

APPRECIATION.

Just a note of deep appreciation to the sponsors of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE flower and garden honor roll contest, in which our garden won an outstanding place.

This is the first year we have entered into the competition, and to be named as one of the outstanding winners makes one feel proud of the effort and work that were put into the project.

A feeling of first surprise and then pride came to us as we opened up our TRIBUNE last Sunday and saw our garden pictures as one of the best. That very day brought many visitors to our home to view our garden.

We have informed many of our friends and neighbors how they, too, can enter the contest, and also advised them of the splendid information on gardening available in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE each week. Hoping that many more true gardeners will have the pleasure of sharing the same honor that was bestowed upon us, we remain, yours very truly,

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS DIVIS,

BUNDLE DRIVE FOR NEEDY TO BEGIN TUESDAY

Extends Over City and Suburbs.

The annual fall bundle campaign of the Chicago Christian Industrial league at 847 West Monroe street, to be held under the general chairmanship of Mrs. W. P. Shockey, will begin Tuesday and end Oct. 9, during which time housewives all over the city and suburbs will be asked to coöperate in aiding unfortunates.

Old clothes, shoes, papers, magazines, books, bedding, dishes, broken or discarded furniture, and other articles in disuse which now clutter up attics and basements will be brought forth to aid hundreds of men, women, and children, according to the Rev. William Seath, superintendent of the league, which now is entering its twenty-fourth year of service.

Split City into Sections.

Under the direction of Mrs. Shockey the city has been divided into eight districts and chairmen appointed to head each one. Mrs. Harry Lee is chairman of the southwest side division; Mrs. C. A. Phingsten, north shore; Mrs. John R. Oliver, west side; Mrs. Adelaide Krummell, Englewood; Miss Adelaide Burleson, southeast; Mrs. A. E. Ford, west suburbs; Mrs. Edward Halvorsen, northwest, and Mrs. Leo Hart, Edgewater.

Sub-committees will be appointed to canvass these territories and bundle collections will be made by the league with its own trucks. It is estimated that 100 pounds of paper will provide three men with meals and bed for one day.

A luncheon at which final plans for the campaign were laid was held Monday under the auspices of the women's auxiliary of the league, of which Mrs. Oliver is president and Mrs. William Waterman, chairman of ways and means. Among those who gave short speeches and pledged their support were Mrs. Henry Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Woman's clubs; Mrs. Alvin A. Smith, Mrs. Burnette D. Warner, president of the Cook County Federation of Woman's clubs, and the Rev. G. T. Bremicker of the Berwyn Presbyterian church.

Needy Help Themselves.

The Chicago Christian Industrial league helps all needy in return for their services, regardless of denomination or race. It conducts a south side branch at 6737 Wentworth avenue. A report of services given out this last year revealed that 1,000 hours of work were put in daily, 162,356 meals for men provided, 38,642 beds for men provided, 3,373 pieces of clothing distributed, and 38 types of industries conducted.

Regarding family welfare last year the league distributed 1,000 baskets of groceries, 5,000 pieces of clothing, 1,000 pieces of furniture, placed 150 vocationally, and outfitted 1,500 expectant mothers with layettes. An attendance of 147,300 was recorded at the 1,535 church services held during the year. A Christmas party was given for 500 children.

The bundle campaign has been indorsed by the subscriptions investigating committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The Rev. George A. Kilbey is superintendent emeritus of the league.

DEBS TO LEARN SPENDING ART AT TRAINING SCHOOL

Home Science Institution in 33d Year.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

With "spend" as the keynote of this day of recovery, the School of Domestic Arts and Science is ready to give debutantes as well as housewives training in the art of spending when it opens its 33d year on Oct. 2. This winter for the first time in its history the school will operate all of its departments in its north side home at 350 Belden avenue.

"Spend is the slogan of today," Mrs. Lynden Evans, who was one of the founders of the school and has served as president of its board ever since, explained yesterday. "Ninety per cent of income is spent by homemakers, which means that training in this profession is essential."

It was last June that downtown headquarters of the School of Domestic Arts and Science were closed and all departments moved to the Belden avenue site, which the late Mrs. Potter Palmer provided as the result of Chicago's first World's Fair. Here it will continue to function on a scale that is in striking contrast to the coal stove, hand pump era in which it was started, yet in harmony with the tradition of old-fashioned hospitality and beauty that was the theme of its founders.

Started by Fair Fund.

There was a fund approximating $98,000 left by the woman's and children's building at the Columbian Exposition. This was given into the keeping of Mrs. Palmer to dispense as she might choose. Immediately there were requests from almost every organization in Chicago, but Mrs. Palmer did not choose to make a hasty decision.

Mr. Palmer, in his will, had left $250,000 for the erection of a woman's building in Grant park, providing the city council would give the site. Mrs. Palmer's first plan was to add the $98,000 to this fund. But the council voted that there should be no building in the park.

Meantime, with a subscription of $2,500 provided by Mrs. Charles I. Dangler, Mrs. Laurance A. Carton, and Mrs. Lucretia J. Tilton and the equipment from the closed woman's department at Armour institute, given by the first Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mrs. Evans and several of her friends organized the School of Domestic Arts and Science, not for profit, in the old Montgomery Ward building on Michigan avenue.

Mrs. Palmer heard of it and immediately became interested. She had visited and studied similar schools in Europe. She felt there was a need for them in this country.

Income to Infant Welfare.

Soon after she called a meeting of all the trustees of the Fair then in Chicago and representatives of the press in the art gallery of her Lake Shore drive mansion. She announced that the income from the fund was to be given the next three years to the Infant Welfare society. It was significant, however, that Mrs. Evans was invited to attend the meeting.

The sequel to the story was the luncheon visit of Mrs. Palmer to the domestic science school and her decision, with the advice of Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. Charles Henrotin, and Mrs. William P. Conger, to give the $98,000 to the cause of homemaking.

In 1917 most of the sum was applied toward the purchase of the Belden avenue property, an old Chicago landmark. The stately old residence within the iron gates, the nucleus of the school group, was formerly the home of George E. Adams, congressman from this district for 16 years. Designed by Daniel Burnham in 1875 and built immediately following the Chicago fire at the point where the fire stopped, it was one of the first "Eastlake" type of dwellings in Chicago.

Today the various departments of the school are separately housed, making for the individuality of each. The spacious central building is the students' residence and lecture hall.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Josef Bulena recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 850 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. Mr. Bulena is 73 and his wife 68. They have four sons, two daughters, and five grandchildren.

TELLS RIVERSIDE OF PRESENTATION TO QUEEN MARIE

Mrs. L. W. Carroll Back After Years Abroad.

After four years spent in Rumania, Mrs. Louis W. Carroll has returned for a visit of several weeks with relatives in Riverside. Her husband is director of construction and maintenance of the new automatic telephone exchange in Bucharest. Although the Carrolls came to Riverside in 1906, and still call 145 South Longcommon road home, they have resided in foreign lands, including Porto Rico, San Salvador, the Argentine, and Spain for much of the last 20 years.

MRS. L. W. CARROLL.

Mrs. Caroll reported that there are 65 members in the American colony in Bucharest and more than a thousand English speaking persons. The friendliness in this group stimulates an interesting social life, Mrs. Carroll declared.

"Bucharest is a young Paris," she continued. "There is a romantic atmosphere to its parks and gardens. The military bands may be heard every day and there are special concerts on Sundays. The many holidays are colorful in the extreme."

American Films Popular.

Boat travel to America is heavy, Mrs. Carroll said, and she found it necessary to make reservations far in advance for her crossing. She returned on the President Harding.

American made films are popular in Bucharest, according to Mrs. Carroll, and the news reels keep patrons posted on world events. For the benefit of foreign theater goers, characters in the films speak the language of the country in which the film is shown, or translations of the conversation are thrown on the screen.

Mrs. Carroll had the distinction of being presented to Dowager Queen Marie, and recalls often having seen her in church.

King Decorates Husband.

On the recent occasion of the dedication of a new telephone building in Bucharest Mr. Carroll was among those decorated by King Carol for meritorious service. The telephone building, ten stories high, is Bucharest's first skyscraper.

During his residence in Riverside Mr. Carroll was associated with the Western Electric company. Mrs. Carroll was for many years active in the work of the Riverside Methodist church.

Mrs. Carroll is visiting her two daughters, Mrs. William Branit and Mrs. H. W. Jeffries, and her sister, Mrs. E. J. Seeley.

PHIL HARRIS OF FILMLAND FAME HERE THIS WEEK

Slated to Broadcast on NBC from Inn.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

PHIL HARRIS.

The newest of the big name bandsmen, Phil Harris, arrives next Thursday for a season at the College Inn and a lot of broadcasting. After a rapid rise to popularity on the west coast, specifically at the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles, Harris was capapulted into the movies, making several shorts and one full length picture, "Melody Cruise." Then the bass-baritone—actor-maestro set out to cross the continent eastward, taking the southern route. In New York at the Pennsylvania he was also a success. Harris will be heard on numerous sustaining broadcasts and one coast to coast commercial on NBC.

Garber Goes Over.

Every one who took in Jan Garber's opening at the Blackhawk last Monday night is bound to wish him success. And he'll have it, too. Jan's enthusiasm, his cordiality and graciousness, as well as his musical artistry help to account for the flock of radio notables who turned out to make his first W-G-N Midnight Flyers' broadcast a notable one. His music is equally satisfactory for radio, dancing and as accompaniment to all sorts of entertainers. In the van of the parade of visiting maestros were Vincent Lopez, who was telling friends about his next local assignment, the Chez Paree; Ben Bernie and George Olsen (minus Ethel Shutta) who have been golfing together for a few days; Victor Meyers, baton wielding lieutenant governor of Washington, who used to know Olsen on the west coast, and Ted Weems. Herbie Kay, Mark Fisher, Husk O'Hare, and Charles Kaley, who got a terrific hand for his singing, were other orchestra men there.

DeWolf Hopper, Harry Minturn, Enid Markey, and Margaret Fitch of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" cast were on hand; Hopper was a hit at the microphone as he always is. Frank Parker, the Gypsies' tenor, sang a couple of songs in his flawless manner. King Levinsky, fresh from his triumph over Sharkey, talked into the mike as fighters do. Others who contributed to the 2½ hour broadcast were the Doring Sisters, one trio that has not copied the Boswells; Leonard Rocky, Lulu Bates, Sammy Walsh, Olga Vernon, Al Cameron, King Gillette, Joe Lewis, and the Blackhawk's favorite, Wade Booth. Other radio faces noted Bess Johnson, Patricia Ann Manners, Eddie and Fannie, Pat Flanagan, Russ Russell, and Phil Stewart. Pierre Andre, back from his vacation, again piloted the show.

Bernie Considers Offers.

Ben Bernie was pondering a new movie offer. He has three choices up to now; is inclined to accept an offer from Twentieth Century, and pass up the Jolson "Wonder Bar." Ben has eight weeks of RKO ahead of him, then Hollywood.

"I'm looking forward to a little contract bridge with the Four Marxes if their money holds out," Ben admitted. After the first of the year to New York, perhaps to the Roosevelt. George Olsen is delighted with Ethel's program with Walter O'Keefe. He returned to New York Wednesday for rehearsals and contemplates opening his own club there shortly.

Victor Meyers was a special guest at Buddy Rogers' Washington night festivities at the College Inn Tuesday.

George Nelidoff and his Volga boatmen have followed Paul Ash at the Casino. George is that great Russian singer, long heard over W-G-N. He is also a distinguished portrait painter.

Man Hunt at Columbia.

A big man hunt is on at CBS studios. March of Time is auditioning daily for a voice to take the part of Gen. Hugh Johnson, fiery NRA chief. We suggest Al Smith. If he is unavailable, Joe Penner (Wanna Buy a Duck) might be able to handle the part.

Alice Joy's little daughter, Lois, swallowed a hair pin the other day. Fortunately she suffered no ill effects.

O, Baker! Lend Us Beetle.

O, Phil Baker. Won't you lend us Beetle for today? Get off the air, Schnozzle! And you, Berle, get off the air!

Bert Lahr, who jumps from coffee to tea this month, will be a bigger name on the air by Christmas, we predict, than a lot of the more heavily ballyhooed comedians.

John McCormack, possibly the most popular singer of his generation, will begin his first extended series of radio concerts over NBC at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 11.

With all the horrible children's programs there are on the air NBC's "Wizard of Oz" has a chance to do something really decent for youngsters. We hope it may take its place beside the Singing Lady, who is above reproach.

Albert Spalding, distinguished American violinist, goes on a CBS series next week selling that "Babies cry for it" laxative. . . . Jack Benny and his wife and chief stooge, Mary Livingstone, with Frank Black, will start selling motors with gags and rhythm at 9 o'clock next Sunday night over NBC. . . . Norman Cordon, basso on Phil Baker's show, will take the part of the king in San Carlo Opera company's presentation of "Aïda" tonight.

Notes on Singing Ladies.

Saturday night jamboree on NBC, with the effervescent Don McNeill as M. C., is a success. Frances Langford, whom Vallee discovered, and Edna Odell, Hoosier songbird, sang better than well. You'll hear more about both of them this season. . . . Neila Goodelle, singing with Buddy Rogers and the old Earl Burtnett orchestra from the College Inn, has lots of fans on the airways. . . . Best singer, we think, with the Rogers orchestra is Gene Conklin. . . . Wonder if Charlie Agnew has noticed that his new singer, Emrie Lincoln, has a voice that resembles his sometime associate's, Irene Taylor's?

Maurie Sherman's orchestra will replace Earl Hoffman's orchestra on W-G-N from Café de Alex beginning next Wednesday. . . . Old Mexico at the Fair has set aside Tuesdays as Radio Celebrity nights. Mickey Cozzie's orchestra outlets from this spot over WCFL. . . . Tommy West and his band have opened at the Jeffery tavern, broadcasting on WIND.

Floyd Gibbons starts a new sponsored program over NBC locally tomorrow night at 8:30. Program will be devoted to NRA drive against depression. Vic Young will be at the baton, commuting by plane from New York for the shows. Harry Richman is another aerial commuter, flying the next two weeks from Chicago to New York for the Waring show.

With A. P. and U. P. bulletins no longer available to broadcasting chains CBS has organized Columbia News service, with Steven Trumbull as local manager. Ruth Betz succeeds Trumbull as CBS publicity chief, and Evelyn Robinson becomes her assistant.

Like many another radio figure singer Phil Porterfield stumbled into broadcasting. After his Illinois U. days a Pittsburgh friend brought him into a department store, with a view to making him an executive. Friend's wife, recognizing the possibilities of his voice, put him on KDKA [back in 1924 when they called for artists with a Pierce Arrow and fed them ice cream after the broadcasts]. Followed then several years on the stage with the Marx Brothers in "Cocoanuts," and a "Rose Marie" company. Phil returned to the airways about a year ago. He's on WBBM-CBS now.

PLAYERS IN HEART TO HEART CLUB

The Heart to Heart club, a regular 8:45 Monday night feature on W-G-N, has one of the biggest dramatic casts of any air show produced in Chicago. Here is the dramatic company of the program as it lined up in a recent broadcast. Left to right: Donald Pontius, Virginia Clark, Karl Huebl, Sally Smith, Gene O'Connor, Alice Hill, Bob Fiske, Ethel King, and Announcer Pierre Andre. Besides the dramatic company the production uses the W-G-N Concert orchestra in a complete unit.

PLACE OF RELIGION IN HUMAN PROGRESS IS MIDDAY TOPIC

The place of religion in human progress will be the subject of this week's midday service on W-G-N. On Monday the speaker will be the Rev. Harold S. Stewart, First Baptist church of Oak Park; Tuesday, the Rev. Theodore E. Conrad, St. Luke's Lutheran; Wednesday, Raymond B. Bragg, Western Unitarian conference; Thursday, President Francis V. Corcoran, De Paul university; Friday, President Frederick C. Grant, Western Theological seminary; Saturday, Dr. Russell Boynton, Bryn Mawr Community church.

EPISODES FROM LIFE DRAMATIZED BY HEART CLUB

Miss Ethel King of the Heart to Heart club, broadcast at 8:45 Mondays on W-G-N, receives a great mass of mail weekly from her radio listeners. From this grab bag of human experience she selects incidents to be dramatized on her weekly program. Let's follow the journey of one of these dramatized sketches.

Gerry, a young broker from St. Louis, writes about Dixie and her sudden departure when he tells her he is broke. First, Miss King must obtain Gerry's permission to broadcast his story, for no letter is used without the writer's consent. Miss King then visualizes the scene in her mind, after which it must be dialogued and a cast selected for the various parts.

The last step, of course, is the presentation of the finished product to the radio audience, in which Miss King pictures Dixie as a typical "gold digger" whose interest in any man ceases when his buying power shrinks.

This broadcasting is often a complex step because of the many characters who may be required for that 15 minute program. Consequently, Miss King must have at her command a capable staff of experienced radio artists.

Then there is the question of music. So varied are the demands of these sketches that a versatile orchestra must be on hand to supply the atmosphere. Their repertoire must range from the latest dance tunes to grand opera.

BOB BECKER TO BE INTERVIEWED BY HARRINGTON

With the opening of the hunting season at hand, John Harrington, sport reporter, Tuesday night is having as guest on his W-G-N sports review Bob Becker, outdoor editor of THE TRIBUNE. Becker will discuss the openings of the various seasons.

On Thursday night John Schommer, well known football official, will give the low-down on the life of a football umpire and at the same time interpret the changes in the rules since last year.

LAGRON BRIDGE CLUB FINISHES A FULL YEAR ON AIR

New Book on Contract Ready Soon.

"The Bridge Club of the Air" celebrates its first anniversary on the air on W-G-N tonight when the Sunday session of the club directed by Edward M. Lagron is presented from 10 to 10:30 p. m. Mr. Lagron, one of the outstanding bridge teachers of the world, has prepared each of the programs which have been presented three times each week during the last year and has presented all but a few of them himself.

"We certainly have had a remarkable audience," Mr. Lagron said. "One often hears it said that summer isn't a good time for card playing. But judging from my mail each week the past summer has been a great season for the contract players, for our mail has increased each week since the "Bridge Club" first went on the air and that included the summer weeks, too."

Mr. and Mrs. Lagron were the winners last week of the Chesterfield Bridge club's annual married couple trophy. "It was a great tournament to play in," the W-G-N expert said. "All of the divorce lawyers of the city attended and passed out cards and representatives of the Reno chamber of commerce were there to tell about their great city in anticipation of squabbles between the husbands of wives."

Mr. Lagron's newest book on bridge titled "Defensive Bridge" now is being published by Bobbs-Merrill. "In writing this book, I have taken the opposite of most writers' viewpoint on writing about the game," Mr. Lagron explained. "In a game of bridge defense play is more important than bidding because a player is the declarer one-fourth of the time, dummy one-fourth of the time and defensive player one-half of the time."

The trio, Donnie Dreamer, Jean, and Wishbone have found a manuscript afloat in the lake near Bear Tooth Point lighthouse and they plan a hurried trip to the Island of Three Pines to solve this mystery. Great personal danger awaits the three dreamers. The Scalawags last week completed their 200th performance on W-G-N and each week their fan mail indicates an increasing audience.

TWO SOLOISTS TO BE FEATURED BY W-G-N SYMPHONY

E. I. Pechin Tonight; Thomas Tomorrow.

Two soloists are to be featured in concerts by the W-G-N concert orchestra, directed by Adolphe Dumont, on W-G-N tonight and tomorrow night.

Ernest I. Pechin, formerly a soloist with the Sousa band and now a staff member of the W-G-N orchestra, will be heard as the featured soloist on the 6:45 program tonight. Mr. Pechin will present "Phenomenal," a concert work composed for Mr. Pechin by the famous band master Frederick Neil Innes. Other offerings by the orchestra on this program will be the overture to the opera "Martha"; "Indian Love Call," "Serenata" by Moszkowski, and "German Dances" by Franz Schubert.

Tomorrow night Ollie Thomas, W-G-N's saxophone soloist, formerly soloist with Roxy's Radio Gang, will present a special arrangement of "Valse Lanetta" as a part of the orchestra's regular "Bouquet of Melodies" program from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. tomorrow.

On Tuesday evening at 7 p. m. the orchestra will offer the music of Jan Sibelius, the famous Finnish composer, on the "Great Composers" program. His best known score is "Finlandia," which the orchestra will play along with several other composers' favorites.

R. APPLEBERRY TURNS TABLES ON MYSTERY MAN

Another mysterious person has appeared within the pale of Rube Appleberry's life. Rube is that brilliant but eccentric left-handed pitcher of the Panthers baseball team and the big star of the W-G-N comedy baseball sketch, "Rube Appleberry," which is broadcast three times each week.

Rube has just escaped from being branded as a kidnaper, having turned the tables on a new "friend," Nickey by name, and captured the criminals; and now he's headed toward another dark plot. He's been approached by Tom Byron, a fellow who has described himself as an old time ball player, who has a new proposition for Rube.

Appleberry is getting to be quite a gadabout. Recently he was one of the guests at a Ted Lyons day celebration for that famous White Sox pitching star at Comiskey park.

LEGION TO GIVE 3 PROGRAMS ON W-G-N THIS WEEK

Three American Legion programs will be presented by W-G-N this week. Plans for the great legion convention in Chicago next month will be told on these programs. The musical setting for "Cousin Anna's" latest adventure with her boy friend, "Al," will be Shilkret's colorful arrangements of "This Is Romance," "The Last Round-Up," "It's the Talk of the Town," and "Marching Along Together."

Neighborhood Theaters

In a dual rôle Ronald Colman comes to the Marbro this week. "The Masquerader" is the tale of two cousins, one a wealthy but dissolute politician, the other a poor man whose meager living is made by writing of the affairs his cousin participates in. Circumstances force the impoverished and younger man to take the elder's place in life. Elissa Landi plays the politician's wife.

* *

Tuneful Bit of Comedy.

A tuneful musical comedy is "Melody Cruise" now playing at the West End. Greta Nissen, Charles Ruggles and Phil Harris are leading players. The action of the entire story takes place on board a liner steaming down from New York, down the gulf stream up to California and through resorts of the west. A bevy of pretty girls who dance and sing add to the attraction of this number.

* *

Another Vamp Yarn.

At the Lamar in Oak Park and Senate theaters is "Baby Face," starring Barbara Stanwyck and George Brent. Here we may view a siren of the first water whose only aim in life seems to be the vamping of men who can provide her with wealth and luxury. A sordid tale of no particular moral.

* *

Bad Gal in "Bed of Roses."

Another "bad" gal is to be seen at the Byrd today in the person of Constance Bennett, playing in "Bed of Roses." Herein the tough baby rises from the slums to become the mistress of a wealthy man. All goes well until she attempts to leave him for the protecting and honest arms of a diamond in the rough seaman, played by Joel McCrea.

* *

Cagney Plays Reformer.

"Mayor of Hell" plays at the Broadway Strand, Crawford, Crown, and Embassy today. James Cagney is cast as the ward heeler who steps into the shoes of Dudley Digges, superintendent of a reform school. Madge Evans plays opposite as the school nurse. Allen Jenkins is there with a few laughs and Frankie Darro triumphs as the leader of the boys.

Mildred Bailey to Be Featured with Fred Rich

PAINTED DREAMS SKETCH TO GO NETWORK OCT. 9

Changes from 11:35 A.M. to 10:45 Tomorrow.

Painted Dreams, W-G-N's sketch of life in Mother Moynihan's household, changes its broadcast time tomorrow from 11:35 a. m. to 10:45 a. m. daily except Sunday.

Sponsors also have announced that this radio show will be presented on a Columbia network in all major cities of the country starting Oct. 9. The network show will be presented at a different hour than the W-G-N performance.

Pioneered Serial Idea.

Painted Dreams is one of the pioneer radio serials. It has been on the air continuously over W-G-N for three years. The success of Painted Dreams and one or two other similar sketches prompted many commercial sponsors to adopt this type of entertainment for their radio shows.

The sketch employs a large cast. The story is written by Kay Chase, W-G-N continuity writer. Besides writing the show Miss Chase takes the part of Joyce, one of the major characters of the script.

Bess Flynn Plays Mother.

Mother Moynihan, the central figure of the play, is played by Bess Flynn, well known for her work on the stage and in radio productions. Bess also has two of her children in radio work and they often have taken the juvenile parts in Painted Dreams.

Alice Hill, cast in the rôle of Alice, another widely known radio dramatic star who has worked in many sketches on W-G-N and other Chicago stations, is the third of the major characters of the sketch.

WEEMS TO HAVE ARAGON BIRTH FETE TOMORROW

Ted Weems and Bernie Cummins and their orchestras are to be costarred at the Aragon ballroom and will broadcast over W-G-N tomorrow night, when they gather together on the north side bandstand for a gala Ted Weems birthday party.

Both orchestras are to be featured in continuous dancing at the ballroom and in two broadcasts. Cummins goes on the air at 9 o'clock, while Weems will broadcast at 10:30 p. m. Many celebrities will be on hand to help with festivities.

Ted also starts a week's engagement at the Aragon tomorrow night, concluding his stay next Sunday, Oct. 1. During his time at the Aragon Weems and his band will be heard every evening on the regular 10:30 p. m. schedule. On Tuesday, Sept. 26, Bernie Cummins and his orchestra will open at the Trianon for a four day stay, to be followed by Wayne King and his orchestra, who return from vacation.

YES SIR; TOOK ONLY 55 GALLONS THIS TRIP. YOUR DELCO HEAT IS A REGULAR MISER WITH OIL!
Oil Co.

Because... Delco Heat

BURNS 95% AIR AND ONLY 5% OIL!

Talk about your 18 day diets! Here's an oil burner with an appetite anyone can afford!

The new Delco Heat actually operates on a mixture of 95% air and only 5% oil! The "Delco Fuel Control" takes care of that. It's an exclusive feature resulting from General Motors' vast experience with carburetion development. It accurately meters the oil; always at the exact pressure and mixture necessary for complete, efficient combustion.

But there's more to Delco Heat than its economy. It's completely automatic and always dependable. Simple, too . . . has only one moving part. And it's so huskily built you'll notice its extra quality the moment you make comparisons.

Then, too, Delco Heat is priced surprisingly low. It is installed only by factory-trained mechanics. And it will operate in your present system—whether steam, hot water or warm air.

Better come in and see Delco Heat demonstrated. And don't delay or, before you know it, you'll be struggling through still another winter without the comfort, convenience and economy of Delco Heat.

Just to make sure that doesn't happen, stop in at one of the Delco showrooms today, or mail the coupon. Learn why Delco Heat is the oil-burner "buy" of all time.

THAT MEANS TWENTY FEET IN DIAMETER—I'VE MEASURED TEN FEET ON THIS STRING—AND THERE'S YOUR CIRCLE—NOW I HAVE TO MAKE A LINE STRAIGHT WEST FROM THE CENTER TILL IT CROSSES THE CIRCLE—
WELL—THERE'S YOUR STRAIGHT LINE—AND HERE'S WHERE THE CIRCLE AND THE LINE MEET—AND HERE'S WHERE THE TREASURE MUST BE HID—BRING YOUR SHOVEL AND DIG—

WE'LL TAKE TURNS—YOU DIG FOR TEN MINUTES AND THEN I'LL TAKE THE SHOVEL—
WITH EACH SHOVELFUL OF DIRT THAT COMES UP THE BOYS' HEARTS SINK—AS THEY SPEND HOUR AFTER HOUR IN FRUITLESS LABOR AND NO TRACE OF THE HIDDEN LOOT—
NOT A SIGN OF IT YET—WE MUST BE ON THE WRONG TRACK—THERE IS NO TREASURE BURIED HERE—
BUT WE'VE FOLLOWED THE CHART EXACTLY—EVEN TO THIS OLD TREE—AND WE HAVEN'T MADE ONE MISTAKE—IT MUST BE THERE!
SEE FOR YOURSELF—NOT A THING IN SIGHT—ALL OUR WORK FOR NOTHING—

I DIDN'T
YES I KNOW CLARENCE IS A TRIAL SOMETIMES. BUT HE'S YOUR COUSIN AND HE'S GOIN' TO STAY WITH US AND GO TO SCHOOL. TRY TO GET ALONG WITH HIM, SKEEZIX.
HE ISN'T MY COUSIN. I'M ADOPTED YOU KNOW.
LOOK — I'VE GOT TWO APPLES — ONE FOR SKEEZIX AND ONE FOR CORKY!
THERE YOU SEE? CLARENCE MAY BE UNPLEASANT AT TIMES BUT HE HAS A HEART, OF GOLD.
YEAH. WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH 'EM?
I STILL THINK THERE'S SOMETHING PHONEY ABOUT IT, CORKY.
GIMME THAT APPLE. I'VE CHANGED MY MIND
YOU TOO! GIVE IT BACK OR I'LL CROWN YOU.
I WANT IT.
SCRAM! THIS IS MINE. I PICKED IT DIDN'T I?
DON'T YOU CARE, CORKY. THEY'RE SOUR ANYWAY.
POP! CLARENCE TOOK THOSE APPLES AWAY FROM US AGAIN.
HE DID: WELL THAT WASN'T VERY NICE OF HIM.
NO IT WASN'T! AN' I HOPE HE GETS COLIC AN' INDIGESTION FROM 'EM.
THAT'S NOT A NICE THING TO SAY, SKEEZIX. HE'S AT LEAST YOUR ADOPTED COUSIN YOU KNOW.
YOU MUSTN'T PUT IDEAS LIKE THAT INTO CORKY'S HEAD, SKEEZIX, EVEN IF CLARENCE WAS IN THE WRONG
THEN I'LL HAVE TO HOPE HE CHOKES ALL BY MYSELF.

YEAH- WE'D BETTER INVESTIGATE, KID! STICK CLOSE TO ME AND BE CAREFUL!
GREAT SCOTT! WE'RE TOO LATE!
HOLY SMOKE! IT'S "BENNY", THE FELLOW THAT RUNS THE GREEN GROCERY AND MEAT MARKET AROUND THE CORNER! THE RACKETEERS DID IT!
THE RACKETEERS?
CERTAINLY! THEY'VE BEEN TRYING TO SHAKE HIM DOWN FOR MONTHS! THEY BOMBED HIS STORE TWICE AND WRECKED ONE OF HIS DELIVERY TRUCKS AND TOOK SOME SHOTS AT HIM LAST WEEK... ALL BECAUSE HE WOULDN'T CHIP IN TEN DOLLARS A MONTH TO THEIR "PROTECTIVE" ORGANIZATION!
WHAT "ORGANIZATION" WAS IT?
WELL.. I DON'T KNOW A LOT ABOUT 'EM BECAUSE I RUN A CONFECTIONERY NEXT DOOR TO BENNY'S PLACE AND THEY DIDN'T BOTHER ME. BUT BENNY SAID THEY WERE THE OLD "BIG BOY" GANG.
HELLO, CHIEF-THIS IS TRACY- AS A SPECIAL FAVOR TO ME, CHIEF- CALL THE MAYOR AND THE STATES-ATTORNEY OVER TO YOUR OFFICE AS SOON AS YOU CAN. I'LL BE THERE IN AN HOUR-WITH SOMETHING PLENTY IMPORTANT ON MY MIND.
ONE HOUR LATER-IN THE CHIEF'S OFFICE...
I. TELL YOU, GENTLEMEN, THE RACKETEERS HAVE GOT THIS TOWN BY THE THROAT- THEY'RE BLEEDING MERCHANTS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS DAILY ON PAIN OF DEATH.. THEY'RE RULING WITH THE GUN.... THEIR CODE IS TERRORISM AND MURDER!
WELL, WHAT IS YOUR SUGGESTION, TRACY?
MY SUGGESTION IS THAT WE GO AFTER THEM-THAT YOU GIVE ME PERMISSION TO GO AFTER THEM UNHAMPERED AND IN MY OWN WAY. OH, I KNOW THE POLICE HAVE BEEN BATTLING THE RACKETEERS FOR YEARS... BUT NOT THE WAY I HAVE IN MIND!
WHY, YOU KNOW YOU HAVE THAT PERMISSION, TRACY! AS FOR MYSELF-AND I BELIEVE I SPEAK FOR THE STATES ATTORNEY AND CHIEF TOO-WE WILL GIVE YOU EVERY COOPERATION WITHIN OUR POWER
GREAT! THAT'S ALL I WANT TO KNOW, MR MAYOR!

Jack Armstrong's AMAZING NEW SHOOTING PLANE

SHOOTS 75 TO 100 FEET!

Be The First To Get One of These Wonderful Shooting Planes FREE!

Just Pull The Trigger And Watch This Amazing New Gyro Shooting Plane Travel

SHOOTING PLANE GIVEN FREE

To Get You To Start Eating Wheaties—"The Breakfast of Champions"

JACK ARMSTRONG, Famous Boy Aviator, Inventor of Shooting Plane

Jack Armstrong, who gained fame by winning the Safety Plane Trophy recently, has now turned inventor. While working with Capt. Hughes, noted designer and inventor, on a new gun-gyro plane, he developed a model which was bought by the Daisy Manufacturing Company, makers of Daisy Air Rifles. However, Jack Armstrong, who also plays the lead in the Jack Armstrong radio program, arranged to secure a number of the planes to be given away to boys and girls who eat Wheaties, the whole wheat flake cereal advertised on his radio program.

Read Here To See How To Get Your Shooting Plane Free!

Do you want to be the FIRST one in your neighborhood to get the newest, most amazing and most thrilling aviation invention—The Genuine Jack Armstrong SHOOTING PLANE—Then Send Coupon Now!

The invention of Jack Armstrong, The All-American Boy, famous athlete and aviator, this marvelous SHOOTING PLANE is really a model of the gyro principle. All you do is hook the gyro-wheel on the end of the gun—wind it—And Pull The Trigger!

Then—watch it soar 65—75—85—100 feet straight up in the air and then come slowly back to you.

Or—shoot it straight away. Hit targets with it. Shoot it at the ceiling. And watch it stay up there—then circle down by itself! Have races to see who can make the longest distance flight.

It's beautifully colored. It's strong. It's new. It's not a toy! It's something wonderful and you should be the first one in your neighborhood to have one.

Why Given Free

The reason this amazing SHOOTING PLANE (which you would have to pay as much as 35c to buy) is given free is to get you to eat WHEATIES—"The Breakfast of Champions." And if you are the kind of boy or girl who wants to be a star athlete—like Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Grove, Jack Armstrong—you'll love Wheaties! These famous stars say—"Wheaties with milk or cream and sugar give you the muscles, the energy, the speed it takes to win."

Because Wheaties are delicious crisp-toasted flakes of real whole wheat. Which contains almost twice as much protein (which makes muscles) as corn or rice. In other words, in this respect one bowl of WHEATIES equals nearly two of corn or rice foods. So—the thing to do then is eat WHEATIES! They're on sale at any grocery store—so you'll have no trouble getting them.

To get one of Jack Armstrong's famous SHOOTING PLANES Free—simply tear the tops off from two packages of Wheaties and send them with the coupon at right (print your name and address, please). You will receive your JACK ARMSTRONG SHOOTING PLANE—by return mail and ABSOLUTELY FREE. It is worth 35c—but DON'T send any money! Jack Armstrong, The All-American Boy, wants everybody to have one of these planes free. So he has arranged it so that the makers of Wheaties can buy them at a low enough price to give you one free! Send now!

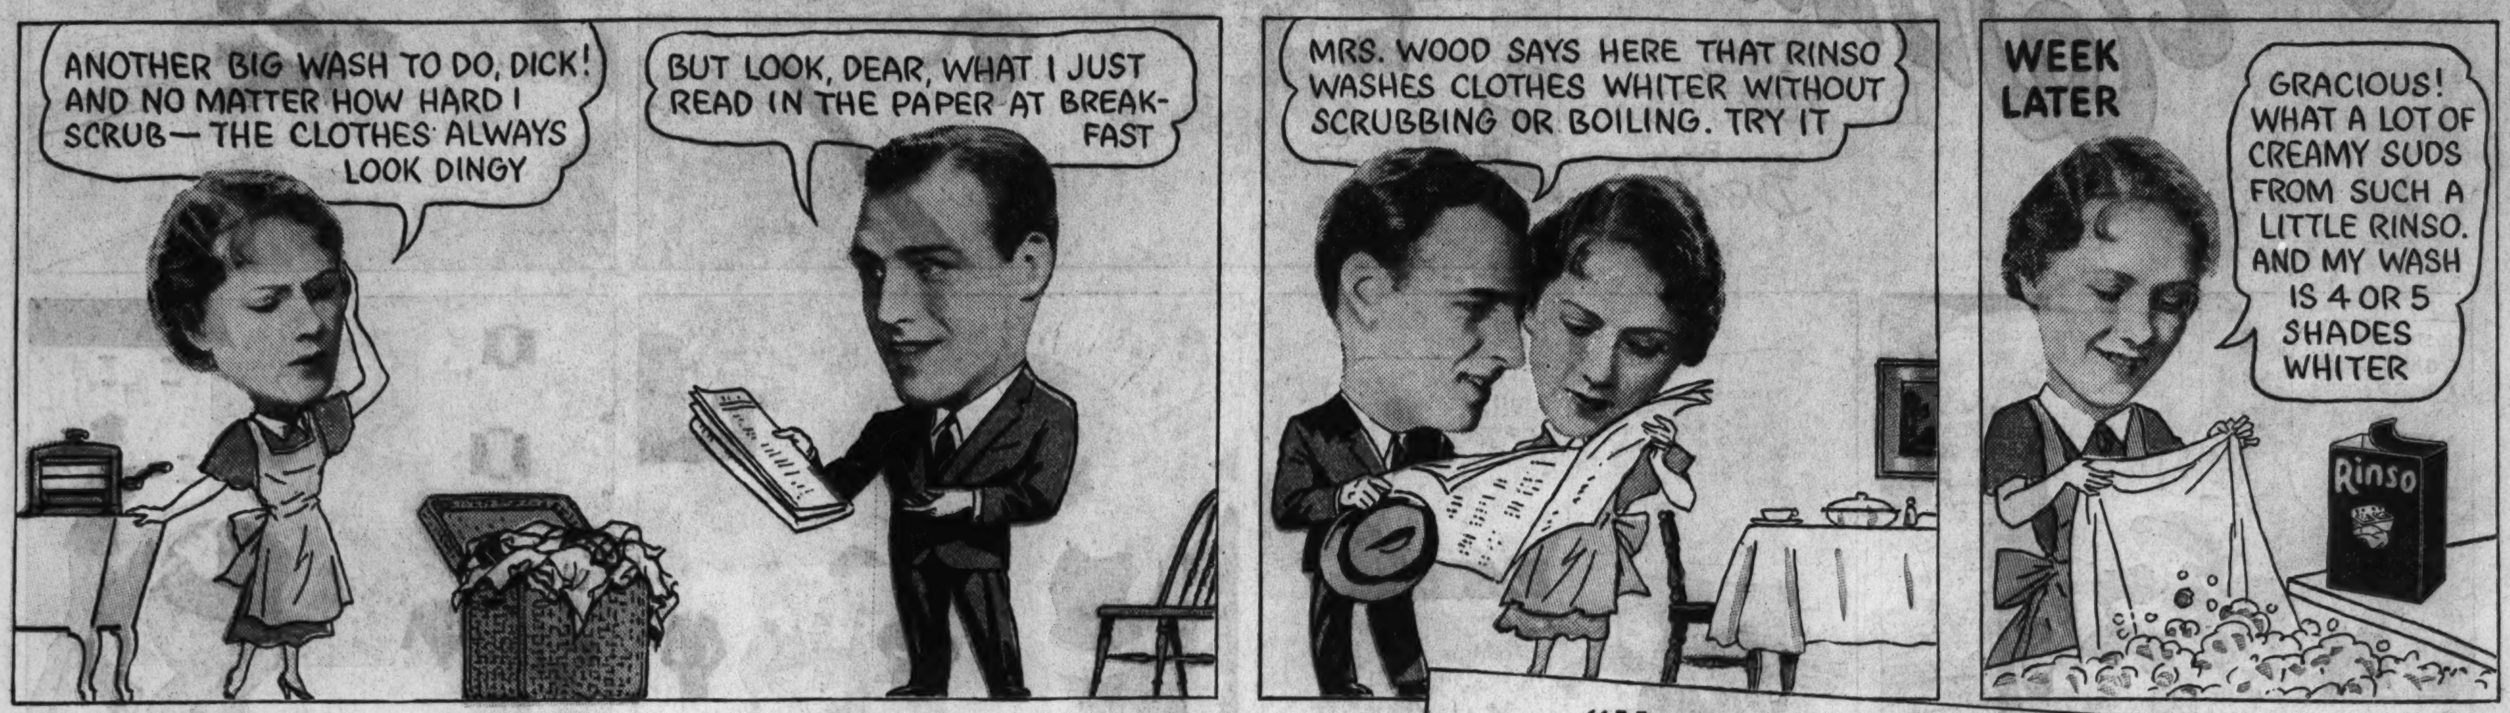
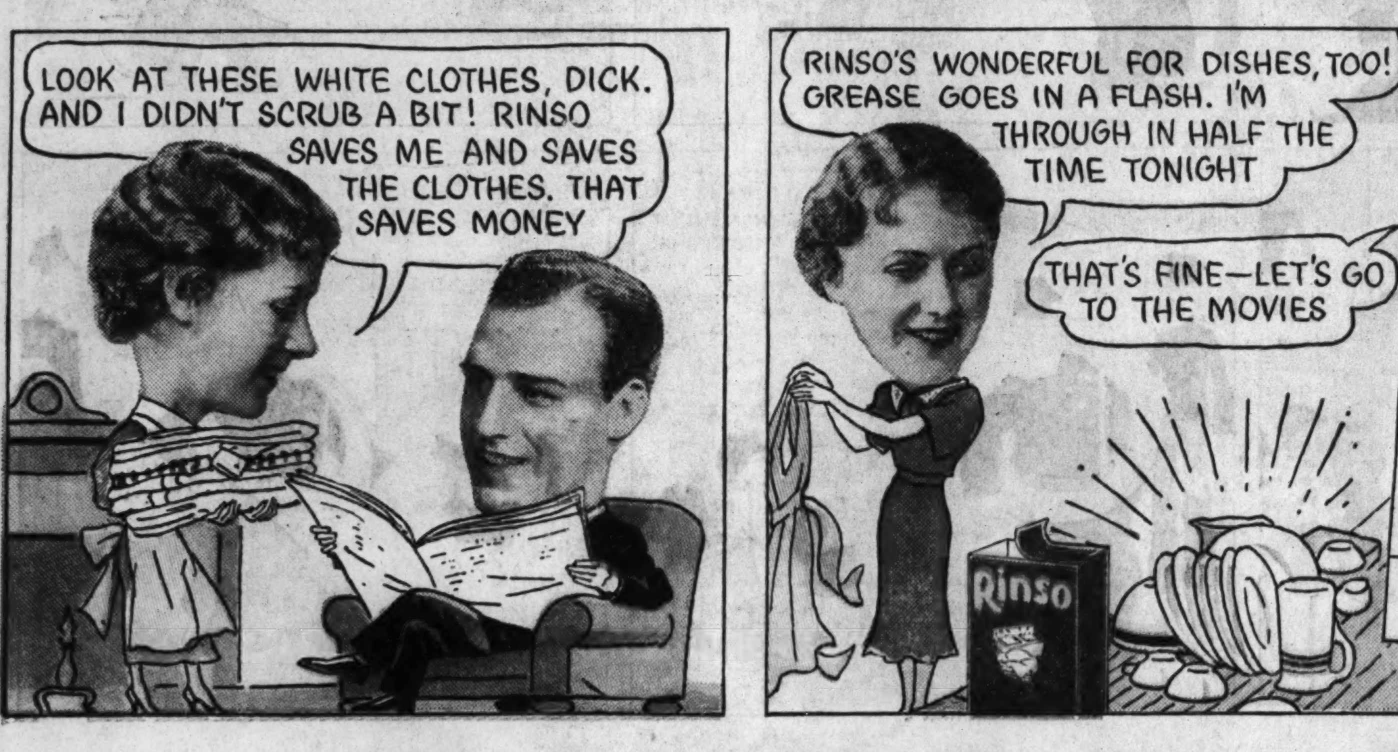
FAREWELL FOREVER TO DINGY WASHES!



ANOTHER BIG WASH TO DO, DICK! AND NO MATTER HOW HARD I SCRUB—THE CLOTHES ALWAYS LOOK DINGY
BUT LOOK, DEAR, WHAT I JUST READ IN THE PAPER AT BREAKFAST
MRS. WOOD SAYS HERE THAT RINSO WASHES CLOTHES WHITER WITHOUT SCRUBBING OR BOILING. TRY IT
WEEK LATER
GRACIOUS! WHAT A LOT OF CREAMY SUDS FROM SUCH A LITTLE RINSO. AND MY WASH IS 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER
Rinso



LOOK AT THESE WHITE CLOTHES, DICK. AND I DIDN'T SCRUB A BIT! RINSO SAVES ME AND SAVES THE CLOTHES. THAT SAVES MONEY
RINSO'S WONDERFUL FOR DISHES, TOO! GREASE GOES IN A FLASH. I'M THROUGH IN HALF THE TIME TONIGHT
THAT'S FINE—LET'S GO TO THE MOVIES
Rinso

"No further use for my washboard," says Mrs. J. Heitman of Chicago

"I THINK it's just too wonderful for words, the way Rinso soaks out dirt! I've no further use for my washboard. Rinso soaks clothes so white, it would be wasting time and strength to scrub them. I never saw such rich and lively suds from so little soap. And Rinso is a good water softener, too. It's so easy on the hands. I use it for dishes and all cleaning."

MRS. J. HEITMAN, 3551 Reta Ave., Chicago, Ill.

RINSO MAKES CLOTHES LAST LONGER?
YES—2 OR 3 TIMES LONGER!

Wash with Lifebuoy daily—see for yourself how it clears and freshens the skin. Dull, cloudy complexions gain healthy radiance through Lifebuoy's gentle care.

"B.O." easier to detect indoors

We perspire a quart even on cool days. A mere hint of "B.O." (body odor) is noticeable indoors. Play safe—bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. Its fresh, clean, quickly-vanishing scent tells you Lifebuoy protects.

MEN—IMMEDIATE EMPLOYMENT.

WE WILL PUT ON 15 ADDITIONAL MEN WHO NEED EMPLOYMENT AND WHO WISH TO SEE IF THEY CAN DO THIS WORK. WE WILL TRAIN SUCH MEN FREE, FURNISH FULL EQUIPMENT WITH NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED. THERE IS NO EXPENSE. BUT THOSE WHO CAN QUALIFY CAN MAKE $150 TO $400 OR MORE THE FIRST MONTH.

While you cannot make money here unless you earn it, many men who never previously even thought they could do work of this kind have found it to be just the opportunity they sought for years and are making more money than they ever previously dreamed of making. We have men making up to $750 a month. Others $600, $500, and $400. On the other hand, many fail to fill the requirements and cannot do the work.

Experience in sales work is never necessary. Some of our best men never sold anything before. Men who have made as high as $50 their first day in the field knew nothing about selling. W. B. and S. W., who just completed their training, made money their second day. Here are others who have gone out recently and made money their first two or three days after joining us: M. H., M. J. H., F. B., G. M., L. O. P., C. M., F. L., W. D. F., J. C., F. G., C. P., J. T., C. T., C. F., H. B., E. G. Most of these men knew absolutely nothing about selling, other than what they had just learned in a two day period of training under our sales instructor.

This man is himself an experienced salesman who first went into the field and made a splendid record selling his product. He is a man of earnest and sympathetic understanding with the problems of the beginner. He can and does awake and activate the latent abilities of men to do creative work. Many men who least suspect it possess very great and very valuable sales ability. It is not unusual for a beginner to make $20 to $40 his first day.

Perhaps he can help you to make a success of this work. It is worth a try. The training is free. The opportunity is open. If you can do it you make real money and have assurance of its permanence. If you cannot do it, no harm done. The experience will have been valuable. And now is the time to get started. 1932 was the biggest year in our business, nationally and locally; and 1933 is following the same program of progress.

This is a new product by an established institution—the largest of its kind in the world, and the product already has a greater sale than anything in the world ever offered for the same service. It is new in this market. This is a genuine present opportunity for cash and also for future progress in the certain growth of the business. It is for men who have foresight—men who are in earnest about seeking a sound opportunity to get in and work ahead.

Our requirements of you are that you be honest, of good reputation, active, alert, willing to learn and do the following things:

To learn [as taught] how to make a clear and convincing explanation of why you have called to see your prospect.

To learn [as taught] how to show the product so it will reveal the absolute need for it and the necessity of buying it.

To learn [as taught] how to persuade some one to do that which positively ought to be done.

To be honest in your own thought, so that you are entitled to confidence.

To work hard every day to make a genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and to get along.

This is a straightforward offer of sincere intent to worthy men who are in need of good, substantial positions. Please do not apply for these positions unless you feel you can meet these requirements. Applicants will be personally interviewed Monday morning, Sept. 25, 9 to 1, at Rooms 910-916 Engineering Bldg., 205 W. Wacker-dr.

MEN

Whether we select you or not, I sincerely believe you will enjoy your investigation of this new business.

Investigate immediately Monday morning and verify the following CASH paid to our representatives last week HERE IN CHICAGO.

W. P. E.	$197.56	P. L.	$134.15
W. R.	94.10	O. M.	126.50
G. M.	85.02	G. M.	97.37

Of the above men only two had previous experience in selling.

Man to man and straight from the shoulder—I don't say that YOU can do this job—or that we promise to hire you—but if you are unemployed or unprofitably employed, investigate—this might be exactly what you are looking for.

This ad is either RIGHT or WRONG—if the above figures are correct—then your time is well spent in investigating a business as profitably conducted as our records are now showing.

Bring your boxing gloves in case we are wrong. We invite a "he-man" investigation.

We have only a few openings and will only take time to interview sincere men—men with good appearance and good references.

ABSOLUTELY NO INVESTMENT.

This proposition comes as near to selling itself as anything you have ever seen. A good personality and hard work make a man from $38 to $70 a week from the very start.

Investigate Monday a. m. from 9 to 12 noon—NO OTHER TIME—Room 622, 75 E. Wacker-dr.

Men in Gary investigate, Room 404, Gary State Bank Bldg., 9 to 12 noon.

Men in Evanston investigate, 403 State Bank Bldg., 9 to 12 noon.

WEST SUBURBAN, MEN!

This is addressed to men who live in the western suburbs of Chicago, who have family responsibilities, and want something profitable and permanent—good for a fair income to start with, and more as you learn this business better. I want men from the early twenties to middle-life who are energetic and ambitious. No outlay, no investment, no seasons or lay-offs or cuts. Men with cars will be given preference.

I want men who can come up to the earning records of others who have recently joined us, and whom you will meet in this office. H. Van M., for example, is a young man who earned over $320.00 in his first month, just completed. He had no previous experience in this business. C. P., a former bank teller, earned better than $140.00 in his first week here.

You are invited to call for personal interview with Mr. Wilbor in Room 401 Lake-Marion Bldg., corner Lake and Marion-sts., Oak Park, Monday, Sept. 25, from 9 to 12 noon.

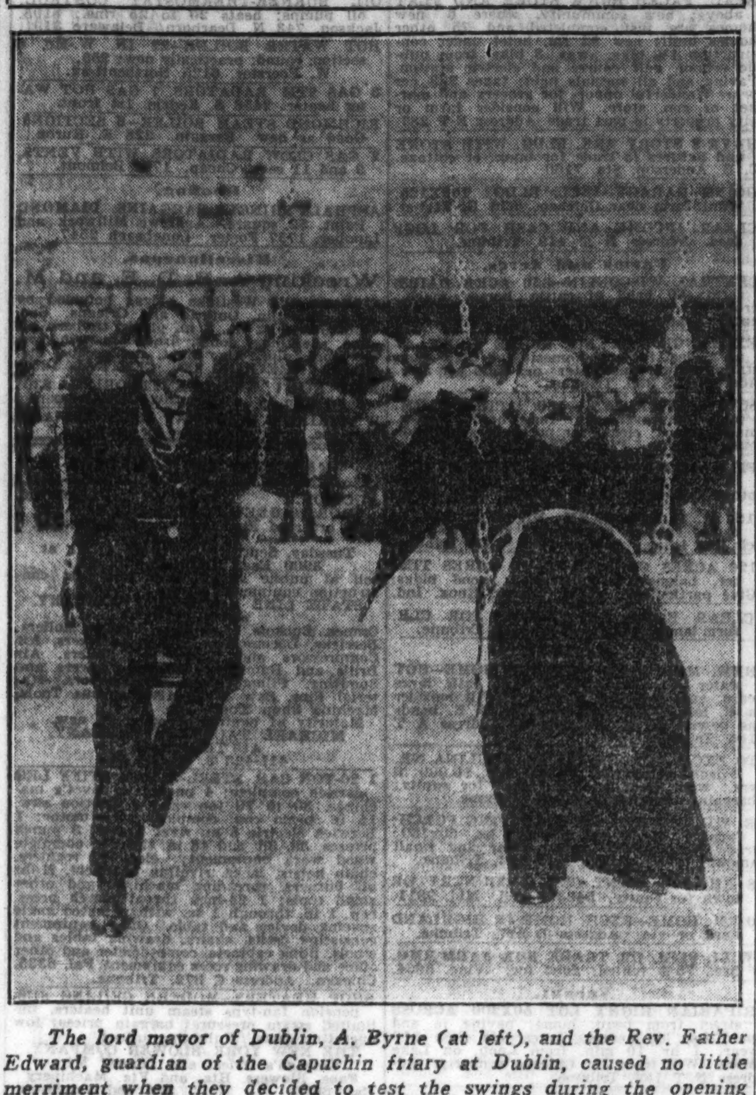
Lord Mayor Tests the Swings



The lord mayor of Dublin, A. Byrne (at left), and the Rev. Father Edward, guardian of the Capuchin friary at Dublin, caused no little merriment when they decided to test the swings during the opening ceremony of the children's play center at Broadstone, Dublin, recently. $150 Buys This Complete Business

I have a complete business, something good that any man or woman or husband and wife working together can set up in their kitchen at home on which you can make up to $25 to $30 a day. For $150 you get absolutely everything you need to start out and make a good profit the first week. This is no "scheme" or "slick proposition," but a legitimate, staple business. You manufacture at home an absolutely new food product. Looks and tastes like nothing you ever saw or heard of. Put it up in sacks and leave it with grocers, delicatessens, beer taverns, etc. They sell it for you at a big profit per dozen and it sells like wild fire. Derry now selling 600 dozen a week. Lambert sold 1,800 dozen first 6 weeks. Took in $1,011.20 in cash. No experience needed, as I show you how and start you off right. Call in person at Room 812 Boyce Bldg., 54 W. Hats Range from Pert to Seductive

New Fall Dishes Greet Return of Apple Days

Consider Particular Need Before Making Purchase from Numerous Classes.

By MARY MEADE.

APPLES, whole battalions of them, are back, grinning genially at us from every food shop and huckster's hold-forth over town and gayly bowling their less boisterous fruit cousins completely out of the limelight. And, lest we have forgotten these most important facts, they beg to remind us that they come in three classes—eating, cooking, and all purpose apples.

The first, especially brought up to tempt particular palates, may not lend themselves gracefully to cooking, but are perfection itself when taken in fresh fruit salads or "off the fist." The Snow, Delicious, and Golden Delicious are the swankiest of these to-be-eaten-raw aristocrats.

Cook Certain Types.

The second branch of the family is only mildly pleasing when offered up uncooked, but makes utterly delectable sauces, pies, fritters, or fat, luscious apple rolypolies. Greenings are among these cook stove minded apples. But if you have a daily lunch box, a family with 4 o'clock appetites, or a nightly batch of midnight pantry raiders to fill, take a bit of blanket advice and make friends with the all purpose apples—the Wealthy, Spitzenberg, Winesap, or Jonathan, as being excellent for eating, sauce, pies, and the best sort of baked deliciousness.

So hep!—for the kitchen. And since Waldorfs, apple pies, and brown betties have such familiar faces, we'll skip them for a change and do a few things first with apples in the mainstay of the meal.

Good in Mainstay Dishes.

For instance, for Sunday in fall, name me anything with a more come hither look than

BAKED HAM WITH STUFFED APPLES.

Rub a 1½ inch thick slice of ham with brown sugar and then dot it with whole cloves and place in a shallow baking pan. Select medium sized, tart apples. Peel and core them, and fill the centers with chopped raisins and brown sugar, with a dash of lemon juice. Arrange the apples about the ham in the pan, and pour in ½ cup of boiling water. Bake, covered, until the meat is tender, basting several times during the cooking period.

Or you may reverse the process and have

BAKED APPLES WITH PORK SAUSAGE.

Simply wash and core tart apples and place them in a baking dish. Into their centers pile savory sausage meat, and add to the pan enough water to cover the bottom. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) until tender throughout.

Apples Join Sweet Potatoes.

Scalloped sweet potatoes with apples shape up into still another treat. At our house we simply cut the cooked sweet potatoes and the raw, pared and cored apples into slices, and alternate layers of them in a greased baking dish. A little sugar, salt, and butter go over each layer. A small amount of water is added, and the whole is baked half an hour or more until the apples are tender and the dish is browned.

To talk about apple salads is to tantalize ourselves because of lack of room. But one we will have which you may not have met:

APPLE-MEAT SALAD.

Toss together 1 cup of cold diced pork or veal, 2 medium sized, diced, tart apples, 2-3 cup chopped celery, and 1 pimiento cut fine. Blend well with nippy mayonnaise and serve with a garnish of sliced, stuffed olives on crisp lettuce.

STUFFED CHEESE-APPLE SALAD.

This starts out with firm, tart apples peeled, cored, and simmered till tender and rosy red in a sirup made from 1 part red cinnamon candies and 2 parts water. Chill these and fill with cream cheese seasoned with salt, paprika, and minced green pepper. Sprinkle the top with ground nuts and pass whipped cream mayonnaise.

And lastly for two toppers-off for as many well planned dinners.

MAPLE APPLES.

Wash and core 6 baking apples, but do not peel. Place them in a baking dish and pour over them ¾ cup each of maple sirup and water. Add 2 tablespoons of butter in dots, and bake until the apples are soft and the sirup is thick. Serve hot or cold with a whitecap of sweetened whipped cream.

APPLE MOUSSE.

1 cp. thick, strained, sweetened apple sauce.
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup sugar

Combine the apple sauce and the lemon juice. Whip the cream and add to it the sugar. Fold the two mixtures together and turn them into freezing trays or a mold to freeze.

FRIED APPLES—SUPREME.

Core, but do not peel, six apples of the all-purpose type. Cut into eighths. Melt two tablespoons butter in a large iron frying pan, put in the apples and sprinkle with one-half cup of granulated sugar. Cover the pan and fry slowly for one-half hour without stirring. Then remove the lid and continue cooking for ten minutes longer. This process gives the apples a glazed appearance. (Fried apples are wonderful partners for pork sausages.) This recipe serves four.

Brims Droop; Feathers and Bows Reappear

Berets, Bigger and Better This Year, Acquire a Brigandish Swagger.

By RHEA SEEGER.

HATS of the hour . . . fascinating, feminine, and flattering. Small scraps that perch precariously atop the curled coiffure . . . moderately sized, dashing affairs to be worn aslant . . . the seductive larger brimmed models that are fully capable of making a shrinking violet assume the mystery and provocativeness of a potential home wrecker. Any way you wear them, any size you select them, these chapeaux are undoubtedly a prize winning collection rivaling anything ever unpacked.

Feathers and more feathers, from the fluttering soft fronds of ostrich to the pert little trifles of balls and small curls, trim most of the newest creations. Bows of ribbon and velvet, in two and sometimes three contrasting colors trim fetching trifles of felt. Sleek black antelope hats, with plenty of dash and swank, provide the perfect "little black number" that is needed in every smart wardrobe. Berets have acquired a brigandish swagger. You wear them pulled way down in front, they have much more material this season than last, and you can twist and swirl them to much better advantage.

Crowns Exquisitely Designed.

Big hats, or face framing hats, have returned in large quantities. You will find them with dipped and upturned brims, with adroitly designed crowns that are exquisite examples of what the top of a well made hat should be—neither ostentatiously spectacular nor loose and sloppy as to seams.

Eight interesting new models have been illustrated . . . effective new hats that will do grand things for your flagging spirits or faded enthusiasm weary with fluffy summer things and innumerable summer hats that have lost their pep.

Black Demurely Wicked.

At the upper left of the left column is a dashing creation made with half the crown submerged under feathers . . . flattering and new and the kind of a hat you can wear any place from afternoon till late dinner and dancing. A brimmed shape below illustrates what deft fingers and scissors can do with felt. Two tucked flanges shoot up at the left side and the crown fits snugly with a dark ribbon band. The lower hat in the left corner is another feathered trifle faintly reminiscent of the fashions of Godey's lady book when hats were intriguing trifles that topped the chignons of the grand ladies who swished about in fluted silks and billowing satins.

At the top of the center column is pictured one of the most demurely wicked little bonnet affairs to be found this year. The crown is squared, the roll-up brim is shallow and the final feminine accent is the roguish little bow that sits lightly and decoratively on one edge of the crown. Below we see the pirate hat or the cavalier chapeaux . . . sleek, wicked black velvet turned up in front and dizzily decorated at the peak with a tiny curled feather.

Small Hat Has Swank.

At the right side column is a hat tucked to the edges and rolled at the peak. Capable of being pulled down and around to suit the whim of the owner, it's a most obliging small hat with lots of snap and swank, ready for any of your fall or street costumes that boast fur collars. Another black hat, shown at the center, has an open section in the top. It is soft and pliable,

Svelte Frocks Discouraged on Limp Ladies

Panther Glide Practiced by Mannequins Takes Conscious Hip Swing.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

A MILLION dollars worth of clothes does a lady no good whatsoever if she doesn't know how to carry them.

You see illustrated in every fashion show what is meant by "making the walk sell the frock." You do not get a job as mannequin unless you can carry a frock along in a beautifully graceful way. And the value of one of these girls is more in the manner in which she carries herself than in other beauty qualities she may possess.

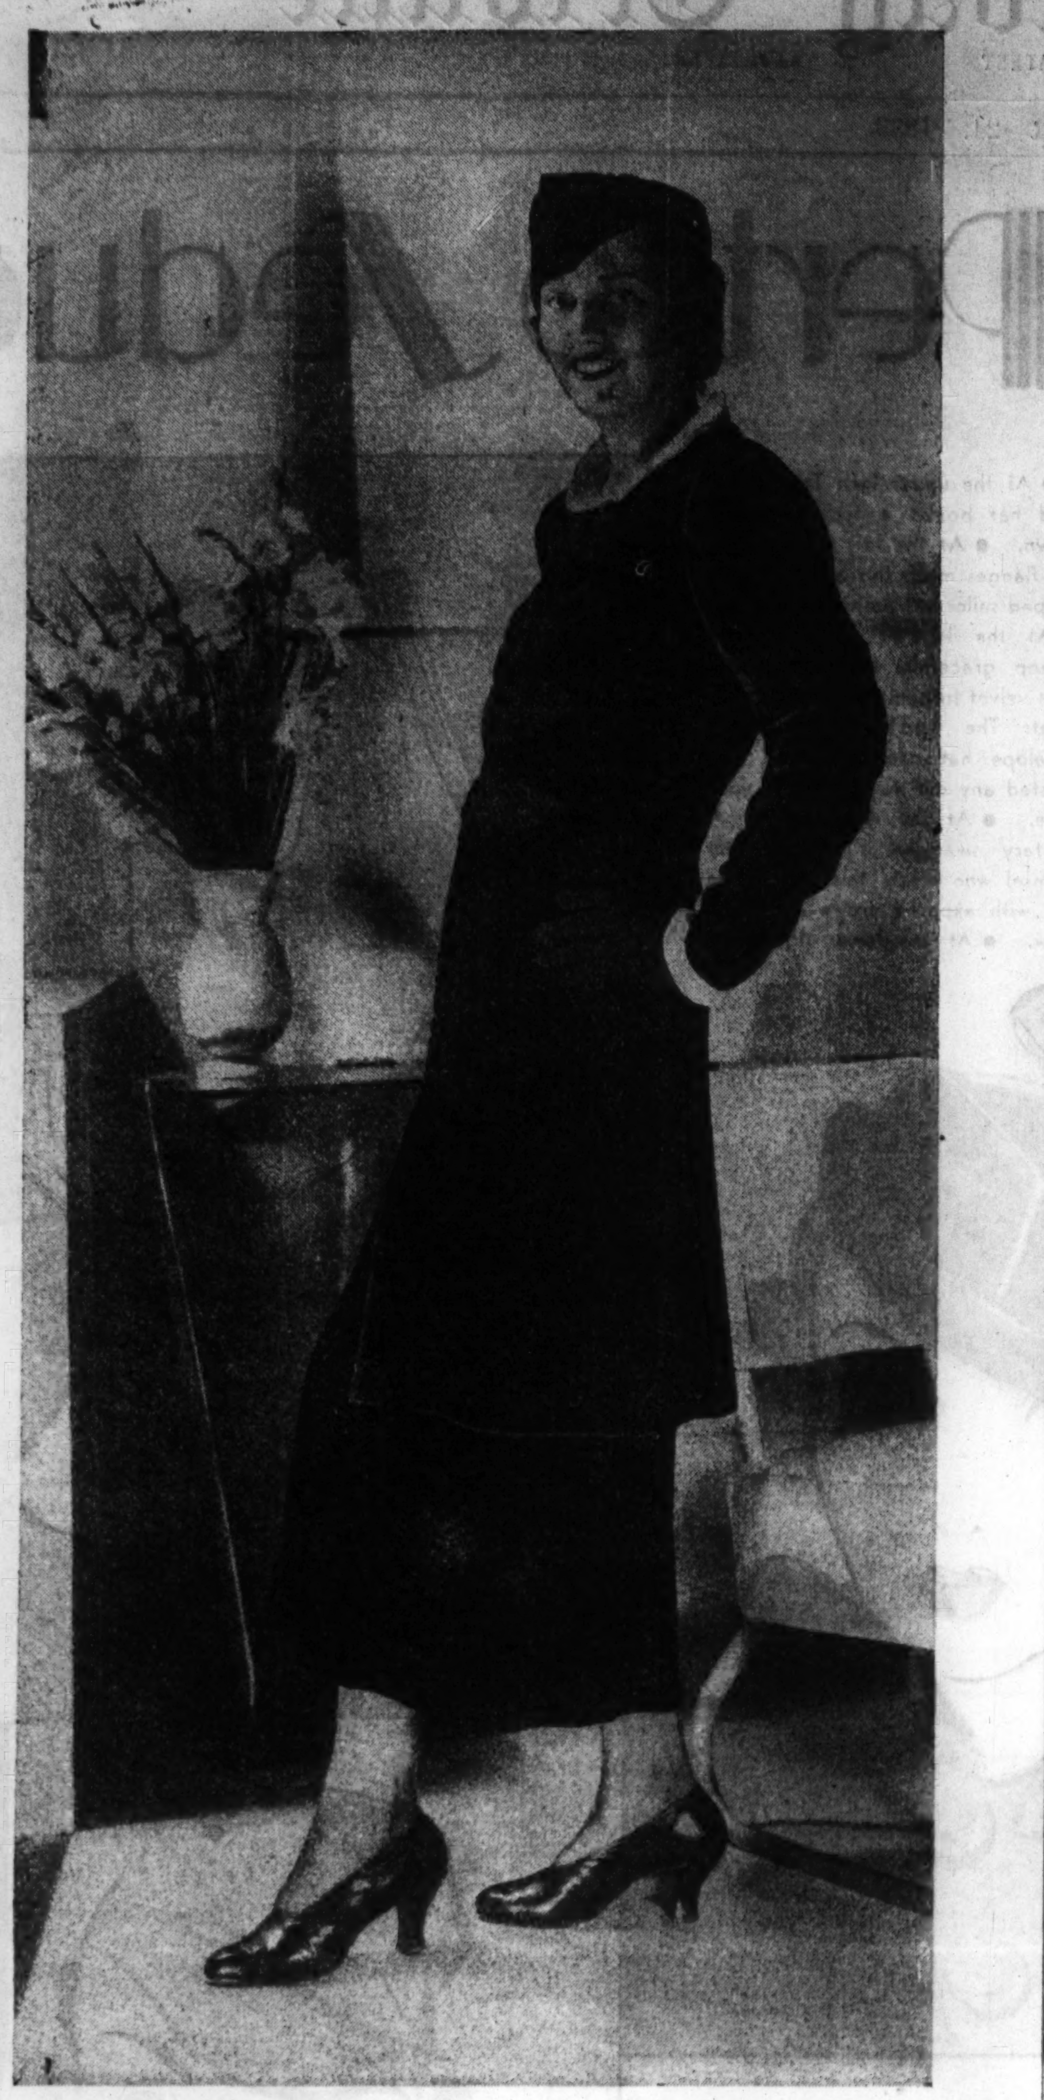
We women not of the promenade deck should take more than a few pointers from these young women. I find on inquiry among the girls at the fashion show at the World's Fair that they had to do a lot of rehearsing before they achieved a "walk" to suit the Chicago Fair stylist, Mrs. Ford Carter. Every single one of them says nothing in the world teaches you the secret of walking like the good old standby of balancing the telephone book on the head.

One stunning tall dark girl who moves with marvelous grace, every movement coördinating, says practicing with the telephone book to a fox trot tune is great. Also standing flat against a wall, with knees, buttocks, shoulders and head touching—then walking away trying to hold the now good body position, then returning to wall to find out where you may have slumped. Usually the shoulders go forward and the buttocks protrude which is wrong. Try again—with more consciousness of doing your walking movements from the hip.

The idea is not to pull the stomach in taut or throw the shoulders back or tramp around firmly, according to Mrs. Carter's dress parade rules. You must, instead, be conscious of one movement and let the rest take care of itself. This is pulling in the lower part of the buttocks—and moving the hips forward. The movement and the consciousness of movement must be in the hip sockets—and forward. Once you get the knack, the knees won't bend too much, the stomach will be drawn in and the shoulders will be right.

The mannequin must walk either like a perfect lady or like a domesticated panther. The perfect lady walks as though for generations her female ancestors had faithfully done their Delsarte. Head up—but drooping just a bit to the side. Never forward. Bust suggested in a refined way and not much apparent movement below the waist; toes in a wee bit and arms swinging easily.

The more interesting, pantherish walk calls for a little more body movement; no angel wings in back but a definite side-to-side shoulder movement that exactly balances a slight side to side movement of the hips.



Amanda du Bree, model at the fashion show at A Century of Progress, shown poised to begin her walk 'round the runway. She is bearing in mind that important modeling position of bringing her hips forward, holding her stomach taut and her shoulders gracefully erect — the valuable professional secret of carrying clothes beautifully.

Child Must Be Taught to Face Woes Bravely

Parent's Solicitude Over Physical Handicaps Spoils Youngsters.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

A MOTHER sat in a doctor's office. She had gone to consult the family physician about a recurring physical ailment that her daughter was subject to.

The doctor described to her the treatment she was to administer. The more details he gave her, the more her emotions rose at the thought of her child's pain and discomfort. Finally she burst out with: "It's a darned shame that she has to go through this every year!"

The doctor sat back in his chair. He looked at her with wise and serious eyes.

"You should not say that. You must stop rebelling against this. You not only make it harder for yourself, but you make it harder for Ellen to bear it. This is not a mature way to deal with it." He waited a moment, as if weighing his words. Then he spoke slowly:

"I would like to see you bring Ellen up to meet courageously both triumph and disaster."

One of the hardest things for a mother to do is to help her own child to meet a physical handicap. She feels so for him, her own sympathies are so deeply engaged, she loves her child so that she resents for him the thing he has to bear. This combination of feeling is apt to make her pity take the form of solicitude and overindulgence.

Understand—I know this is the most natural thing in the world. But it isn't best for the child. It tends to make him rebel, too, against his incapacity and to keep it constantly to the fore. Also, it may arouse self-pity in him, and this is one of the most undermining emotions man can fall prey to.

If everything has been done that can be done to cure him or overcome his handicap, then the mother should school herself to accept it.

Youngsters Can Be Normal Despite Disabilities.

Having accomplished this, she must try to plan her child's life so that it is as normal as possible. This does not mean that he will be able to do everything that a child physically perfect can do, but it does mean he can develop a normal attitude toward life and have normal friendships and many interests and activities.

There is a little boy with one arm whom I see often in a certain neighborhood I have to walk through. He plays and runs with as much skill and spirit as any one of the children, with a really happy look in his face.

A boy I know has been somewhat deaf since birth. He has high scholastic ambitions, and it hasn't occurred to either him or his father that he should relinquish these because of his deafness. He is forging ahead in spite of his handicap.

Some years ago I met a youth who had one leg drawn up, bent permanently at the knee, as the result of neglect after an accident. It was interesting to see how completely he ignored the condition. He played tennis and ice skated, and had hosts of friends, and educated himself for a profession.

We all know people who are gallant and matter of fact with the odds heavy against them. What they ignore, other people do, too. And they live happy, normal lives.

Philosophic Acceptance of Handicaps Sometimes Innate.

Now, some children are, I think, born with a philosophic acceptance of what life brings. It is in their nature not to rebel, but to make the best of what appears for them on the platter of life, even if among those things are physical disabilities.

Other children come into the world with a different temperament. As they grow from babyhood into childhood and adolescence this temperament becomes more defined and has much to do with their response to the victories and defeats, the pains and pleasures that are in store for them. If an accident or illness leaves some mark behind it, or if from birth they have had some disability, it is not in their natures to accept. They rebel, they grow restive, supersensitive, or withdraw from people into a world of their own. All this will become a fixed mental state unless from the beginning their parents have been able to teach the children to accept their handicap and live life fully in spite of it.

All this is not easy. When your child, if he is not of the accepting kind, cries out passionately, "Why do I have to have this?" it is not easy to school one's self so that the child may be helped to a normal state of mind. But this must be done if he is to achieve peace of mind and take his place in the world.

Story Has Message for Cripples and Their Parents.

I read a beautiful story several years ago. It was about a young boy of 14 who was a hunchback. His mother was dead and his father, a man particularly handsome and perfect physically, had turned the child over to nurses and tutors, and saw little of him. The boy was sure his father was ashamed of him. This, in addition to his physical condition, so embittered the boy that he became utterly unmanageable, the terror of the servants, the despair of his succession of tutors, and the victim of black, despairing moods, even tinged at times with thoughts of suicide.

Then a woman was engaged to teach him—a wise woman, serene, utterly pitiful of him, but imbued with the passionate desire to help the boy to live the life he must live. She trained him to study and think. The story tells how she accomplishes this, changing the boy's whole conception of the part he is to play in the world, and gradually drawing the father into the boy's life. At last, when he himself suggests that he prepare for college, she slips quietly out of his life, her work done. It was a subtle and inspiring story, and left one feeling sure that it had really happened, and wishing that every child handicapped in greater or less degree might be helped to accept his disability, to be set four square to face the world, and to be trained along the lines left open to him, despite his handicap.

Even the child who isn't handicapped needs training to face things. Life has many ups and down for him, too. In training him for the many things we desire for him, how fine an achievement it would be if we as parents could fit him to meet courageously and well both triumph and disaster!

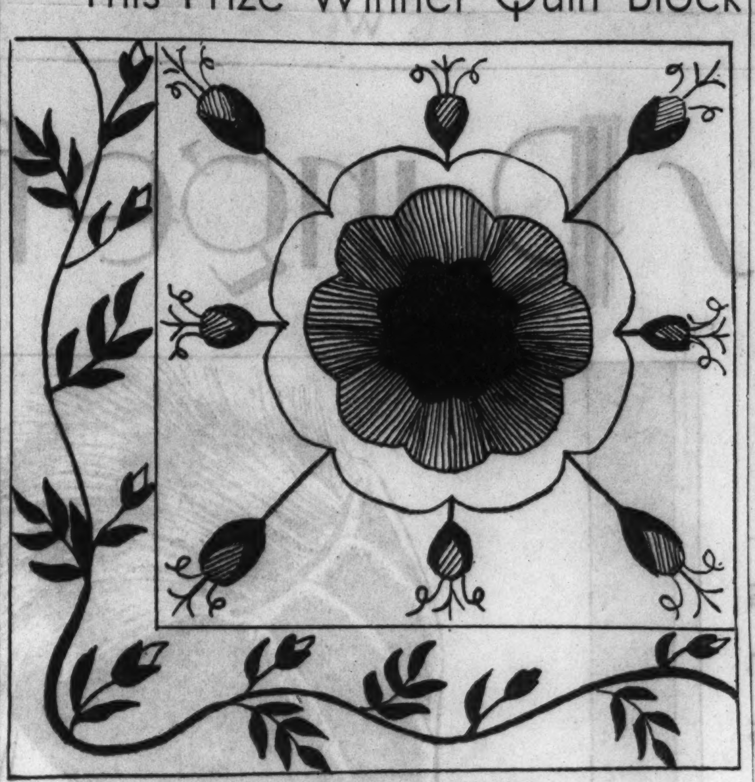
Century of Progress Exhibits This Prize Winner Quilt Block



YELLOW ROSE AND BORDER

By Nancy Cabot.

A CHAMPION thoroughbred is the "Yellow Rose." The pattern itself is an old one, at least one hundred years old, and a pieced quilt of the Yellow Rose design is one of the prize winners being exhibited at A Century of Progress.

Two shades of yellow will make the rose itself assume realistic proportions, and green is used for the buds. The little feathery "antennae" are embroidered. The bordering vine is properly pieced of green with just the tiny tips of the buds cut of yellow—the same yellow as the rose.

Each Sunday for a limited period, Nancy Cabot is offering her readers an unusual value in quilt patterns at the regular price of five cents. These patterns, like the one offered today, will include instructions for making the border as well as the block design. All are of exceptional quality. Send five cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, the Chicago Tribune, printing the name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

New Artificial Flowers Bring Beauty Indoors

Color and Composition Rival Nature's Best in Many of the Blossoms.

ARTIFICIAL flowers obviously need a little promotion.

If you have a flower garden of your own and your house is always attractively decorated with fresh cut blossoms arranged in tall graceful vases and low bowls, don't read this. It is to the flower starved souls who live in third floor apartments without garden plots, window boxes or roof gardens that we dedicate this piece.

Too many women scornfully tilt their noses and adjust their curls as they hurry past exhibits of these fascinating reproductions . . . a belittlin' air about them. If they would stop to appreciate them—the craftsmanship and the naturalness of color and composition. If they would just picture those curly petaled petunias in that French blue pottery bowl, they might easily lose their hearts together with their entire weekly allowance.

Magnolia Blossoms Are Gay and Alluring.

For instance!

You will see some climbing from hanging strawberry bowls, some nodding gracefully from wicker baskets, or even tall, thick stemmed flowers, standing sturidly in heavy garden urns. By that we men cannas—rich red irregular flowers topping tall large leafed stems of jungle green.

The most alluring are the dusky white magnolia blossoms, their broad velvety leaves curving protectingly. Only two or three of the flowers in a large pottery urn make an ample cluster and are highly effective in the proper setting. The "proper setting" is important.

Fragile dogwood flowers offer another opportunity to dress up drab interiors. These flowers are also a creamy white with the petals edged in smoke gray.

Calla Lilies Have a Stately Beauty.

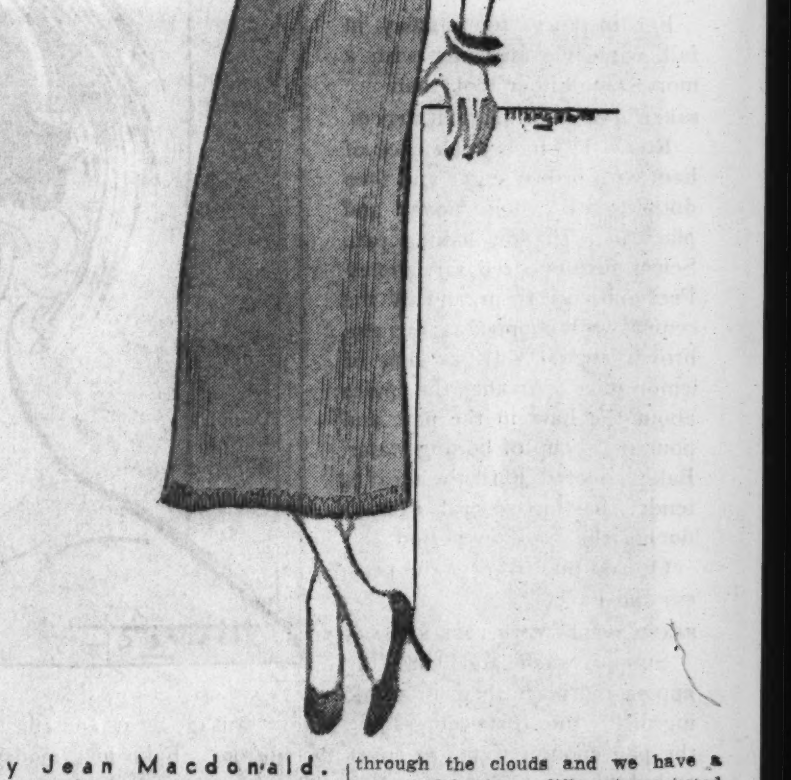
Something quite elegant is the calla lily. Arrange three or four of the slender stemmed callas in a tapering transparent vase, place them on your occasional table and watch the surroundings take on dignity.

In the garden flower category are gladioli, sprays of each and every color; heavy headed zinnias of red, purple, yellow or white; dainty sprays of milk white baby's breath, delicately pink wild roses, hollyhock sprays—and so on, up and down the list, from the very richest and loveliest to the friendly little potted red geranium to dress up the kitchen.

Woman District Attorney Holds Job Thirteen Years

MISS ROSE ROTHENBERG, first woman assistant district attorney in New York City, has been acting in this capacity for 13 years. In her first year of experience as a prosecutor she threw the police department into a great furor when she ordered that the men found with "wild" women should also be arrested, and then had them convicted.

Knit Suits Break Out in Peppermint Candy Stripes



By Jean Macdonald.

COMBINATIONS are in order and ombre boucle and light oxford gray olympic wool are used to create the attractive and youthful dress shown today. This peppermint candy striped effect adds a gayety and trimming which no other yarn can achieve, yet gives a broken line to the bodice that is essential to that slenderizing silhouette. The epaulette shoulder effect is still very good. Here it slides down into a graceful flared sleeve that is so flattering to feminine arms. The neckline speaks for itself and there isn't a person who cannot wear it.

The four paneled skirt is an easy and simple knitting proposition. When new and unusual skirt styles seem to be exhausted a bright idea peaks through the clouds and we have a new model with a different crocheted hemline.

HOW TO ORDER.

Polish Artcraft with Gay Colors Brightens Home

Wooden Trinkets of Many Designs Well Adapted to Unusual Decoration.

IF you are interested in something bright and colorful for your knick-knack rack, or for a dark corner in the living room, hie yourself down to the gift section of one of the downtown department stores. Here they have a large table filled with artcraft made by peasants in Poland. Much of it is woodenware, painted with a vegetable dye in brilliant colors.

For the top of the radio or an end table there are tiny lamps in all forms. A small lamp in the shape of a peasant hut with thatched roof for the shade is cunning. The base is painted in red, green and yellow, with the shade in dark brown. There are also quaint mushroom lamps painted in gay colors.

You will be astounded at the low price of these articles. The table is filled with inexpensive trinkets. There are napkin rings, bracelets, mushroom shaped inkwells, penholders, pin boxes, pencil boxes for the children, and thimble boxes, all painted in vivid shades.

One of the most amusing pieces of work on the table is a box for old razor blades, which is carved in the shape of a pig. It is called a "razor bank," and would be an appropriate gift for a husband or brother.

Attractive on your whatnot would be the nest of barrel shaped boxes. There are five or six boxes to the nest in many designs, colors and sizes.

Here, too, cigaret and match boxes may be obtained inexpensively—round, square, or barrel shaped ones, in all convenient sizes.

Colorful table runners of wool in green, orange, red, yellow and blue stripes may also be found in this collection.

This Polish woodenware has just been introduced in the Chicago shops, and you'd be surprised how these brilliant pieces of artcraft brighten up the home. Hours can be spent in this department acquiring these gay little things, with only a tiny dent in your pocketbook.

Marriage Odds 82 to 100 After First Wedded Year

ACCORDING to Prof. T. E. Sullenger of Omaha Municipal university, "couples married for one year have 82 chances out of 100 to remain wed 14 years more. Those married 14 years have a 99 to 1 chance of holding on 15 years more. The chances of those who celebrate their silver wedding are 9999 to 1 that they will observe their golden wedding, provided they live that long."

Trick Gadgets Make Cooking Part-Time Job

Labor Saving Devices Fill the Kitchen, Rout Drudgery for Homemaker.

HOUSEKEEPING is being reduced to a part time job by such leaps and bounds that housewives may soon find themselves with time on their hands. The new wifesavers are such clever and unusual gadgets that every one's going to want them both for their appearance, and they save much effort, too.

For instance, there's a flour sifter which will sift flour over and over any number of times. So when a recipe directs "sift the flour 8 times" it will be as easy as sifting it once. No more transferring from bowl to sifter and back and forth!

Then there's a jelly strainer bag which squats on four legs right over a kettle and needs no watching. The bag may be removed and washed after each using.

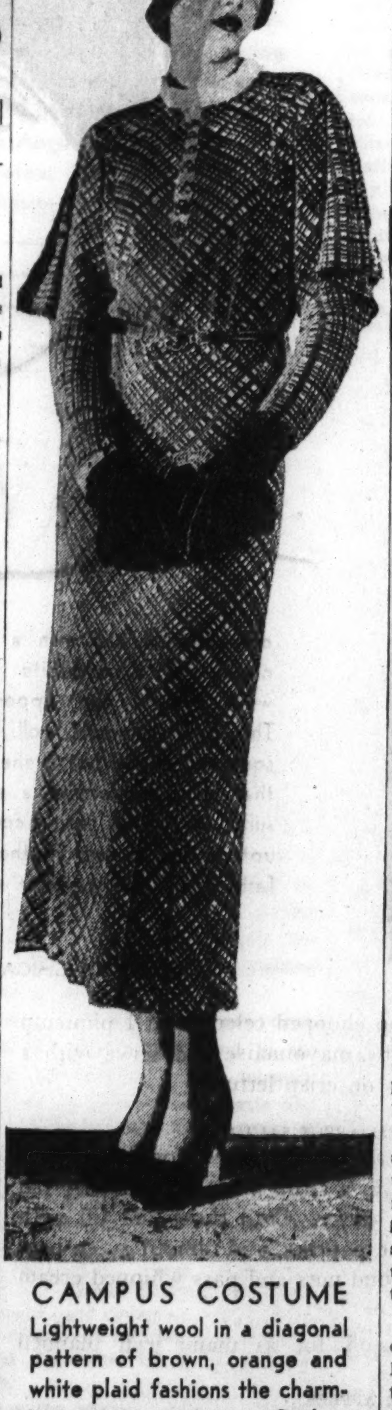
Steak rollers are a convenience and will eliminate the pounding which is so necessary for tough cuts of steak. These rollers are heavy and with a slight pressure of the hand will do the work.

A gayly colored metal sugar container with a spout pours the sugar directly into the measuring cup and saves minutes.

Polishing the silver each time company comes shouldn't be necessary when there's a tarnish proof silver chest in use. These chests are decorative and large enough that there's a place for everything in them.

A coffee dispenser is a new note in equipment which is said to be good for the coffee as well as for the housewife. By turning a small handle the same amount of coffee grounds comes from the container each time and just that much less air enters the container to hasten the staling of grounds.

Pie pans with holes in the bottom are now manufactured for the women who can never brown their pastry on the bottom. A round broiler pan is available for gravy lovers so that the meat juices may be made into gravy in the bottom of the pan in which the broiling was performed.



CAMPUS COSTUME

Lightweight wool in a diagonal pattern of brown, orange and white plaid fashions the charming campus costume. Godets in the skirt and elbow length cascades on the sleeves are interesting fashion features.

SKETCHED IN PARIS BY A TRIBUNE STAFF ARTIST.

● Top row: 1—A knee length velvet evening coat with a fox fur high around the throat in front and dripping down the back. ● 2—This brocaded waistcoat for evening often has a surprising way of being a vest in front, and a mere bertha and waistline ruffle flanking a low back neckline. ● 3—Paris likes the high, transparent yoke for evening, with a band below to make the dropped-shoulder decolletage apparent and she puts this on a siren-slim frock flared below the knees. ● 4—Lelong gives the world a new classic evening frock with wide, looped up panels falling to the knees at the back of a simple high-necked frock. ● Lower row: 5—The evening cape, so smart in Paris, is sometimes made of silver fox skins that reach to the heels. ● 6—Schiaparelli shows buttoned-up quilted evening capes, and slim satin frocks that are flared in double, ridged tiers at the hems. ● 7—The evening frock of stiff, dark red silk that buttons right up the front on diamond buttons, that has a high collar, long glove sleeves, and a flaring hem covered with shirred bands, comes from Maggy Rouff. ● 8—On a high necked satin evening dress Augustabernard puts hip-length shoulder straps of mink with standing fringes of mink tails along the shoulders. ● This is the mermaid silhouette in its perfection, from Patou. The bodice rises to the chin by a ruffle in front, while in back there are only the shoulder straps to the waistline. A pouff below the waistline and a fish trail emphasize the back movement.

Clotilde Patterns for Fall Dresses and Coats Show Smart Sleeves, Necklines

Child's Wrap Also Is Featured

The book is 15 cents a copy; but when ordered with a pattern, the price is 10 cents. Address Clotilde Patterns, Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, New York City; or call at the Tribune Public Service Office at 1 South Dearborn, Chicago.

THERE are many fall days when a coat isn't necessary, and if you choose a wool crêpe for the dress made by pattern No. 2539 you should be perfectly comfortable without one. Wool crêpe in navy blue made the original dress and the buttons and neckline frill were in white. The full length sleeves are plaited into the armhole and at the wrists they flare smartly.

A deep pointed yoke at the front, straight across the back, fits the hips snugly and, while the skirt flares some at the bottom, the effect is straight line. The bottom edge of the skirt yoke and the top edge of the pointed piece at the bottom of the bodice both have these edges turned in a seam's width, clipping the edge so it won't pucker, and basted over the respective pieces to which they are to be attached. Stitch once on the machine close to the edge. A second row ¼ inch above may be put in if desired. Always do work of this kind with the pieces resting on a table or lapboard.

The neckline finish is new and attractive.

Set-in Yoke Gives Clever Touch to Coat.

Making your small children's clothes is delightful work. Money saving is considerable and the time spent not too long to be tiresome. The smart little coat made by pattern No. 3316 is practical as well and not hard to make. A brief yoke, front and back, long sleeves finished at the top by shoulder capes, and a dear little turnover collar that fastens the coat close to the neck are the chief points. A tiny checked woolen in brown would be pretty.

Cut the coat and lining, transferring every mark to the material. After the coat seams have been finished and the bottom hemmed, put the lining in, first pinning it in place and holding the coat right side out so the lining won't be tight. Then tack the seam edges to the coat seams. Do this on all seams, then hem the lining at the bottom and blind stitch it to the front.

Becoming to Both Maids and Matrons.

Isn't the dress made by pattern No. 3413 a stunning one? It's a coat type and is becoming both to maids and matrons. The neckline is a two way one. It may be worn closed or unbuttoned to fall in a soft rever. Horizontal tucks at the waistline on the sides hold the dress to the figure. The long, one piece sleeves are faced at the opening below the elbow and the close fitting wrists are button trimmed, matching the buttons used on the dress.

Chestnut brown worsted crêpe made the original dress.

Parisienne Indorses Filmy Gray and Black

ONE of the best dressed women in Paris is sponsoring the combination of filmy gray and black. One of her afternoon costumes, chez Vionnet, is of pale gray crêpe romain designed on extremely simple lines with short cape sleeves. A black velvet hat, gloves, and slippers of black antelope and a rich silver fox scarf were the successful accessories.

Paris Discards Frills of Summer for Suave Lines and a Mermaid Silhouette

Necklines Rise High Under Chin

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—A new evening mode has arisen in Paris out of an ocean of discarded frills and starched fabrics dear to the late summer. Some call the new superslim line the mermaid silhouette. Others, less poetic, call it the slip line; and still others, who remember the ancient history of Fashions, 1910, call it the sheath line. Called by any name you like, this fresh silhouette is about as slinky and narrow looking below the waistline as the scaled part of a mermaid, and it often breaks out into a little fishlike trail behind.

Some of the French houses make dresses in this silhouette that burst into flared, heavily worked hems. Others, like Lucien Lelong, flank the narrow frock with gracious floating panels to give it a classic beauty. Schiaparelli puts jutting, ridged flares at the bottom of her evening skirts.

Waistlines are mostly unmarked and unsung. Necklines go in for extravagance. They come way up under the chin in front in Patou's collection and are daringly deep cut in back but partially filled in with wide straps. The dropped shoulder neckline is a pet of Vionnet and others. Daytime necklines are in high style and heaps of evening dresses have sleeves.

The new silhouette from top to toe makes a point of demonstrating curves, not in concealing 'em, and lots of new evening skirts are slit at the bottom or draped up a bit to show feet and ankles.

Materials Are Enriched by Golden Threads.

Evening colors this winter are sober and evening materials are the richest seen in many a year. Heavy, solid gold thread brocades are all over the place. And there are colored satin brocades in all the collections, used for the waistcoat and skirt evening dress as well as for the mermaid kind. Heaviest satins and pure silk Lyons velvets are leaders for the evening dress and coat. Stiff silks like ottomans, bengalines, and taffetas are much used and the embroidered evening dress comes back to fashion's fold.

Embroidery and rich materials aren't the only opulence to flank the evening mode. Fur is applied to hems and is used for the shoulder straps. It is mostly fox, sable, or mink. Lanvin puts in fur sleeves on some evening dresses, making them of fox fringes. Velvet flowers bloom in the bosoms of Mainbocher and Molyneux evening dresses, and some houses use feathers like ostrich, osprey, and paradise for corsage bouquets.

Bonnets and Tiaras to Wear at Night.

A focal point of evening fashions this coming winter will be found way up in the hair. Lanvin shows gold and silver tiaras with her evening dresses. All of the great dressmakers equip their sleeved evening frocks with little evening bonnets fashioned of tulle, satin, lace, or some such stuff and trimmed with feathers or sorts. Chanel has a spangled toque. Schiaparelli shows spangled scarfs with her evening frocks.

Way down at the foot of the Paris evening mode are Worth's new dazzling evening slippers gayly striped with many different colors, and they go with any evening frock, whatever the color.

And speaking of colors, they give the elegant sobriety that is essential to evening chic this season. While black is shown, it gives way to richer colors just as sober. Patou's wild blackberry is one, and a honey. A rich, dark green that has a jewellike sheen in velvets and satins is a Paris pet, and dark reds are very smart. Dark begonia brown is a new Louiseboulanger color, and if you'll go to the begonia flower you'll see how beautiful it is.

Wraps for Evening Have No Set Style.

Grape and amethyst are two smart evening shades and dark brown and pansy blue are also important. Storm cloud and smoky gray are two practical evening shades and the Paris dressmakers like to give them a flash of brilliance by adding petunia or such colors in details. White is little shown in Paris, but quite a few of the dressmakers are showing pink for evening with some blue. Old gold is a color suggested for formal evening.

Evening wraps for this winter will be varied as to length and shape as well as material. At the top of the list is the velvet evening cloak trimmed richly with fur.

Evening capes are important. Paquin has a full length evening wrap of silver fox that would be a strain on any bank account. Maggy Rouff has one of ermine with a big collar made of about ten ermine ruffles, believe it or not.

The Gift Shop Overflows with Bridge Prizes

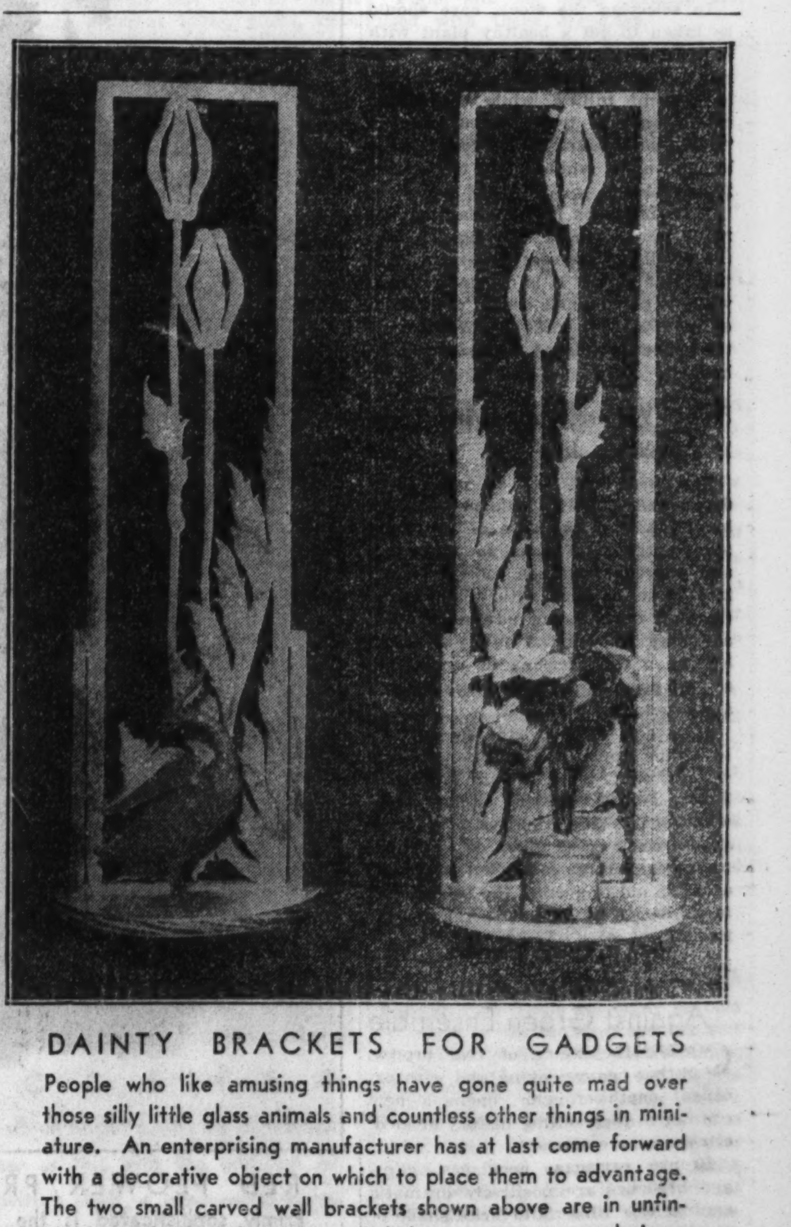
WHY spend hours of walking from store to store looking for something suitable for bridge prizes when all you need to do is to step into one of our smart gift shops where they have countless numbers of the most adorable and attractive knickknacks, which are as useful as well as ornamental.

There is a small deep tray of yellow wood, about 12 inches wide and 16 inches long, with a spray of bright colored flowers in the center. Very striking on this tray are cocktail glasses of beetle ware in many different colors. These can be bought separately at an astonishingly low price. They also have tall highball glasses of this same ware.

Something new are finger bowl ornaments in various colors and in the shapes of frogs, ducks, lobsters, swans, crabs, and other aquatic animals. These ornaments are made of Venetian glass.

A number of practical prizes would be lily bowls, ginger jars and candy dishes in cloisonne—also cigaret boxes and ash trays of which you can never have too many. Very reasonably priced are cigaret boxes in all sizes of cinnabar and cloisonne. They come in all colors. A striking one is made of red cinnabar inlaid with rose quartz.

One of the prettiest prizes a hostess could give would be a pair of small lenox china vases in ivory or chalk white. There are also vases of rookwood in red, blue and green which come in all sizes and shapes.



DAINTY BRACKETS FOR GADGETS

People who like amusing things have gone quite mad over those silly little glass animals and countless other things in miniature. An enterprising manufacturer has at last come forward with a decorative object on which to place them to advantage. The two small carved wall brackets shown above are in unfinished wood. Such brackets and shelves come in many designs.

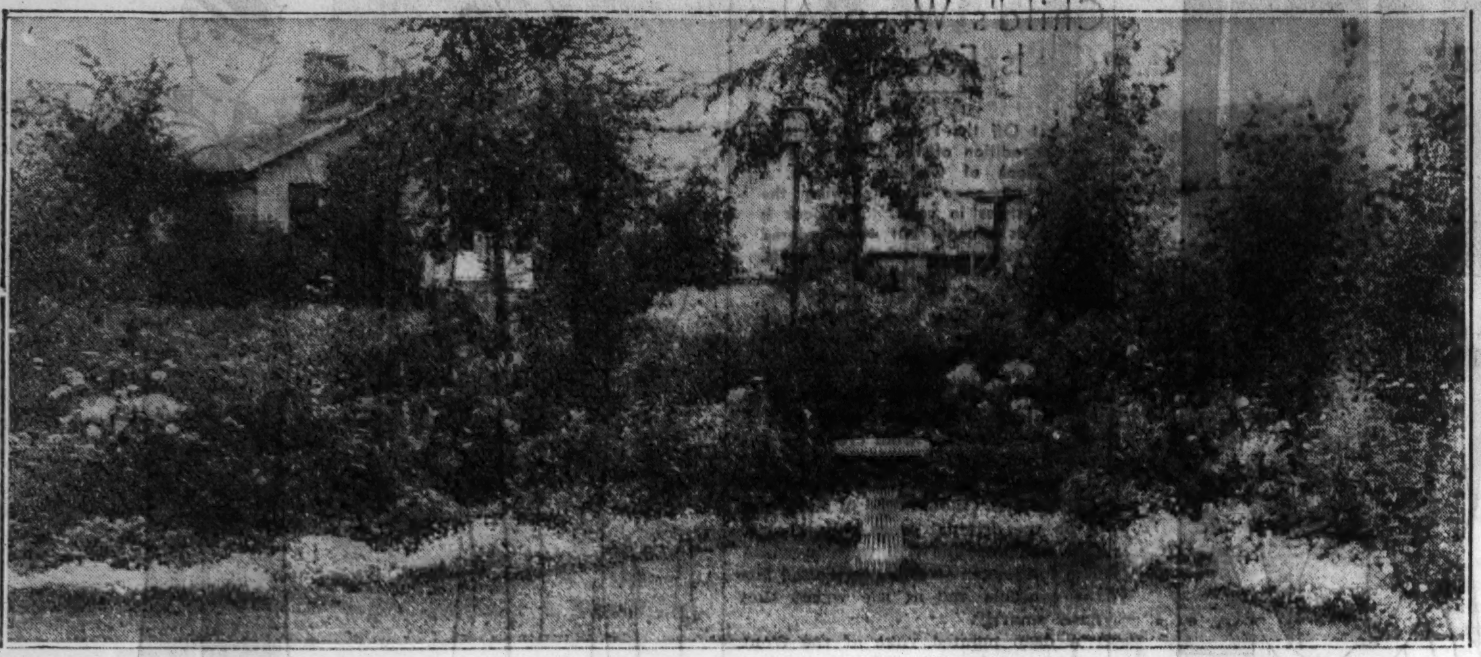
Saplings Planted in Fall Have Better Chance in Life than Trees Which Start Careers in Spring



Trees even at this stage in their growth help complete the picture when visitors view the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Durbahn, 158 Beverly place, Highland Park. A week ago the garden was given recognition by The Tribune, which awarded Mr. and Mrs. Durbahn a place on the permanent Flower Garden Honor Roll of outstanding amateur gardens in Chicagoland territory.

Nurseries Weed Out Stock in Autumn

By Paul Potter.

FALLING leaves—signs of the time to transplant trees—are silently urging upon home owners in the Chicago region the desirability of getting in touch with the nursery for early delivery of those much needed young trees.

The leaves are saying plainly that tree life is entering the winter dormant period, and until the new buds appear next spring most any sized tree may be transplanted so long as the soil is not frozen.

Fall Planting Allows Firmer Root Growth.

Several advantages attend fall planting of trees. Most nurseries thin out their stocks and take up the young seedlings at this time of year. Most people still cling to spring planting, and it is necessary to "heel in" the roots of the young trees for delivery then. But why not get them this fall and set them out while work in the yard and garden is slack?

An added advantage is that by starting the new root growth and allowing the dirt to settle about the roots this fall, the tree has a firmer start in its new location next spring. Many trees are lost when planted late in the spring, because the heat of June and July suns cannot be withstood by the saplings.

Few Yards Have Their Full Quota of Trees.

Few places have as many trees as they should to be properly landscaped. Older home yards have all large trees and too few young to come along when the old monarchs are dead. Newer homes either lack enough trees or have an oversupply of some of the quick growing, but less desirable kinds like cottonwoods.

Trees are about as cheap now as one can expect them to be for years to come. Most city lots can support at least six to ten shade or fruit trees. And if the alley needs screening off, a row of Lombardy poplars, started at this time of year, will be most advantageous.

Both the deciduous trees, which lose their leaves in the fall, and the coniferous trees or the evergreens, may be transplanted during October and November. If they can be set out in time for the fall rains and early snows, so much the better.

New Plants Should Have Healthy Root Systems.

In selecting the stock, care should be taken to get a healthy plant with a well developed root system. The roots of small trees should be sacked to prevent injury, while the larger tree should be transplanted with an "earth ball" about it. All roots should be kept moist while out of the ground if possible.

Most mistakes in transplanting are made by gardeners who dig the hole too small for the root system to have plenty of room. It is decidedly worth while to dig the hole deeper than needed, adding well decayed organic matter to the dirt placed in the bottom or bed.

Proper Watering of Sapling Is a Delicate Job.

The tree is set at the same depth as it grew before, as is shown by a mark at the base of the main stem or trunk. The soil should be fine and poured about the roots to came into close contact with them, some tamping down being advisable. The soil may be watered as it is added, leaving a top dressing of unwatered soil to prevent drying of the ground and cracking.

It is also a good practice to trim back the tops of the tree, making certain that trees which grow tall have a central "leader" or main stem with but few side branches. Watering once a week or as much as is needed to keep the roots moist but not flooded, is an aid to getting the tree settled in its new location before the ground freezes.

Bronze Jewelry Dramatic Against Green Ensemble

COSTUME jewelry of real bronze, rather heavy looking and with excellent depth of color, opens a new chapter in the exciting history of modern dress accessories.

Bronze earrings, necklaces, clips, and brooches are positively dramatic against this winter's favorite shade of green, and almost as smart with the new slate or smoke grays or the omnipresent blacks.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 25.

Get the lawn sown at once before the season advances. Renovate old lawns. Do not expect the seed to grow if sown on a hard surface scratched with steel toothed rakes; spade up the ground, breaking up the rough lumps, and rake fine; remove hard lumps from the surface. Use the best seed.

If the ground cracked during hot weather it probably needs humus, which may be incorporated by spading under well decayed organic matter, peat or leafmold. After sowing rake in slightly for grass seed should be barely covered, and roll. If the weather is very dry artificial watering will be necessary but the fall rains will soon come and should be sufficient to take care of watering.

Tuesday, Sept. 26.

Order and plant bulbs as soon as they can be obtained. Divide and replant many kinds of perennials. Get the soil ready for peonies. By early planting one may anticipate abundant flowers next season for the plants have more time to become thoroughly established.

If the border has not received adequate attention it may be wise to dig all the plants, fertilize the soil, divide those plants needing to be divided and replant.

Wednesday, Sept. 27.

Cut away all old canes on the raspberry bushes and trim back the new canes to five or six feet, depending on their growth, for these are the producers for next season. Tomatoes will ripen more uniformly if the foliage is removed by cutting away the growing stems to expose the fruit to the sun. Continue to propagate tender bedding plants in the small conservatory for next year's stock.

Thursday, Sept. 28.

Rock garden plants may be planted now. Use good, strong plants and they will soon become established and furnish fine bloom next year. Be sure that the soil in the newly built rockery is settled before planting.

Tie and stake the chrysanthemum plants and keep well watered and fed for they are heavy "eaters." It is not too late to transplant the iris. Garden clubs can do much to beautify public school or church grounds by using great borders of iris.

Do not overlook the brilliantly flowered and old fashioned peony officinalis rubra. It is early flowering, appearing before many standard varieties, but is seldom seen.

Friday, Sept. 29.

Use only the earliest kinds of chrysanthemums for they are more certain to flower. Discard those caught by first frosts. Plant food for the bulbs may be applied after planting.

Digitalis [foxglove] and campanula media [canterbury bell] are biennials and do best if protected in a cold frame during winter. Transplant them to their outdoor quarters in springtime. Sweet William also is included in this group as it may freeze out unless protected. Transplant pansies in to a cold frame.

Saturday, Sept. 30.

Prepare the soil for garden lilies. The Regal lily, speciosum rubrum and album, auratum and others all respond to good treatment, such as a good, deep, well drained soil in which is incorporated plenty of leafmold or peat. The Madonna lily is shallow rooting, makes an autumn rosette of leaves and must be planted early.

"I have been given many nice articles of clothing, but the majority of them must be remade, as I wear size 14 and most of the donations are from people much larger than I. Sewing by hand has affected my eyes and given me severe headaches. With winter in the offing I have a great deal of sewing to do for our little girl and would be most grateful for a machine. Stencil Designs Break Monotony of Bare Ceiling

They Also Help Rugs to Relieve Unbroken Stretches of Floor Space

CEILINGS are often a sadly overlooked point in home decorations and opportunities for interesting treatment of them are neglected. Here it is that some slight stenciling can be employed.

For instance where a room is too high, stencil patterns in the form of narrow stripes with spot designs at each corner can give the effect of making the ceiling seem lower.

Another way of achieving the same result is by using mottled or glazed colors or all over stencil patterns.

Stencil Bands Applied to Homemade Panels.

Still a third way is to nail wood panel mouldings 4 to 12 inches from the wall all way around, thus securing one single large panel. A simple stencil band is then applied inside the moulding 2 or more inches from the wood moulding. Center designs as well as corner designs can be used within these panels.

Indeed some of the vogue for sten- that when these stencils are properly used they can change the apparent size or even the shape of a room—and at a cost not at all prohibitive to the owner of a moderate sized home.

Light Colors Thickened, Vivid Ones Thinned.

Stenciling is also brought into play for painted floors in larger rooms where a number of single small rugs are used. Or in a small room where only one sizable rug is seen, a simple stencil design or a narrow stripe can be run around the edges of the floor.

As for plain walls which are not usually hung with pictures, these can often be stenciled with horizontal bands or given a panelled effect. This eliminates any too blank spaces between door casings and windows and also reduces a little the height of the walls.

If light colors are to be used for stenciling they should be mixed thicker than for ordinary purposes.

If brilliant colors are employed, such as sun yellows, vivid greens, rich blue or flaming reds, or if the colors are very dark, they can be thinned with flatting oil or turpentine.

No good stenciling job can be done on a surface which is smudged or dirty.

One can stencil on wood which is stained or natural, on lacquer, enamel, gloss paint or flat stipped white lead paint.

Metal Lunch Boxes Disguised as Books

SCHOOL days have arrived and bring with them lunch basket worries Some children are objecting vociferously to carrying bungiesome boxes or newspaper wrapped packages. A few even prefer to lose their lunches by the wayside rather than carry awkward shaped parcels.

But there is a remedy for all this. It is a metal lunch box which resembles a medium sized book to outward appearances. This may be had in several attractive colors and is a well made affair of which any child would be proud. A handle on the top just fits small hands and the box contains a thermos bottle large enough for youthful capacities.

Dark Coats Wed Gay Plaid Frocks

DRAMATIC accompaniments to the plain dark coats are the newest frocks of striped or plaid jersey in as many and as wild colors as Joseph's coat. The fabric designers and colorists have reached new heights in this soft, smooth fabric; and the experts predict it will have a tremendous vogue.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

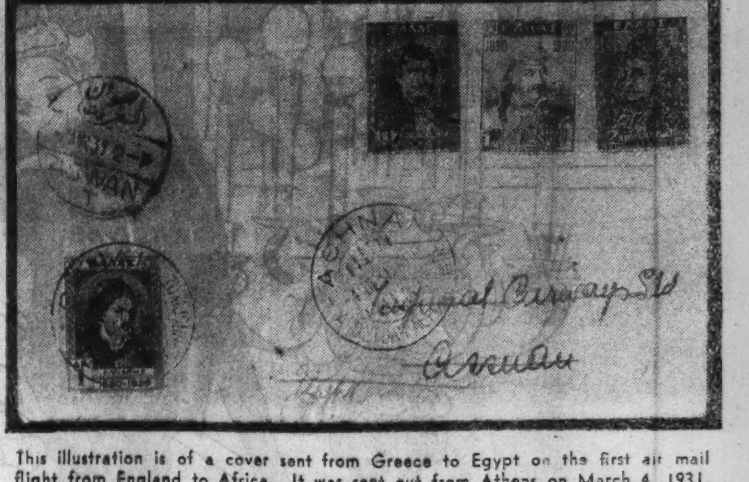
Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions concerning stamps. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should be inclosed in case a personal reply is desired.

THE steel engraving industry owes its success in producing stamps and banknotes to the ingenuity of Jacob Perkins of Massachusetts, who invented a process for transferring designs from the original die to a steel plate. In this process all of the characteristics which make line engraving the preëminent method of reproducing designs are retained and the resulting prints are as much genuine engravings as though the entire plate of several hundred subjects had been entirely engraved by hand. To engrave the individual stamp subjects on a plate would be prohibitive from a standpoint of cost and time.

Perkins saw his method made obligatory in banknote printing in Massachusetts and in 1819 on the advice of the British minister went to England to explain the process to the officials of the Bank of England. Here he had less success, but knowing the merits of his invention he organized a company known as Perkins, Fairman & Heath to exploit the idea in London. Upon the advent of the postage labels invented by Rowland Hill, this firm, now known as Perkins, Bacon & Co. became contractors for their manufacture. Thus the first postage stamps, although an English invention, were produced by an American process which is still used for all of the securities, paper money, and stamps of the United States. The stamp of Mauritius, which is illustrated, is typical of stamps made under the Perkins patents.

An Alaouites Air Stamp.

This airpost stamp comes from a division of Turkish Syria, mandated to France after the world war. The airplane, name of the country and Turkish inscription are surcharged in red on a 50 centimes Syrian stamp of 1925. Alaouites existed as such only from 1924 until 1930 when its name became Lattaquie, or Latakia in English, a name more familiar to pipe smokers than to stamp collectors, unless one happens to be a victim of both vices.



This illustration is of a cover sent from Greece to Egypt on the first air mail flight from England to Africa. It was sent out from Athens on March 4, 1931, and received at Aswan (Assuan) early on March 6. The stamps are of the centenary issue of 1930.

Stamp Honors Patriot.

This stamp is one of a series issued by the Dominican Republic to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Don Fernando Arturo de Merino, patriot, politician, and priest of that West Indian country. Following the brief period when Santo Domingo became annexed to Spain in 1861, Merino was president of the national assembly and he was elected president of the republic for the two year term from 1880 to 1882. At the time of his death he was archbishop of Santo Domingo. The other designs of this series show Merino as a younger man, his tomb, and the cathedral at Santo Domingo, the capital.

Russian Boys Honored.

The soviets have the equivalent of the Boy Scouts in an organization known as the Pioneers. To honor the first assembly of this group, Russia issued two values of stamps inscribed. "First all union assembly of Pioneers — 1929." The stamp shown has a value of 14 kopecs and shows a bugler blowing the call for assembly.

Zep Visit Thrills Collectors.

As expected the coming visit of the Graf Zeppelin to A Century of Progress has aroused collectors throughout the world. So much interest is shown that The Stamp Collector has provided a supply of instructions, telling how to prepare covers and have them carried on the ship within the United States, which may be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to the editor of this department.

Those more ambitious collectors who wish to have covers start in Germany or South America should obtain instructions from F. W. Von Meister, U. S. representative of the Zeppelin company. His address is 354 Fourth avenue, New York City.

Your Questions.

F. B. H. — The portraits on the Washington Bi-Centennial stamps were adapted from the work of the following artists: Painters — Charles Willson Peale, for the ½, 1½, 3, 4, and 5 cent stamps; Gilbert Stuart for the 2 and 10 cent stamps, and John Trumbull for the 6 and 7 cent values; Jean Antoine Houdon, a French sculptor, made the portrait bust used for the 1 cent value; Charles B. J. F. Saint Memin made measured profile used for the 8 cent stamp, and W. Williams the pastel drawing from which the 9 cent design was taken.

R. S. B.—Encased postage stamps such as were used during the civil war for minor currency are more in the province of coin collecting than in that of stamp collecting, although there are some specialists who have included them with their stamps. The same remarks apply as well to the postage currency of that period in which the small bills bear facsimiles of the current 5 and 10 cent stamps, singly or in multiple.

The brownies sew the blankets
To make a flower's bed.

Weatherstrips Insure Warmth, Conserve Fuel

More Air Filters Through Cracks than Blows In Window of Average Home.

By Louise Bargelt.

HOW about our windows and doors when the season approaches which brings gusty winds and chilling cold; when the biting midwinter air hunts hungrily for cracks and crevices through which it can make its way into our home?

Are they protected in some way for the sake of our annual fuel bill—not to mention our indoor comfort?

For believe it—or doubt it if you like—but it is claimed on good authority that there is as much air infiltration through the cracks and crevices between frame and sash of the average unprotected windows in the average home as would enter through one completely open window.

Air Changes Several Times an Hour in Most Houses.

Ventilating and heating experts have garnered some simple but illuminating statistics in regard to the amount of air per hour which these doors and window crevices of ours admit.

Houses of brick or masonry should be calked as well as weather stripped. Rain will seep in through cracks, and the masonry will crumble, adding the toll of deterioration and the fuel waste. For these cracks there are excellent plastic fillers which will seal them well.

Bedroom and Nursery Doors Must Be Sealed Tight.

While the advantages of weather stripping for window and outside doors can be easily seen, not every one realizes the advantages of sealing or weather stripping under the inside doors. Bedroom and nursery doors must be tight to keep the cold air from windows flung wide at night from chilling the house and making it more than necessarily hard to heat in the morning. This type of indoor sealing is also valuable under kitchen and bathroom doors to deaden noises and keep cooking odors from enjoying too brisk a circulation through the house.

Just what type of weather strip is selected depends somewhat on the amount of money one can afford to spend.

One of the least expensive types is that of wood and felt, while others are of all felt or folded fabric. These strips are effective in keeping out air infiltration. Tightly nailed on they can be counted on to contribute to the cleanliness of the house in summer and the warmth of it in winter.

Metal Strips Cost More, but Extremely Efficient.

The modern metal weather strip costs more, but is preferable, as it is an extremely efficient and enduring form of weather protection. Proper installation is vitally important.

There are also strips which are applied to the sash itself, and there are some which are built into the frame. Ingenious weather strips have also been devised for the wood window, double hung, sliding or casement—as well as for the steel casement window.

It seems that an ordinary nonweather stripped house can count on a change of air several times an hour through its window leakage and its frequently opened and closed windows and doors.

In winter, however, when doors and windows are less often opened, a large part of the air infiltration is confined to door and window crevices. Therefore we can compute that there is a change of air only about once an hour.

Weather Stripping Imperative for Old or Cheap Structures.

Weather strip those same windows with good material properly installed and we can figure on only about half an air change in the same length of time. Or, in brief, by weather stripping we reduce the amount of cold air which finds window access to our homes some fifty per cent.

For the above computations an average well built house was taken.

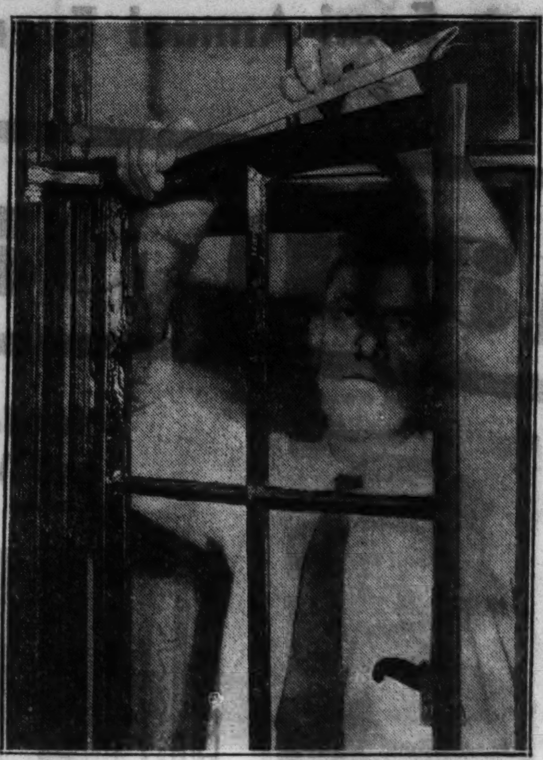
Where the house has been too cheaply built, where the windows have been carelessly installed and are loose and ill fitting or where the windows are old, the house settled and the frames have become a bit twisted, the infiltration of air is much greater. And the need for window protection if we are to keep our fuel bills down and our houses free from drafts is proportionately increased.

Houses of Bricks or Masonry Should Be Caulked Frequently.

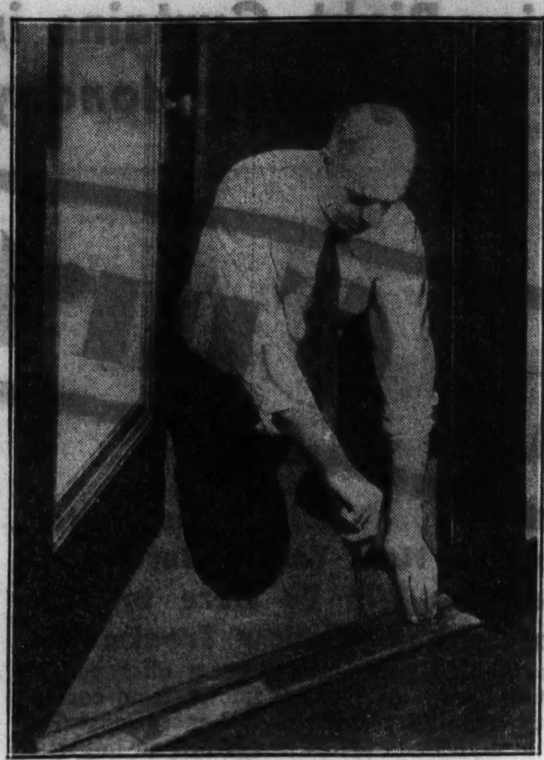
Not that weather stripping will do everything—or perform any miracles—or that it is a sure fire cure for all manner of hard-to-heat ills. There are other ways of protecting windows. Storm sashes are one of them. They fall more in the insulation class, since, however, they are essentially a winter precaution which prevent the escape of warm air from the house, and will be discussed later.

Sometimes a window glass is badly puttied and does not fit well. Such a sash should be kept well puttied and painted.

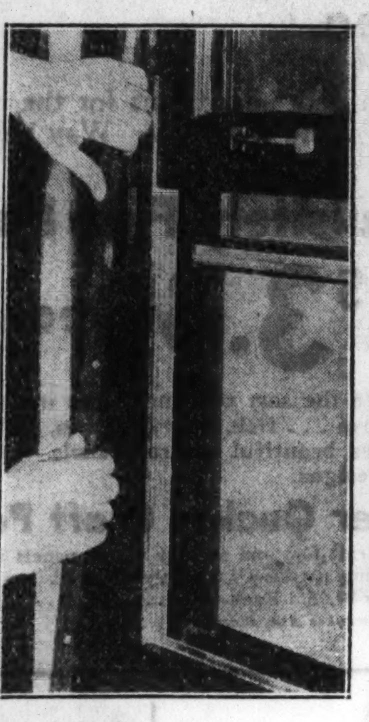
Some metal weather strips are heavier than others and will stand up longer than others and will stand up longer than the lighter ones. Rubber weather stripping should be mentioned, as it is a good barrier to air infiltration.



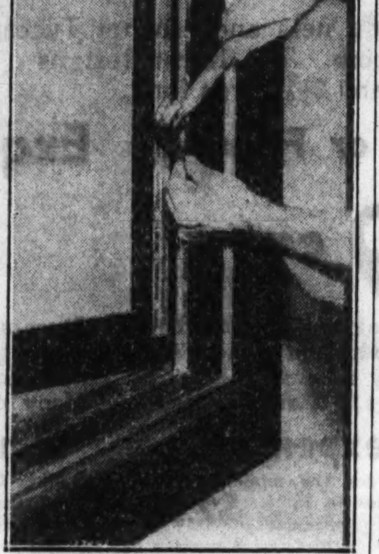
Steel windows benefit as do wood windows when they are properly weatherstripped. This bronze weatherstrip needs no bolts nor screws to fasten it in place. It is about to be snapped into position on the outside face of the ventilator frame.



It's an old American custom to sleep with our bedroom windows flung wide, even in winter; hence the need of "weatherstripping" our bedroom doors if we are to run our heating plants with proper economy and rid our room of drafts.



A double hung window in process of weatherstripping with corrugated side metal strips to keep out winter air. The picture shows the inside stop of the window removed at sides.



Looking at a window from the outside we see an in-opening casement window being given an interlocking metal weatherstrip. The metal channel across the bottom is for sliding screens.

New Windows, Doors Improve Old Houses

NEW windows add beauty to a home and often afford light in the rooms where it is most needed. Doors of up-to-date design, substituted for aging, shabby ones, also add their quota to the home's exterior appearance.

Often, too, a change and an interesting variety can be given to the exterior by the addition of becoming shutters.

Winter Windows Will Be Framed in Beautiful Fabrics of Woolen, Silk Faille, and Moire

Light Colors Much in the Limelight

By Claire Winslow.

A booklet by Claire Winslow, "New Curtains and Draperies," is now on sale at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn, for 3 cents. Five cents by mail.

WHEN autumn and winter look in at the window they are going to see some mighty good looking draperies this year. Right now, long before there is a hint of snow in the air, the stores are displaying the newest curtain materials in a perfect riot of beautiful, subdued colors. Brilliant reds are going to be left strictly to nature this season. You may see them on the trees after the first frost, but you won't encounter them among our drapery fabrics, for they are distinctly out of the fashion picture now.

Greens, too, are a back number, except for a few bottle or blue-greens. A man who knows all about draperies from A to Z informed us that reds and greens are as dead this winter as the dodo, and even deader. Unless you glory in being out of date you'll eschew them.

Because the modish new furniture fabrics are dark, drapery materials run to light colors for contrast. Thus you'll discover that a lot of pure white is going to be used this autumn. [Yes, we know lots of people still think it isn't practical, but remember that many of the most soignée materials are washable now.] So, underline white. Then, a close second in the style list are all the white cousins: eggshell, oyster, cream, and light biege.

Blue Is Coming Color; Brown Also Smart.

Blue, we're told, is a coming color. And brown is distingué, especially when it's combined with dead white, or eggshell. Golds are good. So is deep wine; so is cranberry. Citron yellow and chartreuse are for those who prefer tea to milk, and champagne to beer. They are light, gay, sophisticated colors—ever so smart.

Now, about the weaves. Don't raise a startled eyebrow when you discover the large place woolens are taking on the drapery fabrics' horizon; we're telling you now. Absolutely lovely, soft, solid color wools in a wide range of subdued colors will stand ace high this winter. The stores are carrying a grand array of them—serges, they are—in dull blues, rust, dusty peach, citron, beige and deep brown. With this fabric the story lies in the trimming. Dark brown, for instance, with pure white cotton ball edging and lined in white, looks good enough to eat.

Corduroys are good, also. In pure white, combined with Empire green or ultramarine blue, they make the best looking draperies a room could possibly have.

Novelty Weaves Stand Ace High This Season.

And the novelty weaves: waffle cloth [dead white], string that has a hand knit air [beige and white], and all the fabrics that look like very ritzy rough toweling are going to enhance some of our best windows this season. You can work wonders with them, for they seem to fall naturally in beautiful folds.

With all the fabrics mentioned so far Venetian blinds are the ideal accompaniment rather than glass curtains. If they are not in the budget's reach, however, simple voile or net glass curtains may be used.

One of the newest style notes is the use of wool on silks. And silks, by the way, are all given an interesting texture now. They come in diagonal weaves or are corded. Plain smooth-as-satin silks are definitely passé.

White wool is applied in diagonal stripes to brown silk faille in a most intriguing manner. The effect is stunning. Also, red wool is applied to cream faille in the same diagonal, and brown to white. And this brand new fabric is sold in rights and lefts—for the right side and the left side of your window—so that when it is hung the diagonal striping makes the correct angles. Clever, isn't it?

Rich Texture of Moire Makes It Popular.

Silk moires are most popular again. They come in delectable colors: copper, gold, turquoise, brown, eggshell. We saw a beautiful bedspread made of eggshell moire and edged with coral pink. The pillow cover of the moire had a single scallop trimming of the coral and was made so that the pillow was inserted the wide way of the case rather than the narrow or end, the edging falling over this opening and concealing it.

Plain moires we've had with us before, but something entirely new this season is a printed moire. This material has a floral design printed on it, like a chintz, and has a formal, dressy appearance.

We inquired about chintzes, cretonnes and linens and were informed by our authority that they are perennially popular. They never come in because they never go out, if you know what we mean. The demand for them is persistent. As hand blocked linens are so costly, a fine line of printed linens has been developed. These may be had in the most artistic color combinations and patterns and are most reasonably priced.

We especially liked a deep brown, cream white and beige floral pattern, and also one in dusty rose and beige and white. A heavenly shade of blue comes in a printed linen, as does a rich, deep coral, also.

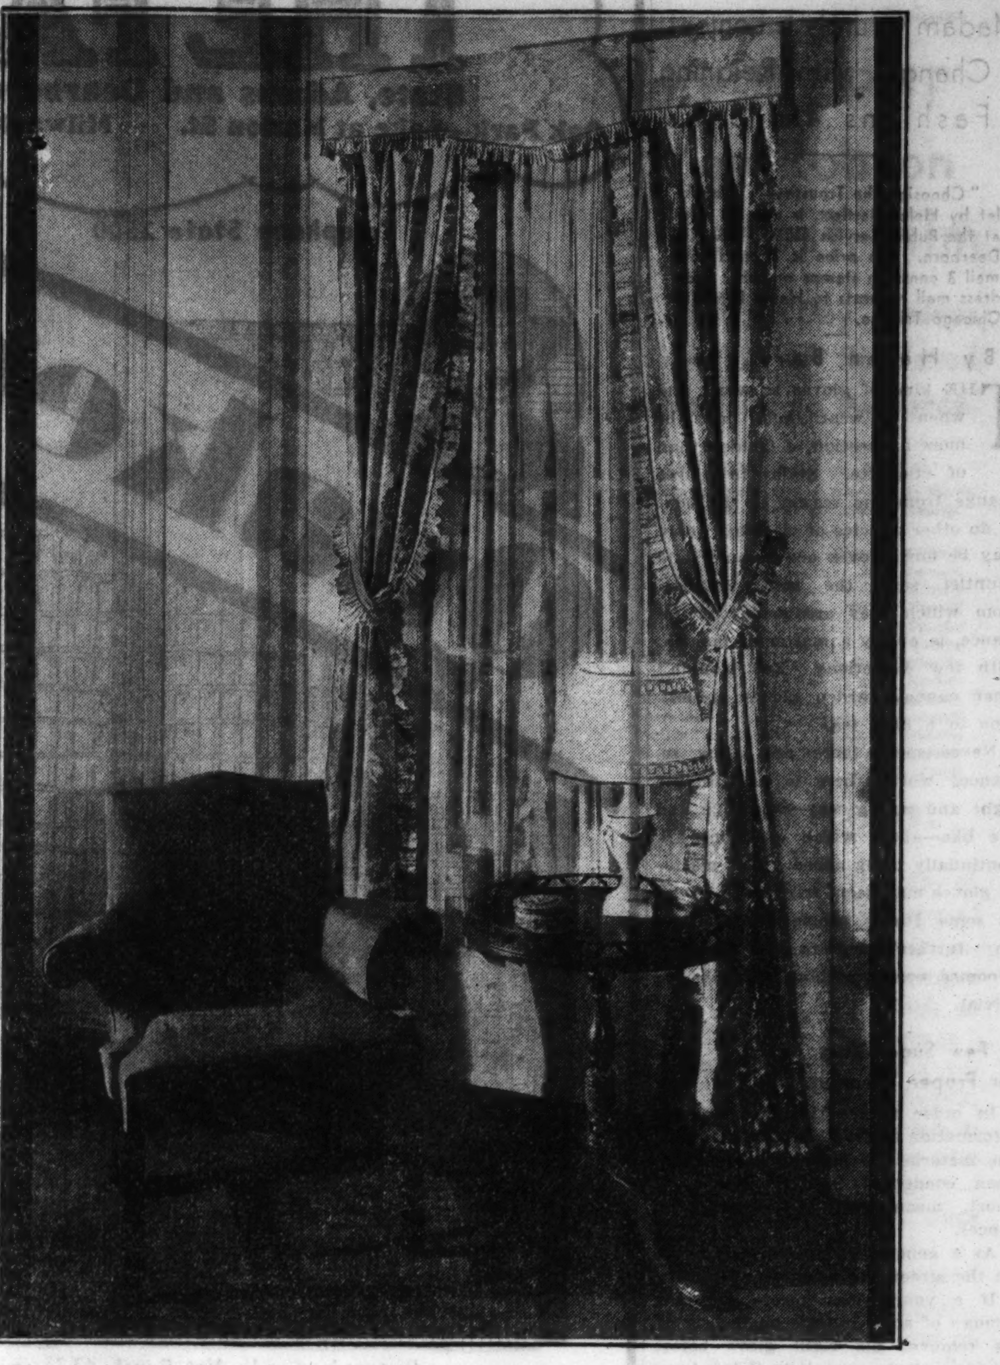
Chintzes as Colorful as Old Fashioned Garden.

The chintzes are so fascinating it is impossible to describe them. You must go and see for yourself, and just try to make up your mind which you like best when there are forty or fifty different patterns—each a gem! Chintz has come out of the bedroom, you know, and is as much at home in the dining and living rooms as any other drapery material. It may be lined or not, as you please.

A word about glass curtains and we're through. Have you seen the shimmering, thin Korean silks? They come in solid colors and in so many shades and tints that there are about a dozen different blues, pinks, reds, greens, golds, etc. They have a slightly rough texture that is intriguing, and they may serve as draperies, or for glass curtains. They are quite at home in either rôle.

The pictures today show two new drapery patterns, one a classic swag and tassel design on colored or white ground, another a cabachon and star pattern to be used in the same room, while the third photograph proves how lovely glazed chintz is when allowed to hang in long, simple folds from beneath a valance. This valance board, by the way, is adjustable and will fit any window from 36 to 48 inches wide, so it is no longer necessary to go to the time and expense of ordering one made especially for your own individual window.

Plain, silk net glass curtains are used with these draperies.



Glazed chintz in floral pattern is used to make these simple, yet charming window draperies. A narrow edge of plaiting is their only trimming. The valance board is adjustable to any average window. It is sold at one of the Chicago stores.

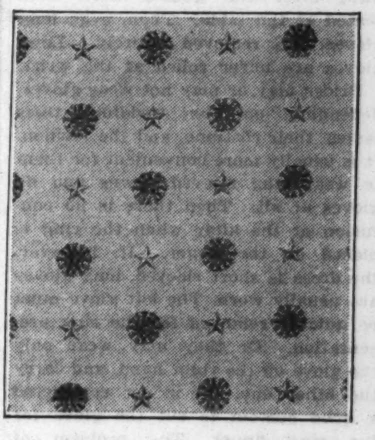
This swag and tassel drapery pattern is very good for fall.



A tiny star and cabachon design makes up another fabric.

Lamps to Brighten a Winter Evening at Home May Be Softly Feminine or Chastely Modern

Kerosene Has New Luminary Graces

By Edith Weigle.

YOU'VE probably heard the tried and true feminine remedy for the blues: "Go out and buy a new hat!" Just as a chic little bit of headgear will perk up one's spirits astonishingly, so a new lamp or two will brighten a dull room. Just try it and see!

Now is an ideal time to go scouting for lamps, too, for the shops are displaying their new winter lines and you'll find them in all their pristine beauty, before they've been depleted by purchasers. There are more high priced lamps being shown now—and sold, too—than has been the case for several years. Great varieties of inexpensively priced ones, however, make it possible for the slimmest budget to include a table or bridge lamp this fall.

White porcelain and pottery bases are just as fashionable now as they were last spring, and white shades continue in favor, too. The interesting news about shades lies in their texture. Rough silks, or silks having a barely perceptible floral or leaf pattern in self tone, or novelty cottons are superseding the parchment and ordinary silk we are so familiar with. Ribbed effects, crinkled chiffons and even velvets and shantung weaves are used to create the newest models.

Trimming is very important, too. Floppy bows of moire ribbon or of velvet in contrasting color vie with silk rope edging and ball or loop fringe. We saw one stunning shade recently that was of some new opaque paper. At top and bottom it was bound in copper brown velvet. The base was of the single column Empire type, which, by the way, is being used in rooms of many periods this season.

Whether or not one has modern furniture one may indulge in a clever modern lamp. Simple it will be, and of excellent line and proportions. It may have a chromium base, or one of metal and bakelite, or of crystal. The shade will avoid anything in any way fussy or elaborate and will achieve its beauty through simplicity of line. It may be of white parchment bound in a thin strip of silver metal, or of white stretched tight, or entirely of metal.

A coming color for lamp shades is light yellow. Some say it will supersede white. The light tans or beiges are always good. Deep Empire green shiny paper lined in white made one ultra-smart model seen lately, and another one, a luscious pale pink opaque paper, was used atop a large white porcelain vase base.

Did you realize that thousands and thousands of homes are still lighted by kerosene? But instead of the homely, bulky old nickel plated kerosene lamp you can now select one of the vase type, most artistic. And due to a new mantle feature the light given will be five times as strong using the same amount of fuel as that afforded by the old fashioned kind. Indeed, when we saw a new mantle-type kerosene lamp lighted and placed next an electric lamp we thought the intensity of the illumination seemed exactly the same.

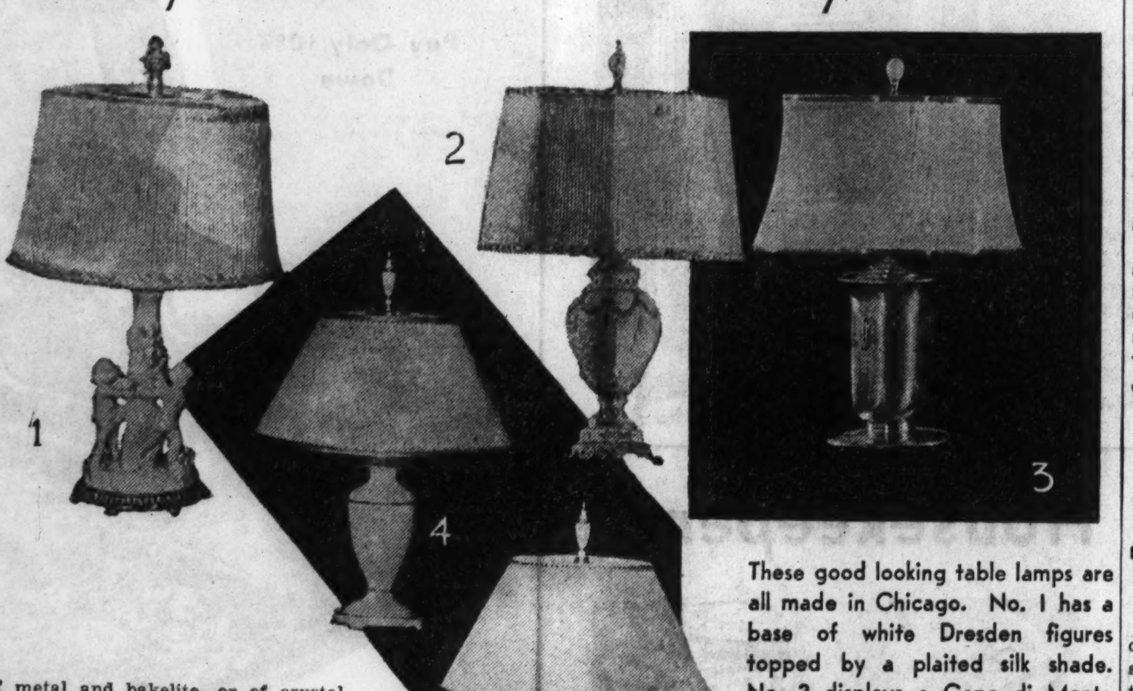
Another new feature that is making oil lamps attractive is the modern patented oilless, parchment-like shade. It closely resembles the parchment we all know, but is so made that heat will not turn it yellow or harm it. It comes in a variety of colors, decorated or plain: green, peach, rose, amber, white, etc. It may also be had for the new kerosene type of floor and of wall bracket lamps, or for hanging lamps.

The illustrations today show some new designs in electric units. Number 3 is made by a company known for its excellent styling and materials. It has a fairly large base finished in brushed nickel, which is lacquered to prevent tarnish. The round shade, 15 inches in diameter, is of cream ribbed silk trimmed with metal bands that match the base. There are two bulbs, and the height from top of finial to base is 21 inches.

Number 1 has a delicate little Dresden pottery base resting on a gilt standard, and a plaited silk shade with interesting gold trimming. Numbers 4 and 5 are two pretty all-white lamps, one having a shade of novelty perforated parchment.

Number 2 shows a handsome white vase lamp. The base has a Capo di Monte decoration and the mountings are in gold. The beautiful shade, all hand-made, is of sheepskin finely plaited over yellow and trimmed with woven braid of green and gold. The mountings of this lamp are also in gold.

A new feature on one well known line of lamps is a patented automatic lamp card reel, which is concealed under the base of floor lamps, and automatically takes up excess cord, thus eliminating a tangled and unsightly length on the floor. Wonder why no one thought of that before!



These good looking table lamps are all made in Chicago. No. 1 has a base of white Dresden figures topped by a plaited silk shade. No. 2 displays a Capo di Monte decoration on the base, and a shade of chiffon. No. 3 is a stunning metal lamp with a cream colored ribbed silk shade, and Nos. 4 and 5 show two pretty white lamps, one having perforated parchment shade.

Modernistic Cards Can Brighten Bridge Tables

IT is essential for a bridge hostess to have attractive playing cards and tallies. In a downtown shop there is a new supply of very gay cards with tallies to match. These cards have modernistic designs and come in sets of two decks each. They are reasonably priced and have many different designs in the brightest of colors.

Washing Machine Adds New Beauty as Well as Utility

TAKING a hint from the motor car manufacturers, a mail order house is bringing out a super-washing machine, which has all control mechanisms inclosed in a single enameled shell connected with the wringer at the top.

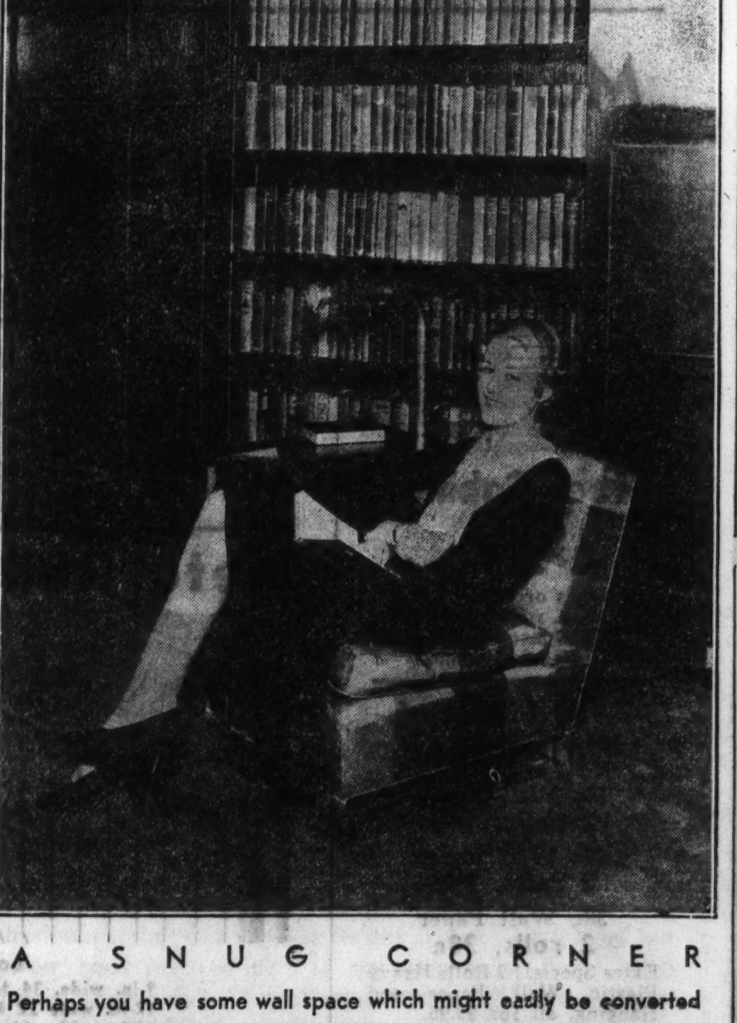
Thus bending exercises are no more a part of the wash-day routine. In lieu of fussing about the bottom of her machine to stop, start and empty it, the housewife now nonchalantly twirls a lever or two at the top. Efficient construction has made stooping to oil the monster a chore that needs only be performed once every six months.

The streamline top is but a decorative improvement in the new washing machine, however. Mechanisms and structures are also bigger and better. The latest design for the agitator provides it with junior wings that create a greater water displacement and make for faster action. The capacity of the new tub is seven sheets as against the old maximum of six.

A new push lever device on the wringer [which is reversible] now gives complete release when clothes are caught. An automatic tension adjustment replaces the old manual affair. There are balloon rollers, too, and an automatic drain board.

The latest washing machine can stand in your kitchen and not blush for its gaucherie. It has discarded the old painted or lacquered skirt, and now dresses in porcelain enamel all the way down. The motor is as noiseless as the grave, and legs, tubs and motor, all are rubber cushioned.

This machine is on sale at a Chicago department store.



A SNUG CORNER

Perhaps you have some wall space which might easily be converted into such a pleasant reading corner as this with the addition of built-in book shelves, a soft and inviting chair, a table—and some books! The book cases and shelves are extremely decorative.

Molten Liquid Rock Used as Insulator in Modern Homes

THERE is a new insulation available which is made from molten liquid rock. Manufactured especially for homes, and suitable for being used in modernizing work, this liquid rock, sprouting from a miniature blast furnace at a temperature of some 2,500 degrees, is smashed by a jet of high pressure steam into fluffy, flexible threads. After cooling the threads are allowed to float to the floor and then gatherel up and felted into batts 15 inches wide by 18 inches long. These fit in between studs and joists and are thick enough to fill the space between sheathing and lath work.

Just another type of interesting insulation, designed to furnish added protection—and lessened fuel bills—to our homes. While it is primarily for use in new construction it can be employed when structural remodeling is going on, when extra rooms are being added, or built, or torn down and done over.

Outside Vestibule Is Saver of Fuel Costs

DOES your house get chilly on cold days by the constant opening and shutting of doors? There are sectional outside vestibules which can be removed when warm weather comes 'round again which keep fuel bills down and eliminate disagreeable drafts. A local carpenter can build such a vestibule for you or individual units, glazed, and with special trim accompanying them, can be purchased.

Glove Etiquette May Be Matter of Popular Mode

Madam Grundy Is Lenient; Changes with Reigning Fashions and Styles.

"Choosing the Trousseau," a booklet by Helen Bartlett, is now on sale at the Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn. The price is 2 cents; by mail 3 cents, in stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Helen Bartlett, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

THE kind of gloves to wear, and when to wear them, may be more a question of fashion than of etiquette. Styles in gloves change from one season to the next as do other articles of clothing; there may be long gloves one summer and gauntlet style the next. Material from which they are made, for instance, is purely a matter of fashion, with few exceptions. You wouldn't wear canvas garden gloves or mittens to a high tea.

Nevertheless there are many instances where there is an absolute right and wrong way—weddings and the like—about which questions are continually being asked. This matter of gloves may seem frightfully trivial to some [those people needn't read any further], but to the carefully groomed woman nothing should be too trivial.

A Few Suggestions for Proper Wearing.

In order to get the most possible information in the least possible space, the material we have to present has been condensed into a number of short, meaningful [we hope] sentences.

As a general rule gloves are worn on the street and when traveling.

If a young man meets a young woman of acquaintance on the street, he removes his right glove before shaking hands, especially if her hand is ungloved.

At a formal tea women guests wear gloves and hats. The guest of honor usually wears a hat, but not gloves. And the hostess wears neither.

When attending a formal reception the guests follow the same rules as at a tea.

Women need not wear gloves when guests at a musicale, though they should carry them.

Long Gloves Are Never Rolled.

At a formal luncheon most women remove their gloves entirely. And at a formal dinner they are not removed until after the guests have been seated at the table. Then, even long gloves, are removed entirely. Long gloves are never rolled at the wrist.

Brides may or may not wear gloves, depending on the wedding, their tastes, their costume, and the fashion. It is usually more convenient for them to wear long sleeved gowns and no gloves at all. Then there is no confusion at the altar when the ring is placed on the finger. If, however, the dress is short sleeved, long gloves are usually worn. The left glove must be quickly removed for the ring presentation. Or they may wear only the glove on the right hand, and carry the other one. It is not considered a good custom to slit the glove for the ring finger. The problem of gloves is also optional with the bridesmaids. Here again the question of sleeves helps them to decide.

"Vanities" Mix Pulchritude with Murder

But Earl Carroll Doesn't Make a Good Show of Either or Both

By BURNS MANTLE.

NEW YORK. — (Special.) —If the conviction were not strong that all men, especially showmen, are the authors of their own misfortunes you could find it easy to feel a little sorry for the Earl Carrolls of the theater.

They do so many foolish things in apparently such earnest attempts to right themselves. Earl, an adventuring person, is a conspicuous example. Some years back he was shuttled out of the depth of despondency up to the heights of opulence with a grand theater named for him and a patron with faith and money to invest in his ambitions.

The next we knew the patron was broke, the theater had been turned back to the mortgagor, and Earl was looking for a loan to tide him over. He negotiated the loan and went bustling about the world looking for ideas with which to recoup his losses and put him back where all showmen are convinced they should be, which is on top.

Rufus King Had the Idea.

Along came a man named Rufus King with an idea: Why wouldn't it be a grand scheme to combine a regular Vanities show with an equally regular murder mystery? Play the two simultaneously, thus giving the patrons a touch of the nude in art and a snappy song or two between the time the body was discovered and the unsuspected killer uncovered by the inquisitive police inspector.

Earl thought it was a good idea, too, and arranged to collaborate. The result was shown in "Murder at the Vanities" last week and proved poor entertainment. Partly because Carroll did not have the money to do things in his usual lavish way, partly because he was just plain dumb in what he did do.

The "Vanities" features are commonplace when they are not offensively coarse. The murder mystery is dragged in by the heels and is neither good mystery nor good burlesque. Carroll's show is, as usual, the nakedest of the revues, boasting a fan number in which twenty Sally Rands are completely but none too invitingly exposed.

Chorine Discovers Corpse.

"Murder at the Vanities" starts with the usual line of what Mr. Carroll considers "the most beautiful girls in the world" singing in voices that so frequently go with beautiful girls (beautiful Broadway girls, that is) an opening ode entitled "We're Getting Away with Moider."

After that we go into dances by the lively ensemble, dances by soloists and duos, and finally into a number in which the second line of smaller Carrollers are doing a leg and arm drill when suddenly one of them, lying back and kicking her heels in the air, which is an old Carroll custom, suddenly emits a piercing scream.

She has, she shrieks when upright, seen a girl lying on the pipes in the scene loft! The girl's dead! She knows she's dead! On rush the stage manager and six or eight agitated assistants! On rush the idle principals and a couple of doormen! Down from the flies they lower the pipes, and the girl.

Why One Hollywood Writer Doesn't Care for Tallulah

By ROSALIND SHAFFER.

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.—(Special.)—Tallulah Bankhead didn't emblazon a record of box office successes when she was out here, but she certainly left some stories to talk about.

The latest concern Tallulah's triumph over a lady Hollywood writer whom Tallulah did not admire. It took place at one of the clubs that have sprung up with the lure of wine, song, and roulette in that strip of country territory fringing the city precincts of Hollywood.

Spying this chatter author in the club, Tallulah insisted that that slightly suspicious person join her table. "Have a drink," suggested Talloo. "Boy, bring eight brandies for Miss Miss Blank."

This startling order, delivered in the penetrating accent that the darling of the London stage and other places commands only too well, at once arrested the attention of the whole room. Tallulah then set herself to the task of seeing that her reluctant guest drank the brandy.

"You know, nearly everybody in Hollywood has given you a present," Talloo told the squirming victim of her hospitality, whose original suspicion by now had become horror-stricken apprehension. "But I never gave you a present. So I am going to give you a present now." The hapless lady tried to rise, at which Tallulah sat on her lap so she couldn't. Tallulah reached into her purse, took out a scarf, folded the scarf about the neck of the unfortunate girl, and then twisted the scarf.

If you want to know why one Hollywood writer doesn't cherish the daughter of Alabama's congressman, that's why.

By MAE TINEE.

GOOD Morning!

It is certainly the day of the veteran stage actress!

For many moons Marie Dressler has been making the younger women of the cinema look to their laurels. In "Pilgrimage" Henrietta Crosman does a superb, a compelling piece of work. And now comes May Robson to tear you to pieces in the title rôle of "Lady for a Day"—her first big movie part since "Mother's Millions."

If this picture doesn't "get" you I won't know what to think. It is a fascinating specimen of screen story telling. From the first flash the tale and the folks delineating it have a strangle hold on your interest, and there isn't a minute that you don't have that "can't wait" feeling to find out what comes next. AND—when the ten reels have spun to their close you wish there might have been at least half a reel more. For HOW you'd like to know where the charming white haired lady with the flossy name she's picked right out of the air goes from the wharf!

Audience Sure to Weep.

Does she return to the cellar of "Apple Annie"? Are the doors of the sumptuous apartment she has queened over for her "day" still open to receive her? Or, perhaps, does she find haven with "Missouri" Martin until she can get the tangled threads of her existence straightened out? Does she decide to follow a new trail—or does she fall back into the ruts of the old one?

One guess is as good as another — and, perhaps, Director Capra was mighty cunning to let things ride the way he has. For most of us like to analyze character in our own amateur fashion, and each of us will come to a different conclusion regarding the future adventures of the woman we've been weeping over.

Weep? You BET you weep!

I've got to be nice to you about this picture, i. e., tell you little or nothing about the plot. There'd be no savor for you in "Lady for a Day" if you knew just how and why "Apple Annie" became what she did become.

Supporting Cast Brilliant.

The action takes you from underworld to governor's mansion, and springs surprises on you every step of the way.

Miss Robson's remarkable portrayal is flanked by brilliant cast playing. Warren William is immense as the Dude, who is incurably superstitious and will never gamble until he's bought an apple from "Apple Annie." You'll be crazy about Glenda Farrell as "Missouri," the night club lady, and derive rich enjoyment from the activities of Ned Sparks and Guy Kibbee. Beautiful mounting — and that Director Capra deserves a whole paragraph all to himself — only there isn't room. He hasn't missed a bet.

The dialogue has sense and sparkle.

Just an all around ripsnorting good movie!

See you tomorrow.

Taking "Uncle Tom's Cabin" as Bit of History

Chicago Revival of Old Melodrama Fits Into World's Fair Scheme.

By Charles Collins.

THE Chicago revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," now on view at the Studebaker theater, may be taken as an exhibit that supplements A Century of Progress in a department that the Exposition itself has neglected. It has historical interest and is closely related to the problems of the most critical period in American civilization.

One may smile, snicker or laugh at the absurdities of this old melodrama as a specimen of dramatic literature; or one may sentimentalize lightly over it as an amusing relic of old school showmanship. But when viewed against its background of a dark and bloody cycle in the national life, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" must be taken seriously. In spite of its wretched craftsmanship, its numbskull humor, its cheap rhetoric and its tawdry emotionalism, the play that was hacked out of Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel of abolitionist propaganda evokes a sense of awe. It echoes with the drumbeats of destiny.

Wide Open Hole in Structure.

The most obvious of the play's technical errors is the division of its story into two apparently unrelated parts—the George and Eliza Harris episodes of the first half and the Uncle Tom-St. Clair-Legree episodes of the second half. To the young folks of the present, who haven't read and probably never will read Mrs. Stowe's best seller, this will seem like an aberration that is close to lunacy.

The playgoers of "Uncle Tom's" heyday, however, never complained about this lack of unity, for the published text was familiar to them, and they would have felt emotionally cheated if the stage version had deprived them of their favorite thrills. They wanted to see Eliza's escape across the icebound Ohio, and also Uncle Tom's noble death under the whip of his diabolical master, however unrelated these matters might be in the plot.

Champion of Propaganda Literature.

Mrs. Stowe's theme was the tragic conditions of the American Negro's life under the institution of slavery. She wanted to show what happened or might happen in a social system that treated the Negro as property. All of the harrowing incidents in the fictitious picture that she presented were based upon the white man's legal right to buy and sell the black man. She wanted this abolished, and her book was probably the most telling piece of propaganda in fiction ever published.

As propaganda, however, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in play form is by no means bitter. Its mood is much more temperate than that of certain works by crack-pot literary radicals of today. I have seen and read several plays during the last three years that were, to my way of thinking, deliberately vicious attempts to disturb the national life by the poisonous doctrines of communism; and when compared to these virulent rattlesnakes of the writing business, Mrs. Stowe seems a dove of peace.

In "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the south's attitude toward its slaves is kindly, on the whole. Massa Shelby of Kentucky and the elegant St. Clair of New Orleans are good masters; their associates and kinsfolk are also humane. Life with them would have been one long idyll accompanied by healthy, useful work for Uncle Tom and Eliza and their kind.

Villains with Law on Their Side.

But the legal curse of property rights in the black toilers was always working to frustrate the happy ending. Massa Shelby's gambling debts compel him to sell Uncle Tom down the river. St. Clair's sudden death by violence puts the old servitor on the auction block by order of the Probate court. These transfers of property give the three lurking villains—Haley, the speculator; Marks, the pettifogging lawyer; Legree, the whiplash maniac—their ugly opportunities to point Mrs. Stowe's moral.

At the première a young colleague who was born in Texas confessed to me that this was his first experience with "Uncle Tom." He had never read the book, because it had been tabooed in his home. I told him that I had absorbed it in infancy from my father's reading aloud . . . So there we were, scions of the Blue and the Gray, preparing to pass judgment as critics upon the American folk-drama called "Uncle Tom's Cabin." I suspect that the gentleman from Texas said to himself, as he chuckled at the crudenesses of the play, "Well, Mrs. Stowe gave us a pretty square break—for an abolitionist."

A SERENE SEERESS

"Study of a Serene Seeress!" So might this unusual picture of Kay Francis be titled. She's in "I Loved a Woman." Chicago.

New Show at Empire Room; Cabaret Bills

VELOZ and Yolanda, romantic ballroom dancers, will end their engagement in the Empire room of the Palmer house next Wednesday night. They will be succeeded, the next evening, by Medrano and Donna, Argentine dancers who have appeared at many of the swanky cabarets in Europe and New York. They do their stuff in native costumes, with castanets and tambourines to help.

- Other entertainments on the new program at the Empire room will be the Hernandez trio, singers and musicians of the phonograph record, radio, and vaudeville; Vivian Vance, an alumna of the Broadway run of "Music in the Air"; Mason and Faye, eccentric dancers, and Stanley Morner, a tenor. The Abbott ballet girls and Richard Cole's orchestra will continue.

- The Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel will start off its annual fall and winter fashion show next Wednesday. Thirty-six mannequins will be on dress parade. Mark Fisher's orchestra will supply the music.

- A new dance team every week seems to be the slogan at the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel. At any rate, Curry and Joy will replace Marion and Martinez Randall, beginning tomorrow. They have five numbers—modernistic, musical comedy, semi-acrobatic, waltz, and tango.

- Bob Nolan is the new master of ceremonies in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. The inevitable ballroom dancers are Crawford and Caskey. Harry Sosnik leads the orchestra and also plays piano solos.

- The south hall of the Coliseum will be an old world, home folks café this week as an annex to the Brewing exposition Under chestnut trees [artificial] you may sit at your table and sample thirty kinds of beer without being annoyed by an orchestra or floor show.

- Jane Moore and Billy Revel, comedy dancers at the Villa Venice, have a European background. Revel began his dancing career at the Théatre Champs Elysées, Paris, in 1921. He discovered Miss Moore in London in 1928. Since then they have danced their way around the world.

- Faith Bacon of Hollywood-at-the-Fair has replaced Sally Rand at the Paramount club. These fan dancers certainly get a lot of work.

- Ben Bernie is beginning the last week of his régime as the Old Maestro of the Casino, at the Fair. Charles Rogers and band will move from the College inn to replace the Bernie revelers. Phil Harris' orchestra will succeed Rogers at the inn beginning next Thursday night. This leader comes to Chicago from the Pennsylvania hotel, New York. He is a singing maestro, and he has a prima donna named Leah Ray to help him in his warblings. His bandsmen are wisecrackers in dialogue.

- A "devil dance" has been added to the cabaret program at Old Mexico, on the Midway, by Robert Robinson. He says he got the idea from Goethe's "Faust" and Dante's "Inferno"—and thus the floor show business goes literary with a grand gesture. Robinson's partner, in the rôle of Marguerite, bears the name of Lovely Loueen.

THE WEEK'S VAUDEVILLE BILLS

THE new vaudeville program at the Chicago theater contains: Duke Ellington and his orchestra; Ivy Anderson, blues singer; Earl Tucker, dancer; Jerry and Turk, Negro comedians; Bailey and Derby, dancers; Sally Rand, fan dancer, and Cherniavsky's orchestra.

The Palace theater offers the following vaudeville numbers:

Lou Holtz—A well known Broadway jester, last seen here in "You Said It," with assistants.

Mitzi Mayfair—Originally a Gus Edwards protégé. She scored a success in the last of the Ziegfeld "Follies" with her dancing.

Lillian Shade—A torch singer of the most recent "Vanities" revue.

Bryant, Rains, and Young—Acrobatic dancers.

Gordon's Comedy Canines—Well trained dogs.

The new vaudeville entertainment at the State-Lake theater beginning today will contain Joe Griffin, tenor; Joe and Pete Michon, dancing acrobats; Medley and Duprey in a sketch; Bert Nagle and company, including Miss Hilja; Faber and Grey in "Interruptions"; the Four Albee Sisters, singers and instrumentalists; Frank Rogers, ventriloquist, and Verne Buck's orchestra.

Fancy Operetta.

James Reynolds has made 283 costume sketches for Russell Janney's forthcoming operetta, still untitled. The work will have a background of the court of Charles II. George Houston has been engaged for a leading rôle.

Tour of South

AN extensive tour of the south, beginning with an engagement in Dallas during the Texas State fair, is planned by J. J. Shubert for three of his recent musical productions, "Bitter Sweet," "Florodora," and "Nina Rosa." These operettas, which formed part of the repertory of the St. Louis Municipal Opera season last summer, were selected by the committee of the Dallas fair, which is the second largest state fair in the country.

Following the Dallas engagement the company will play one night, two night, and week "stand" all through the south. In some cases only one show will be given, in some two, and in the week "stands" three. A repertory company, consisting of many of the players of the St. Louis Municipal Opera company, will appear in the three operettas. Among the principals will be Allan Jones, Leonard Ceeley, Margaret Carlisle, Berna Deane, Larry Rich, Harry K. Morton, Zella Russell, Marie Stahrner, Hope Emerson, and Frank Horn.

Mr. Jones will continue with the company until he goes east to begin rehearsals with Maria Jeritza for the new Strauss operetta "Jerry," formerly known as "A Night in Venice."

The tour will be one of the most elaborate undertaken in the southern territory this season. It may be the forerunner of similar enterprises under Shubert management.

Chicago Gets New Play by J. B. Priestley

New Season Begins at Illinois Theater with "Dangerous Corner."

"DANGEROUS CORNER," a drama by J. B. Priestley, author of "The Good Companions," "Angel Pavement" and other novels, will be staged in the Illinois theater tomorrow night for an engagement of four weeks. The play had a run of more than 200 performances in New York last season, and was a close second, statistically, to "Dinner at Eight."

The company will contain Jane Wheatley, a member of the original cast; Eden Gray, Jack Hartley, Agnes George, Virginia Stevens, Warren Ashe, and Gavin Muir. The story deals with the revelation of the sins of various guests at a party. Murder, theft and adultery are exposed before all of the secrets are told.

Virginia Stevens has acted in "Riddle Me This," "The Little Black Book," "Merry-Go-Round," and "Death Takes a Holiday."

Gavin Muir has appeared in "Springtime for Henry," "Enter Madame," "The Camel's Back," "Nancy's Private Affair," "Hay Fever," "The Silver Cord," and "Mr. Pim Passes By."

Jane Wheatley has the dual distinction of being both principal and stage director of "Dangerous Corner." In 1908 she appeared under the management of the late David Belasco, and under the joint auspices of Belasco and Cecil B. De Mille engaged in a tour of South America. She has been seen in "The Guardsman," "Ambush," "Arms and the Man," "The Camel Through the Needle's Eye," all under the management of the Theater Guild. Last season she was seen in "The Warrior's Husband."

"Uncle Tom" Tour.

Rowland Stebbins announces that Joanna Roos will continue in the rôle of Emmeline in the Players Club production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which goes on tour in October. Betty Lancaster will have the rôle of Eva, and the other players include Eric Kalkhurst, Lyster Chambers, Doan Borup, and Charles McCarthy.

Play for Helen Hayes.

Helen Hayes, the stage and screen star, will have the leading rôle in Maxwell Anderson's new drama, "Mary of Scotland," which the Theater Guild will produce this season. This will be the third play on the Guild's schedule.

BRIGHT AND SNAPPY

Mitzi Mayfair, a little lady who is fast and funny on her feet, is appearing on the vaudeville section of the program at the Palace theater this week. She was a discovery of Ziegfeld's last "Follies" revue.

Chicago Gets Opera Season of Ten Weeks

Old Auditorium to Be Scene of Revival, with Johnson in Charge.

By Edward Moore.

"ARE we going to organize a new opera company and again forget the importance of our language in musical art, as well as the importance of native opera?"

This question, signed with the initials E. E. F., was relayed to this desk the fore part of the week. It was answered, at least in part, when it was announced Friday afternoon that the Chicago opera had been revived; that it would give five performances a week for a period of ten weeks, beginning Nov. 20; that the Auditorium would be the scene of its activities, and that Herbert M. Johnson would be general director and Gennaro Papi, musical director.

The announcement followed many weeks of speculation as to whether Chicago would take its place in the operatic sun again this winter and, if so, whether the booking would be for the Auditorium or the Civic Opera house. The latter has what is probably the finest physical equipment to be found anywhere in the world today. On the other hand, the grand old Auditorium has its magnificent acoustics and a firm place in the public's affections. Now it has won the decision.

The question raised by E. E. F. as to native opera apparently remains to be settled.

Fortune Gallo Gives Amazing Opera at Amazingly Low Prices.

Meanwhile Fortune Gallo pursues a placid if busy way with the San Carlo Grand Opera company at the Auditorium, untouched by the pull and haul of diverse elements and devoting himself to the job of giving the best performance of opera possible. The amount of entertainment that he presents at dollar prices is little short of amazing. It would be good opera at almost any price.

True, due to economic conditions, the early part of the musical season, and a few other matters not always easy to duplicate, he has a company such as the world never saw and probably never will see again at such admission charges. But that is the best possible reason for enjoying it now.

He goes into the second week at the Auditorium with two performances of "Aida," other additions of "La Boheme," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Lohengrin" to the repertoire, and repetitions of "Carmen," "Mme. Butterfly," and "Faust." They and their detailed casts are listed in another column of this section of THE TRIBUNE.

Chilean Indian Is Picturesque Baritone.

One of the newcomers this week is Chief Caupolican, a picturesque figure who will sing the baritone parts in the "Aida," "Carmen," and "Lohengrin" performances. He is a Chilean Indian who would seem to move from grand opera to musical comedy and back again with equal ease.

He has been leading baritone with the Philadelphia Grand Opera since 1926. A few years ago he played Black Eagle with Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee" at the Illinois theater, and left the company for three nights so that he might fly back to Philadelphia and sing Boniface to Mary Garden's Jean in "The Juggler of Notre Dame." He has sung Telramund in "Lohengrin" to the Ortrud of Cyrena Van Gordon and Margaret Matzenauer. In Philadelphia he says that he has sung everything from Scarpia to Amonasro.

He also admits having appeared in what he says is possibly the worst opera ever produced by the Metropolitan. It was "The Polish Jew," a setting of Henry Irving's old play, "The Bells." It had a total history of three nights, almost the equivalent of some of the novelties brought out by the Chicago company.

News of Interest to Lovers of Music.

Both today and tomorrow will be celebrated as music days for Illinois composers at A Century of Progress at the Illinois Host building. The programs are under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Lester.

A program of Illinois in poetry and song will be given at 3 o'clock this afternoon by Stella Westen-Berger contralto, of Springfield, and Josephine Craven Chandler, poet. At 5 o'clock there will be a program of the compositions of Rossetter G. Cole. He will be assisted by Mildred Orne, soprano; Therese Linton, soprano; Paul Vernon, violinist, and Lillian Magnuson Waller, pianist.

Tomorrow's program will begin at 1 o'clock. Among those appearing will be the St. Cecelia club of Aurora; Sylvia Tell, dancer; Mendelssohn club of Rockford; Le Roy Hamp, tenor; a trio from Illinois Wesleyan, Bloomington; Floy Little Bartlett, composer-violinist; and Veronica Wallace, soprano. At 4:30 there will be a reception at which Anne Faulkner Oberndorfer will speak and Edward Collins will play a group of his own works. The guests of honor will be Frederick Stock, Eric De Lamarter, Claire Dux, Mrs. Archibald Freer, Mrs. Chandler Starr, Mrs. Oberndorfer, William Middelschulte, Clarence Eddy, Albert Cotsworth, J. Lewis Browne, Edgar Nelson, and George Lee Tenney.

Edoardo Sacerdote's Operatic Art theater will open a projected season of thirteen weeks at the Goodman theater next Saturday night, giving three performances weekly. The first opera will be Mozart's "Don Giovanni," cast thus: Donna Anna, Barbara Drangelis; Donna Elvira, Eunice Steen; Zerlina, Janet Fairbank; Don Giovanni, Raymund Koch; Don Ottavio, Frederick Mueller; Leporello, Hugh Dickerson; Masetto, Leonard Huber; commandant, Charles Dobson. The orchestral score will be played on two pianos. Popular prices will prevail.

Frederick Stock is expected to return from Europe today ready to take up rehearsals for the new season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, whose first pair of concerts will be played Oct. 5 and 6. A line in the music column last Sunday referred to one of the soloists, Poldi Mildner, as "he." Hortense Spiegell writes from Evanston to point out the error, which was one of printing occurring at some unknown spot between this typewriter and the presses.

Among the Chicago Symphony's other duties this season will be a series of six concerts played at the University of Chicago. It is planned to make them something of a survey of orchestra music, each program containing some old works played in historical sequence and followed by modern compositions.

Grace Denton has opened an office in the parlor of the Auditorium hotel for her series of Monday night concerts for the benefit of the Girl Scouts of Chicago. The attractions will be Lawrence Tibbett on Oct. 30; Serge Lifar and his Russian ballet, Nov. 27; Elisabeth Rethberg, Dec. 11; Yehudi Menuhin, Jan. 22; and Lily Pons, Feb. 5.

The Civic Orchestra of Chicago, founded thirteen years ago by Frederick Stock and functioning under the auspices of the Civic Music association and the Orchestral association, will renew its activities early this fall. Players of orchestral instruments, if they are high school graduates, are eligible. Application blanks may be had at the office of the Civic Music association, 637 Fine Arts building.

The Lake View Musical society will open its thirty-ninth season with a president's reception in the crystal room of the Blackstone hotel Monday, Nov. 13. Six concerts are scheduled at the Blackstone as well as an organ recital at St. Chrysostom's church.

Isa Kremer will sing ballads and soviet and international folk songs, and Irving R. Korenman will give a piano program under the auspices of Icor at Washington Boulevard temple this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The first concert of the Business Men's orchestra will be played in Orchestra hall on the evening of Oct. 1 for the Sunday Evening club. The Franck Symphony and some Mozart selections will be played. Clarence Evans continues as director.

The Chicago Daughters' chorus rehearses each Tuesday evening at the Medinah Athletic club under the direction of Carl Craven. Its goal is 1,000 members. It has given four concerts at A Century of Progress and is scheduled to give two more, the first at 8 o'clock tonight in the court of the Hall of Science at the World's Fair.

Jessie B. Hall will open her concert season Oct. 17 in Kimball hall with a début recital by Lucinda Munroe, soprano. Oct. 24 Eleanor Everest Freer's "The Masque of Pandora" will be presented in concert form by nine singers and members of the Little Symphony orchestra under the direction of Karl Schulte. Other events will be a sonata and song recital by Michael Wilkomirski, violinist; Doric Wittich, pianist, and George Dopp, baritone; a piano recital by Mark Gunzsberg; a song recital by Eva Gordon Horadesky, contralto.

Edward Collins will open the concert season of Bertha Ott with a piano recital at the Studebaker theater Nov. 3, to be followed by a violin recital by Fritz Kreisler at Orchestra hall Nov. 12, and a song recital by Vera De Villiers, South African contralto, at the Studebaker Nov. 19. Other events under Miss Ott's management will be presented by Sergei Rachmaninoff, Josef Hofmann, Myra Hess, Christian Bergeson Flagg, Nina Mariani, Eleanor Block, and others not yet named.

Lorna Doone Jackson, contralto, formerly with the Civic opera, will sing at the dinner concert of the Drake hotel this evening, with Violet Martens at the piano and Jane Carpenter at the organ.

HOLLYWOOD HAPPENINGS

By George Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Paramount is finding trouble in placing Jack Jenkins, 210 pound Beverly Hills High school boy athlete. Jenkins is one of the thirty featured "finds" of the quest for young men and women, known as "search for beauty." He had applied for admission to University of California and had high hopes of three seasons of varsity football, having been an all-state star every year at Beverly. But the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate conference forbids paying more than $10 a day to college athletes taking part in motion pictures, and likewise forbids the billing of their names, or their exploitation in a football or other athletic capacity. So Jenkins goes on the pay roll at $50 a week, and it is agreed he will not be exploited in the football sequences. Even at that, according to Prof. Hugh Willett of University of Southern California, one of the coast conference eligibility chiefs, Jenkins "is a borderline case." Gil Berry, ex-Illinois football captain, is in the same story, but Berry no longer has a college amateur standing to protect.

● Ewing Scott, director and producer of "Frozen North" and "Igloo," asked for and has been given the job of assistant director to Norman MacLeod for "Alice in Wonderland." Scott said, "I don't care particularly what they are going to pay me; I just like the idea of helping put that story into a film."

● Wallace MacDonald, former silent film star, had a big day this week. He sold a two reel comedy story to RKO and then got himself assigned to an important part in the musical comedy "Flying Down to Rio" at the same studio. He used to be leading man for Pola Negri and Norma Talmadge, but has done little lately.

● Marshall Duffield, Dorothy Lee's new husband and former football star at Southern California, has been given the delectable assignment of directing the gym exercises of the eight girls for Paramount's "Eight Girls in a Boat." He also teaches them swimming.

Duffield is on the pay roll as an assistant director.

● Frances Fuller used to visit President Franklin D. Roosevelt at Washington when he was assistant secretary of the navy. At that time she was living with her uncle, Senator James F. Byrnes of Tennessee.

● In all Jeanette MacDonald's scenes for "Cat and the Fiddle" that do not portray her full length she wears a pair of old comfortable blue heelless bedroom slippers with fluffy pompoms on the toes. Joan Crawford also has been playing her scenes for "Dancing Lady" in slippers; but in her case the reason is a sprained ankle which she turned in a dance sequence last Tuesday.

● Those who still affect monocles in Hollywood are George Arliss, Ivan Lebedeff, and Heather Angel.

● Maureen O'Sullivan wears only three small pieces of leather, fashioned into an abbreviated skirt and jacket, for her costume with Johnny Weissmuller in "Tarzan and His Mate." Except in one scene, then she wears a silver cloth evening gown in an African treetop.

● Miriam Hopkins was talking to a feminine movie scribe. "There is really no sex appeal, meaning a special quality," Miriam opined. "It's a feminine trick, or combination of tricks, which every girl knows and practices to some extent. Some girls just know the finer points, or practice them better than others. Flattery and making men feel comfortable compose most of it."

● Charlie Bickford is bound and determined he's going to Europe this autumn. In order to make sure he has applied for reservations on every vessel sailing from Oct. 1 on, figuring that he will dash for the dock as soon as his current rôle in Paramount's "White Woman" is finished.

The studio has arranged a vast set, representing a steamboat river landing in Malaya, in the back lot. Great fans agitate the artificial foliage and bend the trees, so carefully fashioned of two by fours, burlap, wire and plaster, and groups of men with big paddles gather busily just out of camera range and slap the back lot pond in which the forepart of the river steamer is moored. Resulting waves make the water ripple like a steady river current.

It's one jungle without sunburn or mosquitoes, being protected from the former by more than an acre of white gauze stretched over the top of the outdoor set three stories high.

● John Boles and his wife have been entertaining a hitherto unseen friend, Mrs. A. P. Magner of Rock Ridge, South Norwalk, Conn., who came 3,400 miles to shake hands with her favorite movie actor. Mrs. Magner, who has turned 60, wrote Boles a fan letter some years ago; it was such an interesting letter he answered it; a correspondence ensued, and Saturday John was around the Fox lot introducing her to Will Rogers and Zasu Pitts.

● In a moment between shots of Paramount's "Cradle Song" it seemed slightly incongruous to see and hear Gail Patrick, willowy brunette beauty from Birmingham, playing the "Rhapsody in Blue" on the chapel organ in the nunnery set. This is the picture in which Father Olson and Msgr. Peebles of Flintridge Girls' academy, who are acting as technical directors and censors-at-the-source, looked abashed when a dozen of the film girls, forgetting they were wearing sisters' habits, pulled cigaret boxes out of hidden pockets and began to puff. The puffing was stopped when Director Mitchell Leisun caught the two padres' startled look.

● There's an interesting transformation in the case of Chiak, Eskimo boy who was Ewing Scott's star in that shoestring producer-director's silent film hit of the far north, "Igloo." Chiak has bobbed back into film fame, but, like many leading women who change their film names and reappear as ingénues, he's got a new name and a new background for his emergence. This time he is "Mala" and he plays in "Eskimo," the Alaskan epic which M-G-M had W. S. Van Dyke's company nearly a year in the Arctic circle making. The film is heralded as something really worth waiting to see.

Lunts Go Abroad.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne have sailed for an extended vacation abroad. They will visit Denmark, Sweden, Finland, and Russia before joining Noel Coward in Egypt. Early in January Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne will appear in Robert E. Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna" in London under the sponsorship of Gilbert Miller in association with the Theater Guild.

HISTORIETTE

EDWARD G. ROBINSON was born in Bucharest, Rumania, Dec. 12, 1893. While Edward was young the family came to America and became naturalized citizens. He was educated in the New York public schools and holds a master of arts degree from Columbia university.

For a while he flirted with the idea of being a minister; then his fancy veered to law. At last, however, he decided he was cut out for an actor and amused himself with amateur theatricals, debates and soapbox oratory. The world war interrupted his plans. He served in the United States navy.

Mr. Robinson's first hit was in a vaudeville act written by himself—"The Bells of Conscience." His photoplay début was in "The Bright Shawl," with Richard Barthelmess. He has appeared in ten Theater Guild plays and is noted for his character portrayals.

Among his best known motion pictures are "Little Caesar," "Smart Money," "Five Star Final," "The Hatchet Man," "Two Seconds," "Tiger Shark," "Silver Dollar," and "The Little Giant."

Mr. Robinson is an accomplished linguist and is devoted to music though he plays no instrument himself. He loves to read, play cards and shoot craps and is a fruit fiend. Pet diversions are golfing, walking and window shopping.

He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 158 pounds, has brown eyes and black hair. He is happily married and is the father of a recently born son.

"Vanities" Tell of Crime and Pulchritude

But Earl Carroll Fails to Make a Good Show of Either or Both

Sure enough she's dead, or looks it!

But, as the saying most naturally is, the show must go on. Which it does. Another song number. Two or four dance numbers. Then comes Inspector James Rennie of the homicide squad. Yes, sir, Handsome Jim, the whodidthis and wherewereyou man.

It appears that whoever did the killing has stabbed the wrong girl. The murderer was really after Liane, the leading woman. From then on Liane is in jeopardy after every musical number and practically everybody in the cast is suspected. Especially Bela Lugosi, the actor who has spent the last two or three years playing "Dracula" in a bilious light. According to the light he is still far from well.

No one in the cast is of outstanding consequence. Olga Baclanova of Russia and Hollywood has a siren's rôle. A pretty girl, Pauline Moore, modestly plays the heroine. Rennie is the inspector, and three comparatively old timers, Frank Kingdon, Robert Cummings, and Jean Adair, help with the drama.

"Heat Lightning" Workmanlike Drama of Old Southwest.

Being beggars in the theater this season, we are none too choosy. Therefore, when they brought in a play of the good old southwest last week and it proved the most workmanlike and best staged of this timid season's offerings to date we were rather pleased.

I, at least, was pleased to discover that there were a few show producers left who had not forgotten their trade, whatever may have happened to their judgment. George Abbott, who helped write and did the staging for such remembered thrills as "Broadway" and "Coquette," is one of them. He and Leon Abrams wrote this one.

"Heat Lightning" is the title. It has to do with a lady whose name was Olga, and who tried to forget a bad man and couldn't.

Olga was working in an Oklahoma town when she met "Tuffy." George was his right name, but everybody called him "Tuffy." And Olga was keen for him—until she discovered that he was equally keen for a lot of other Olgas.

Play Has Lesson for Distressed Damsels.

She fled to Arizona to get away from it all. Educational, these flight dramas should be. Instructive, at least. A lesson for all girls who would fly from one part of the country to another to escape from an emotional ambush. They never make it. Instead of getting away from it all, it all invariably follows them and tries again to mess up their lives.

It was so with Olga. She and her sister Myra were running a gas station and tourist camp twenty-six miles from Baker in the desert, when along came George. He was making a break for the Mexican border, having just shot a bank teller or two in Salt Lake.

Provincetown Theater Has Large Plans.

A bit movieish in plot, but well acted by Jean Dixon, who has been fairly sexless heretofore as the wise-cracking comedienne of "Once in a Lifetime" and "June Moon." Her Olga is comfortably human. Robert Gleckler is the cook, and there is nothing Gleckler doesn't know about being shot in the drama. He is the chief of our stage outlaws and has been ever since "Broadway." Emily Lowry from California has a nice bit as Myra.

We were all invited down to the Provincetown playhouse last week to help inaugurate another theater season for the Provincetown Playhouse Guild association. This is an organization of some social importance which is planning nothing less tremendous than the building of a national theater which shall serve as a shrine for America's most dramatic art and her contribution to world culture.

McDougal street, in front of the Provincetown playhouse, we found to be packed with villagers and policemen. Inquiring the cause of this, we discovered that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was an expected guest, being a friend of the association's sponsors. But, not unlikely because she heard of the police protection, Lady Eleanor did not arrive.

LADY FOR A DAY

Glenda Farrell lends charm and zest to "Lady for a Day." It's on the screen at the Palace theater.

Charlotte Cries When She Gets Role of "Alice"

Seventeen Year Old, Last to Be Screened in Big Tryout, Lands Contract.

HOLLYWOOD.—Biblical prophecy came true when Charlotte Henry was selected from thousands of candidates to play the rôle of Alice in the film version of "Alice in Wonderland."

"The last shall be first," says the Bible, and Charlotte, the last of 57 girls to receive screen tests, became Alice.

And after it was all over, when she finally had signed the contract launching her on a career that may make her wealthy and famous, Charlotte broke down and had a good long cry.

"I was so worked up, thinking for days about getting the rôle, that I just had to cry," said Charlotte, quite composed for her first interview.

Although she is not quite 17 Charlotte has the composure and poise of many girls much older. "I really wasn't a bit frightened while taking the test. Somehow it seemed to me so improbable that I ever could be selected that, although I did my best, I thought of it more as just another test, not an opportunity."

600 Compete for Title Role.

Urged by friends to try out for the part, Miss Henry went to the studio, as 600 other girls, some of them from as far away as England, had done, and eventually she came to the attention of Norman McLeod, director of the picture.

After an interview, Miss Henry was asked to take a screen test at the same time four other girls were being tested. Unfortunately, it seemed at the time, she was given no lines to learn for the test scene. Just a few minutes before her turn came, Charlotte was handed two verses of the poem "You are old, Father William," from the Lewis Carroll story.

Charlotte said the eight confusing lines perfectly, so a second test was ordered, for which she learned the complete scene for the tea party sequence.

Has Had a Little "Extra" Experience.

Sixteen hours later, Miss Henry was made up and dressed as Alice and at work before the cameras.

She joined a cast composed of many screen notables, including Gary Cooper, Louise Fazenda, Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Alison Skipworth, Charles Ruggles and Bing Crosby.

Born in Brooklyn, Charlotte came to Hollywood two years ago with her mother. She has had some slight screen experience as an extra and she has attended a dramatic school.

Charlotte's screen career has been brief, largely because of her immature appearance. Her mother never could convince casting directors that Charlotte was capable of playing anything but youngsters.

Six Premieres for Broadway

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—The new theatrical season will make up for lost time along Broadway next week. Six openings are announced and two of them are important musical shows—"Hold Your Horses" and "As Thousands Cheer"—which sound as if they ought to be hits from the rise of the curtain. Here are the announcements:

"Hold Your Horses." Opens Monday night at the Winter Garden. This is the new musical show fresh from Boston that has Joe Cook as its star. Russel Crouse and Corey Ford are the authors and Russell Bennett, Owen Murphy, and Robert A. Simon are the musicians and lyricists. Those of the cast, besides Mr. Cook, are Rex Weber, Harriet Hoctor, Inez Courtney, Ona Munson, Tom Patricola, Edward J. McNamara, Stanley Smith, and Frances Upton.

"Men in White." Opens Tuesday night at the Broadhurst theater. The group theater hereby steps forward to greet the autumn with a play by Sidney S. Kingsley. The locale is a hospital. Alexander Kirkland, Luther Adler, Margaret Barker, J. Edward Bromberg, Morris Carnovsky, and Phoebe Brand are included in the list of players.

"Kultur." Opens Tuesday night at the Mansfield theater. This is a drama based on the activities of Hitler in Germany. It is one of last week's premiers that suffered postponement. Theodore Weachter is the author and Adolf Philipp the adapter. Charles D. Coburn, Hans Hansen, Madeline Grey, and Arlien Marshall are in the cast.

"Amourette." Opens Wednesday night at Henry Miller's theater. Messrs. Bulgakov and Spiller, who offered New York "One Sunday Afternoon," will stage this play, which is the most recent work of Clare Kummer. Francesca Bruning, late of "One Sunday Afternoon," is in the cast, as are Arthur Aylesworth, William Lynn, Tom Morrison, Byron McGrath, Mildred Natwick, and Frances Halliday.

"Sailor, Beware!" Opens Thursday night at the Lyceum theater. A comedy by Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson. The participants include Audrey Christie, Ross Hertz, Edward Craven, Murray Alper, and Paul Huber. Direction by Mr. Nicholson.

"As Thousands Cheer." Opens next Saturday night at the Music Box theater. Moss Hart and Irving Berlin are author and composer, respectively, and the theme is a satire on modern life, customs, and current events. In "As Thousands Cheer" Marilyn Miller is returning to the musical comedy stage, with such associates as Clifton Webb, Helen Broderick, Ethel Waters, Leslie Adams, Hal Forde, and Hamtree Harrington.

SINGING DIVERSIFIED ROLES

Appearing for the first time this week in the engagement of the San Carlo Opera, Bianca Saroya will sing such diverse roles as Aida; Mimi in "La Boheme," and Elsa in "Lohengrin."

CLARA CAN'T QUITE GET DOWN TO 120 POUNDS

- Clara Bow's campaign to get down to weight for her screen reappearance in Fox's "Hoopla" never brought the ex-IT girl quite down to 120, no matter how hard she tried on those five last weeks of exercising and dieting. But she really looks swell. The only thing the makeup men are doing to help thin her is being done with a little dab of something under the chin which I will call anti-double chin cream. It isn't that she really has a double. The camera often cheats a girl by giving her one if there is a mere wrinkle in that vicinity.

- Orry-Kelly, the fashion designer at Warners, says old fashioned colors are the rage for the coming season, together with the return of fashions and figures to the styles of bygone days. The shades he means by "old fashioned," however, masquerade under more modern names such as cinnamon and chocolate brown, mahogany, caviar, elephant, rust, burnt rose, iron, eel gray, prune, snuff, greens from reseda to myrtle, black, and wine. Skirts are to be tight, almost hobble; jackets tight and fitted, and the motto will be "tubes, tunics, and peplums."

- Lyle Talbot has for a valet a young Scotchman who once acted in the same capacity for the prince of Wales. The valet came to Hollywood and worked for another actor before Talbot found him. He complained that, while he didn't mind helping make a lot of that other actor's guests happy, he disliked carrying them home bodily. But he gets along all right with Lyle, who doesn't give Hollywood parties.

Movie Grudges Don't Last Long in Film Colony

HOLLYWOOD.—Look around almost any corner in these parts and you'll discover ex-enemies working happily together for a common cause. The Hollywoods are full of people who once wouldn't even speak to each other. They have spoken often about each other.

The most notable case is that involving Greta Garbo and John Gilbert, sweethearts again for the benefit of the cinema "Queen Christiana." It may have been only talk that Greta and John ceased speaking to and seeing each other after co-starring in several pictures, but nevertheless soon after their personal and professional associations ended John and Ina Claire were married.

It was quite a blow to Hollywood, which blissfully expected the "screen's greatest lovers" to make their reel life real.

Jolson Makes Peace with Warner Studio.

Al Jolson and the Warner studio are very friendly now, since Al is back in the fold. When his contract with that studio ended some time ago, Jolson told me he was pretty sore at "those guys who made me do the same story over and over again." When they renewed business relations, eyebrows were raised in wonderment.

A feud of major interest was threatened when Jean Harlow was quoted [inaccuratey, it is said] as saying that she expected to take Joan Crawford's place on the screen. Two ladies working almost side by side in the same studio couldn't be at swords' points, so some brave soul got Jean and Jean together for a friendly little chat. All's well now.

Two Film Stars Still Don't Speak.

Hollywood's most notable ex-enemies are Richard Barthelmess and William Powell. When they first met [they both admit now] they got in each others' hair, almost leered and for a long time refused to speak. They just didn't like each other. Powell played the heavy in "The Bright Shawl," one of Dick's silent pictures. But before the picture was completed they became fast friends and have so remained since.

Two "first ladies" who still don't speak, although they doubtless meet frequently since they make pictures on the same lot, are Ruth Chatterton and Barbara Stanwyck. Their grudge dates back to Barbara's first day in Hollywood. She was making a test for "The Dance of Life" and musicians had been brought to the test stage.

Also present was Miss Chatterton, then queen of Paramount. Ruth is said to have made a remark about its being odd one had to have music to inspire one to emote.

Barbara overheard the remark. And that was the last time the Misses Chatterton and Stanwyck exchanged words.

BitsaBOUTem.

WELL, the LONG SEARCH for twins for WILL ROGERS has been successfully concluded. Meaning twins to act as his daughters in "There's Always Tomorrow." Fox has signed Glorea Jean and Cleora Joan Robb, aged 11, to play "Minnie" and "Winnie." The children have had no previous film experience. . . . Remember attractive KAY JOHNSON? She's been signed by Paramount for an important rôle in "Eight Girls in a Boat."

From Variety:

Chicago is tearing up the mortgage to the old farm. And the World's Fair is the hero who arrived at the last minute with the needed cash to shoo the sheriff to the showers.

In three short months Chicago's 3,000,000 people have climbed out of the red and have kicked the wolf in the kisser. Show business particularly has helped itself to a share of the World's Fair money pie, with the cashiers once more learning what SRO means.

In 90 days the theaters have chased the receivers, cleaned up bankruptcies, and showmen who were out in the cold last year are back doing business at the old stand.

Balconies which have been shuttered for three years are being dusted off to take care of people who are only too glad to snatch a pew against the ceiling.

Not one picture theater in Chicago is closed today, which is something, since usually each summer sees from 40 to 70 houses shuttered for the hot spell. Houses which haven't been touched with paint or brush in years are getting renovating. Seating companies report a 750 per cent jump in seating demands. Houses which had been using wooden pews since 1907 suddenly get kind hearted and install cushioned seats for their customers.

Hooray!!

Play for Chicago

THE new theatrical firm of Wee & Leventhal appear in the rôle of savior of "the road" this season. Their first attraction to tour is J. B. Priestley's play, "Dangerous Corner," which comes to the Illinois theater tomorrow night after a run of almost a year on Broadway. These managers have purchased the production of "The Late Christopher Bean," and Pauline Lord, star of the New York run, will appear in it.

Adds Vaudeville

The Piccadilly theater, 51st street and Blackstone avenue, is adding vaudeville entertainment to its program for the Saturday and Sunday performances. The opening bill contains Jackie Heller, the singer associated with Ben Bernie's revues and broadcasts; the Libonati Trio, the Robins family of acrobats, the Nelson family, the seven Piccolos, and Kane and Hazelton.

Venice Has Recaptured Her Charms, Cousin Eve Finds

Once More the Adriatic's Queen Restores Her Ruins and Tidies Her Canals.

By COUSIN EVE.

CADENABBIA, Lake Como.—[Special.]—Venice has consulted a famous beauty specialist and staged a great comeback this year, for never was the queen of the Adriatic more alive and sparkling and fresh withal. Three years ago her case seemed hopeless. Dying on her feet, her people apathetic, wan; shops and hotels empty, historic buildings tumbling down, her Lido neglected by fashion.

This year three, four, and five great cruising ocean liners a day debark their passengers at Venice. The little streets are filled with cheerful people, the lagoon is full of boats from Brioni, Istria; from Dalmatia and Istanbul. The palaces of the Grand canal have painted brightly their gondola posts; the canals are clean once more and so are the streets and piazzettas. The royal palace and buildings forming the Piazza San Marco have beautifully restored marble chevaux de frise and marble statues along the sky line, and St. Mark's cathedral has its Byzantine golden mosaics restored inside and out, so that the effect is fabulous.

Also the pigeon population has diminished perceptibly.

Young Bloods Have Beards After Balbo.

Another change, Lavena's tea establishment, which fills up the west side of St. Mark's square opposite Florian's, is the smart place now. Florian's, the old classic, became toplofty and the young gay world ran across to Lavena. He had better music, anyway. At night every table is taken at both places. Usually there is a band playing au centre, and all Venetians go there for their coffee, so one soon meets who's who and falls into the merry-go-round. The leader of the smart set in Venice is Count Labia, the best dressed man in town. Very stunning looking and well turned out with his dinner coat, he wears a black velvet boutonnière and his world is all agog at the innovation. I didn't see much in it myself, not being a Venetian.

The young men have taken to wearing black beards, whether for beauty, or Balbo, or merely economy's sake, I don't know. But the girls are charming. Two Lido belles are the Arrivabene girls, first cousins of Miriam Potenziani, and married to two Counts Visconti, brothers. These Countesses Visconti are pretty brunettes and wonderful dancers, having appeared in spectacles at Lido charity events all summer.

Chain Store Heiress Gives Spectacular Dinner.

The most spectacular entertainment of the season was a dinner given by the newly married chain store heiress, Barbara Hutton Mdivani, and her Georgian husband. A table for a hundred guests was set out on the Excelsior pier which runs into the sea. Across the end and down the middle, draped in golden tissue, covered with Venetian glass and banked with flowers, golden lamps beamed the festivity, singers and musicians gave forth their music from boats floating below, and yellow spotlights played over the whole scene. The newly made princess wore a costume of shining gold tissue, with a small cape and headdress entirely of diamanté, and her dinner partner, with whom she left the Excelsior, descended the long steps, crossed the gardens, and came out upon the pier was Prince Aimone of Savoy, duke of Aosta and Spoleto, nephew of the king. A young man dining at the party said he was sorry he hadn't worn smoked glasses.

Another belle of Venice was the perennially interesting Jane, Princess San Faustino, an American, related by marriage to the entire Roman hierarchy. Very tall and straight, with white hair in a great puff, and piercing blue eyes, she looks like Mary Queen of Scots, and is queen of the Lido. Also a charitable woman, she is greatly addicted to founding hospitals and helping the poor.

The cabines at the Lido were fairly well taken, but more for sun bathing than the water bath. In spite of the charming scene, red blouses of the sailors, cherry colored flags on the pier, yellow and russet sails on the dark blue horizon, a few mornings of life in a Lido cabine are an eternity.

Bare Armed American Ejected from Church.

Young Count Paulo Labia, one of the most handsome and splendidly made young men on the Lido, confided to me his undying admiration of a Chicago girl, met last year at Villa d'Este. Budding romance! Otherwise, with an eye for the gorgeously smart silk pajamas of older women, at the tea hour, worn with diamonds, their little knitted berets and their sandaled feet, my thoughts were most happy in Venice.

One morning I actually heard music at San Marco, Theophile Gautier's Golden Cavern, " incrusted with precious stones, at once splendid and somber, sparkling and mysterious." Music quavering and rather cracked, to be sure, but with the froglike chant of the choir, quite entrancing, as it eddied up into the bright golden domes with their many colored Byzantine figures from the semi-dusk below. A cross grained old beadle with cocked hat, cape, and staff was staggering around the inlaid floor looking for trouble. He found it in the shape of a girl tourist, her arms bare to the elbow. Out of the church she went, having neither gloves nor coat to cover the offending flesh.

One Pays Admission to See Titian's Grave.

One pays admission to the great Frari church—quite worth it. Here facing one another lie Titian and Canova in great marble tombs. Near by is a figure of the Madonna dressed in magnificent seventeenth century brocade, striped. Over this a wrap of white satin laced in gold, a coronet, and beautiful necklace of oriental pearls. The child is entirely clad in white satin and gold, the whole shrine ablaze with candles.

Often I walk in Venice to see a thing of beauty of other days. Along dark narrow streets, calles, sottoporticos, I find some of the best shops, old jewels, magnificent fruits, the strange little Café Martini near the Fenice theater, where wild ones come to finish the night when turned out of Chez Vous at the Lido. Jazz, mosquitoes, etc.

Finally I reach a tiny park, fragments of ancient columns

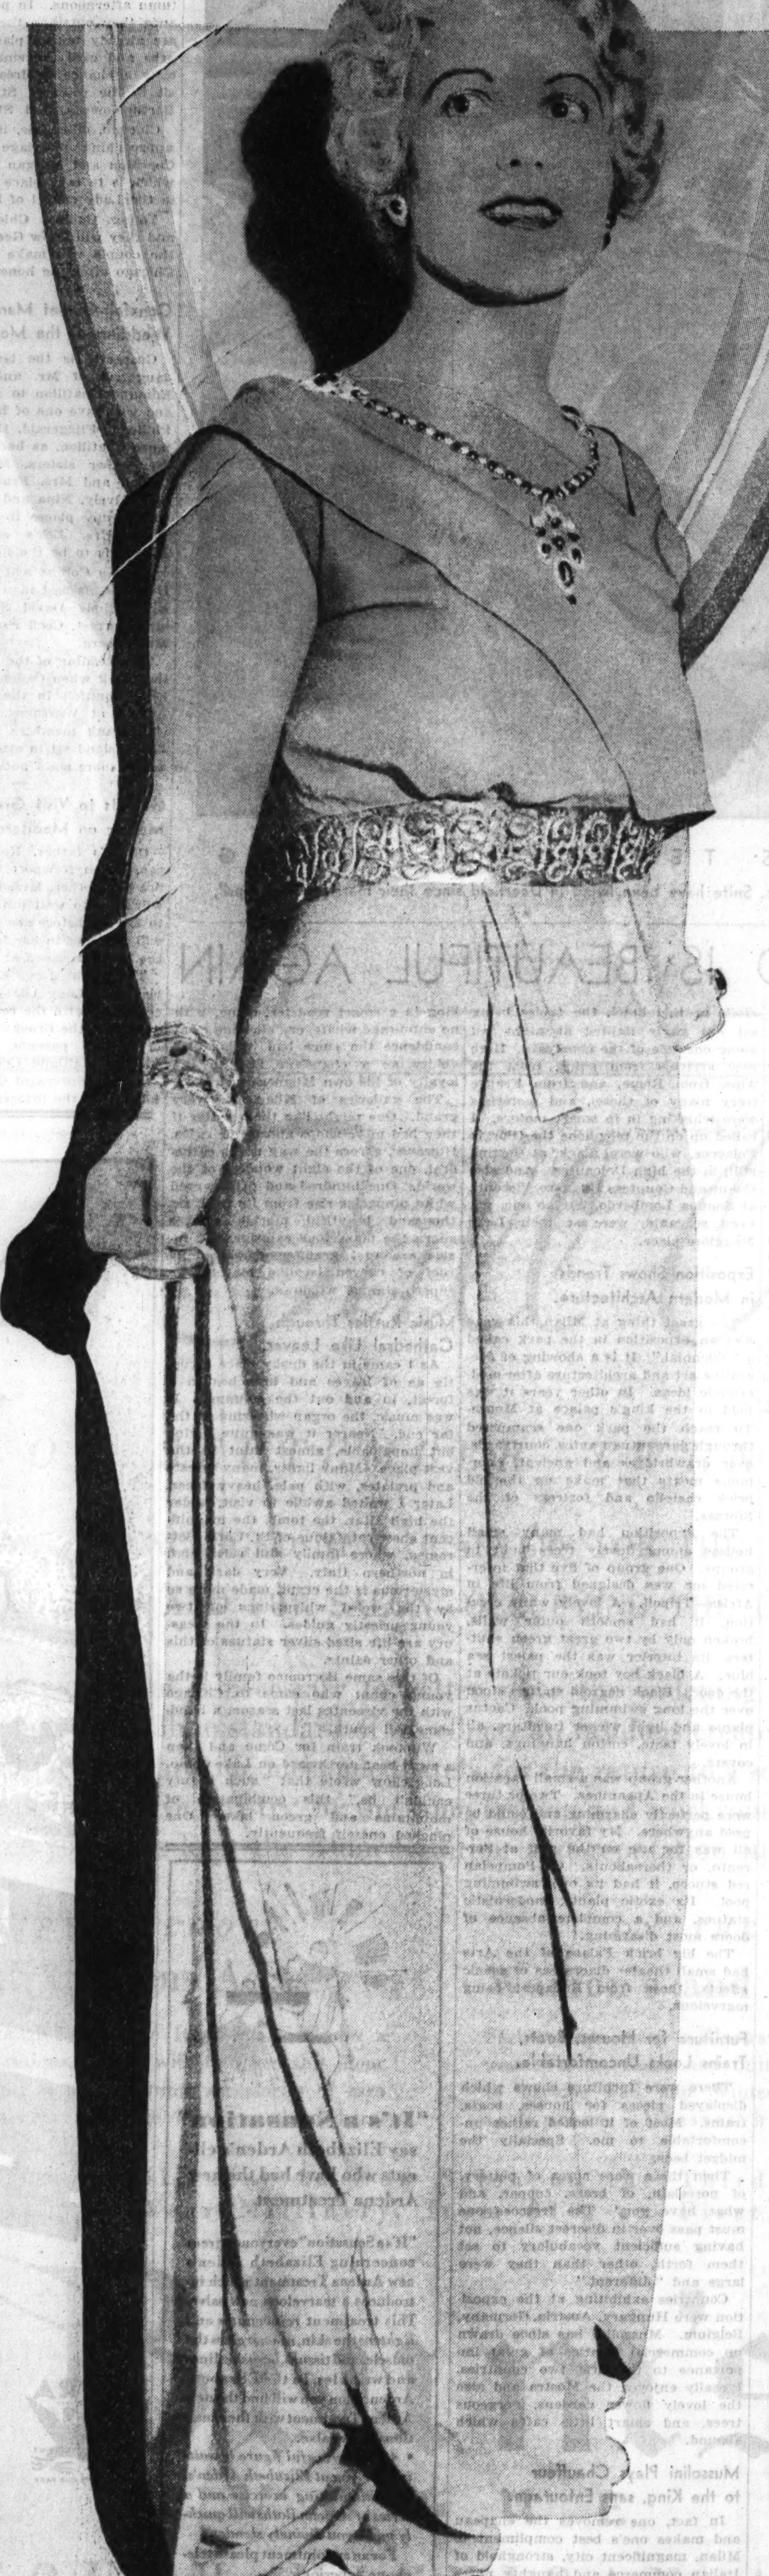
GLAMOUR



Lovely Lucy Blair Linn of the silvery hair and warm brown eyes is widely acclaimed as one of America's truly glamorous women. Mrs. Linn has every attribute the title denotes—elegance, intelligence, natural beauty and a flair for the unusual. She is an expert horsewoman, a social leader, a distinguished hostess, and a noted authority on the arts and decorations.

Antoinette Donnelly Presents Mrs. Linn in Review of Glamorous

Tells of Her Abundance of Vivacity, Personality, Intelligence and Elegance

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

RECENTLY we began a search for Chicago's Most Glamorous Women—women of exceptional looks, brains, accomplishment, charm, and beauty. In our innocent way we thought a jury of men should make the selection. We found that they should, and could, but wouldn't. The gentlemen approached had ideas about what makes the glamorous woman glamorous and many would name names—but it must all be off the record. They were loath—or perhaps afraid—to be quoted.

The unofficial masculine assistance, however, and the surprisingly willing feminine assistance contributed largely to the result of our search.

Today the Sunday Tribune inaugurates this series of presentations of Chicago's Most Glamorous Women with Mrs. Howard Linn as the first. Mrs. Linn is not only recognized as one of the city's women to whom this title is beautifully suited; she is nationally known as one of the smartest society women in the country.

Bestowed Glamorous Gifts.

A partial definition of glamour would include intelligence, personality, vitality, background, elegance and what, for want of a better word, must be called " style sense." The exquisitely lovely Lucy Blair Linn has all these qualities—and more. The fairy godmothers who must have presided at her birth bestowed glamorous gifts with a lavish hand.

Mrs. Linn of the strikingly lovely hair and warm brown eyes is beautiful, yes—but even her beauty is a fresh variety. Her hair, which frames a fresh, young olive toned complexion, is not pure white, as sometimes reported. Like everything else about this unusually clever woman, her hair is unusual—of a " pewter " shade really, with silver lighting. It is naturally wavy, and Mrs. Linn dresses it in a femininely soft arrangement about the face. Small curls rise tier on tier in the back from the smart new high line on the neck.

Mrs. Linn has everything that goes to create a glamorous rôle. Great natural beauty, a dynamic personality, a lovely low-pitched voice, and large, warm, sympathetic brown eyes. Her flair for distinguished dress is noted in every costume and commented upon by every society scribe. Glamorous clothes and terrifically chic, no matter what the occasion!

A Widely Recognized Talent.

Mrs. Linn is a leader in Chicago society. Her parties are gay, clever, unusual affairs, with that surprise element which distinguishes her as a hostess. At a recent party strolling musicians, playing Hungarian, Russian, and Spanish melodies, entertained her guests. Illumination over lawn, terraces, and house was by candle light only. Stepladders banked in green, concealing on each step a unique lantern, decorated the outdoor dance platform corners.

Her taste in arts and decoration is a widely recognized talent. Her home in Lake Bluff is eighteenth century Provençal. The walls of the living room are absinthe green. Dining room walls are done in natural colored linen with exotic flowers of Pompeian red. One wall of a bedroom is hung from ceiling to floor with French chintz, soft pink. The bathroom is cunningly curtained with chiffon, shading from pale pink to raspberry.

Sports Activities Aid in Keeping Fit.

An expert horsewoman, she rides almost daily—rides side saddle, and, as a noted horseman tells me, with "a rare light hand on a horse." In skirted habit, white stock and silk hat, she's a striking figure for a canvas, and, in fact, is being so painted at the moment by Frank Hoffman, well known artist. Her riding, tennis, and golf subscribe to the slim, girlish figure that is hers, also to the warm tan glow of a natural olive skin.

A nourishing cream, a suntan oil, and an astringent constitute, in the main, Mrs. Linn's cosmetic resources. Her lovely hair is shampooed weekly, after a special scalp treatment. A weak bluing rinse follows. She uses lipstick frankly, repeating its brilliant shade in nail lacquer. A little brown eyeshadow for evening wear is used, but no rouge or mascara.

Next week: Another of Chicago's Most Glamorous Women.

Viennese Seek Escape from Politics in Lilting Opera About Old Regime

By MAY BIRKHEAD.

VIENNA.—(Special.)—A visit to Vienna at this time, when all thoughts are turned to Austria, shows how elusive a subject the politics of that country can be, even in the present stress.

As every one knows, the former capital of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy has now a smaller population by about half a million than it had just before the war. Today the inhabitants number 1,800,000. Not much animation could be expected here at this time, and in fact Vienna is, at least outwardly, very tranquil.

But the comparative quietude is really somewhat deceptive. Although the hotels seem half deserted and few tourists or any sort of promenaders are to be seen on the Ringstrasse and other main thoroughfares, considerable animation may be remarked in that most characteristic of Vienna institutions, the café. There you will not find many of the Viennese celebrities, but a representative run of those engaged in business and the professions is to be seen.

The reverence and affection felt for the late Emperor Franz Joseph and the widespread devotion in Austria to the old régime are shown in the enthusiasm with which the public greets the operetta " Sissy." It is of the typical Viennese lilting sort, and has been holding the boards for several months.

Weddings Hold Center of Stage in N. Y. Society

Morgan A. Collins Jr., to Marry Georgette Chattillon Wednesday.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Marriages and still more marriages provide the interest for these amazingly temperamental autumn afternoons. In point of importance they outshine the debuts which are already taking place in the suburbs and give the smart folk of society a chance to dress lavishly and sit in the pews of St. Thomas', St. Bartholomew's, and St. Patrick's.

Chicago, of course, is aware of the approaching marriage of Georgette Chatillon and Morgan A. Collins Jr., which is to take place on Wednesday in the Lady chapel of St. Pat's.

Young Collins, Chicagoans know, and they will know Georgette, too, for the couple will make their home in Chicago after the honeymoon.

Connfelt-Goelet Marriage Is Wedding of the Month.

Georgette is the last of the four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Edmund Chatillon to go to the altar and will have one of her sisters, Mrs. Philip J. Fitzgerald, the former Hortense Chatillon, as her sole attendant. Her other sisters, Mrs. Harold F. Gibson and Mrs. Francis Lea, born, respectively, Nina and Noel Chatillon, will occupy places in the front pew, while Mrs. Lea's small daughter, Nancy, is to be the flower girl.

Morgan Collins will have Spaulding Howe as his best man and the ushers will include David Strother, Maulsbrey Forrest, Cecil Fraser, and H. E. Mulkenberg.

The wedding of the month occurred this week when Ogden Goelet married Enid Connfelt in the Church of the Advent at Westbury, L. I., with all the swank members of the sporting Long Island set in attendance, as well as the more staid notables from town.

Goelets to Visit Groom's Mother on Mediterranean.

Ogden's father, Robert W. Goelet, came from Newport for the wedding, but his mother, Mrs. Henry Clews Jr., will have to wait until the couple get to Europe before she sees them. They will visit her in her feudal château on the Mediterranean at La Napoule.

The Right Rev. Ernest M. Stires, bishop of Long Island, performed the ceremony with the reception following at Farley, the Brookville country home of Enid's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maitland Connfelt.

Marion Stuvesant Gray was maid of honor and the bridesmaids, both notable at Newport, were Amy Aspegren, daughter of Mrs. John Aspegren, and Mary Livingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Moncrieffe Livingston.

For his best man, "Oggie" had Henry Lewis III., with the ushers including Peter Goelet, Craig Biddle Jr., Howard C. Dickinson Jr., and Frederick Labouisse.

Speaking of the Biddies reminds me that town will be the brighter in November, when the Anthony J. Drexel Biddles Jr., return from a round of foreign travel.

SNAPPED AT ONWENTSIA

Attractive Miss Eleanor Kirkland, daughter of the Weymouth Kirklands, was being beaued, by Francis Prest when this picture was taken at the Onwentsia club. Miss Kirkland, who spent the summer in Lake Forest, has left to enter her freshman year at Vassar.

VENICE STAGES COMEBACK AND IS BEAUTIFUL AGAIN

wonderfully carved. And sweeping up one side of an old building a white marble circular stairway seven stories high, a miracle of grace and loveliness. Clinging to it, on each landing, a little portico of exquisite proportions, a very jewel of architecture. Scala Manielli they call it.

Venice Police Guide Traffic, Oar in Hand.

They had a water festa the night before I left Venice. Every gondola in town was out dressed with lanterns. There were floats and prizes for the prettiest. The rendezvous was the Rialto bridge. I knew some silly people who paid $50 for their gondola and joined the throng.

For hours the Grand canal was alive with lighted boats with tinkling guitars, with Italian voices. One could see the Venetian police in white linen outfits regulating traffic. Two to a gondola. Some job to be a Venetian traffic policeman with white gloves in one hand, an oar in the other! All steam and motor boats were off the Grand canal, and the churches and palazzi were outlined or illuminated in a way quite fascinating. Huge spotlights threw half of the rococo Saluto church into gorgeous light and shade. One small house was garlanded with purple wisteria, others had their terraces done in colored lights.

Venetian Hospitality Curbed by Depression.

Some of the gondolas of the nobility were charming, two gondoliers in white livery, white curtains, green wreaths, pretty ladies, mysteriously aloof. One boat, all red with lanterns. Lovely. At midnight a great surge of music and we rushed to our Grand canal balcony to see an immense float, a mass of jeweled lights, red and yellow. From this barge floated orchestral music and a chorus of beautiful voices. Slowly it came drifting down toward the lagoon, accompanied by a mass of gondolas, all gayly lanterned and bobbing in the black waters. Straight across the water drifted the great volume of song, strangely softened by lapping waves. On floated the solid fleet of a thousand gondolas until in twenty minutes all were gone and Venice had sunk into her nocturnal silence.

When I arrived in Venice I called up a nice chap I know who was commander of the port of Venice. But he was gone and the duke of Genoa had the job.

There is a certain limited amount of small hospitality among Venetians, teas, cocktail parties or whatever, for they are feeling the pinch of the times, even as we and other peoples. I saw several interesting Venetian interiors, in which persons of consequence were met. But all most informal, nothing extraordinary.

Mosquitoes Are Barred from Polite Conversation.

One never mentions mosquitoes to a Venetian any more than earthquakes to a Californian. There isn't any such animal, and then, anyway, it simply isn't done. I heard a man say "mosquitoes" to my hotel concierge and saw his look of horror as he said, "What, mosquitoes?" as one might say "What! Scorpions in this perfect hotel?"

And so I kissed Queen Venice good-by and saw for the first time her new motor road five miles long. Uphill, we were soon barging through the hot, highbrow city of Padua, seat of learning. Its university is the alma mater of Tasso, Dante, Giotto, and the city itself is as old as Troy.

Then Verona, much spread out, dusty, saffron, medieval town. I saw not only two gentlemen here but many, as they are giving summer opera in the great Coliseum dating from Roman times—good opera.

Then the rich plains of Lombardy. Blooming gardens, mulberry groves, where are nurtured silk worms for the immense silk industry of Milan. A distinguished diplomat once diagrammed for me Milan's fertile plains, her dominating situation, her vast industiral wealth, always the goal of conquerors. It has been sacked successively by Atilla, Alaric, Charlemagne, Barbarossa, Francis I., Charles V., and Napoleon. It was governed for 200 years by the Viscontis and Sforzas.

Milan Erects Station to Match Its Cathedral.

The new white marble station is worthy of the magnificent white marble Milan cathedral, the loveliest in Europe, and second only to Seville's in size. A wonderful station. I found a new hotel, too, since I had been there, the Principe e Savoia, up on high ground and surrounded by parks and gardens. A perfectly charming place like a club with all the servants smiling and bland, and much style. The first person I saw was Harold Vanderbilt, recently off the Rex with his bride, and racing around with his hat drawn over his eyes as if he had committed some great crime.

We dined exquisitely à la belle étoile at this hotel, the tables being set out gayly lighted at night all along one side of the courtyard. Here new arrivals from ships, from the Alps, from Rome, and from France (very many of these), and motorists were whisking in in smart motors. I called up on the telephone the Giorgia Polaccos, who were, alack, at Cortina still, in the high Dolomites. And also Count and Countess Ruggero Visconti, at Somma Lombardo, but no one, not even servants, were at their Lake Maggiore place.

Exposition Shows Trends in Modern Architecture.

The great thing at Milan this year was an exposition in the park called a "triennial." It is a showing of decorative art and architecture after modernistic ideas. In other years it was held in the king's palace at Monza. To reach the park one scampered through gargantuan gates, courtyards, over drawbridges and ancient, enormous moats that make up the old brick castello and fortress of the Sforzas.

The exposition had many small houses among lovely trees built in groups. One group of five that interested me was designed from life in Africa—Tripoli. A lovely white creation, it had smooth outer walls, broken only by two great green shutters; its interior was the palest sea blue. A black boy took our tickets at the door. Black negroid statues stood over the long swimming pool. Cactus plants and light wicker furniture, all in lovely taste, cotton hangings, and covers.

Another group was a small vacation house in the Apennines. Two or three were perfectly charming and could be used anywhere. My favorite house of all was for use on the gulf at Sorrento, or thereabouts. Of Pompeian red stucco, it had its own swimming pool. Its exotic plants, modernistic statues, and a complete absence of doors most disarming.

The big brick Palace of the Arts had small theater diaoramas of scenic effects, those from Budapest being marvelous.

Furniture for Houses, Boats, Trains Looks Uncomfortable.

There were furniture shows which displayed pieces for houses, boats, trains. Most of it looked rather uncomfortable to me. Specially the midget beds.

Then there were acres of pottery, of porcelain, of brass, copper, and what have you? The frescoes one must pass over in discreet silence, not having sufficient vocabulary to set them forth, other than they were large and "different."

Countries exhibiting at the exposition were Hungary, Austria, Germany, Belgium. Mussolini has since drawn up commercial treaties of great importance to the first two countries. I really enjoyed the Mostra and also the lovely flower gardens, gorgeous trees, and smart little cafés which abound.

Mussolini Plays Chauffeur to the King, sans Entourage.

In fact, one removes the chapeau and makes one's best compliment to Milan, magnificent city, stronghold of Italian commerce and haughty north Italian aristocracy. Mussolini was there as we arrived, staying with the king in a royal summer lodge not far away in the hills. To the great joy of the people, Mussolini drove the king in a smart roadster, alone, with no entourage whatever—showing what confidence the Duce had in his own ability as a chauffeur and in the loyalty of his own Milanese people.

The galleries of Milan are very grand. One might like them better if they had more shops and fewer cafés. However, across the way is the cathedral, one of the eight wonders of the world. One hundred and fifty carved white pinnacles rise from its roof; six thousand beautiful marble statues adorn the marvelous exterior, and inside are vast granite monoliths, its roof of carved lacelike marble, its superb stained windows.

Music Rustles Through Cathedral Like Leaves.

As I came in the dusky place a rustle as of leaves and branches in a forest, in and out the columns. It was music, the organ wheezing at the far end. Nearer it was quite divine but impalpable, almost faint in the vast place. Many lights, many priests and prelates, with pale, heavy faces. Later I waited awhile to visit, under the high altar, the tomb, the magnificent show catafalque of St. Carlo Borromeo, whose family still rides high in northern Italy. Very dark and mysterious is the crypt, made more so by the weird whisperings of two young priestly guides. In the treasury are life sized silver statues of this and other saints.

Of this same Borromeo family is the young count who came to Chicago with the viscontes last season, a handsome tall youth.

We took train for Como and then a swift boat northward on Lake Como. Longfellow wrote that "such beauty couldn't be," this combination of mountains and green lake. One pinched oneself frequently.

Will First Lady Stick to Informal Parties? All Washington Wonders

Land of Calling Card and Precedence Speculates on Possibilities of Season.

By Genevieve Forbes Herrick.

EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON AND WORK, Sept. 23.—(Special.)—They tell me that the perfectly balanced person never works so hard he forgets how to play; never plays so long he doesn't enjoy going back to work. A pretty theory. But how do you feel the last day of your vacation? Me, too.

● I've been away for five weeks and never used a calling card, except once when I had no writing paper handy and scribbled a grocery order on the back of the parchment oblong. But back in Washington, the land of the calling card, I can't last half an afternoon without parting with half a dozen of the pasteboards.

● I've been away five weeks and never once thought of precedence. A long time ago I learned that you let an older woman go first and that in turn some nasty little flappers would humiliate you by insisting that you precede them. It was all very simple and safe. But back in Washington, the land of precedence, I'll have to get out my congressional directory, my United States history, and my social secretary's guide book every time I step into an elevator in order that I may see just who ranks whom. That's the reason, you know, that an elevator in a Washington hotel runs so much more slowly than one in a Chicago hotel. The patrons have to figure out the rules at every floor.

I've been away five weeks and the only time I heard the word "season" mentioned it was used in connection with the "fishing season" or the "hunting season." But back in Washington, the land of the "social season," I'll hear plenty of speculation as to what Mrs. Roosevelt is going to do about the winter's entertaining. Will she stick to her informal parties—all that she has done since she came into the White House? Will she switch over and give formal parties, the way her predecessors have done? And if she gives formal parties will she give them informally?

● The Republican congressmen in Washington are huddling about corridors these days and whispering: "Just wait until congress opens, then Mr. Roosevelt won't find it such a bed of roses."

And the wives and daughters of Republican congressmen are huddling over the teacups these days and whispering: "Just wait until the social season opens, then Mrs. Roosevelt won't find it so easy to be informal."

● My hunch, and it's only a hunch, is that Mrs. Roosevelt is too realistic and sensible to try to junk the few formal functions that are now established as a part of the White House program. She wants to lead her own life: she doesn't want to make others lead hers. So, while she will continue to have her own frequent friendly parties, I believe she will also carry through the program of her predecessors. And if she does carry through that program she will carry it through with somewhat the same formality that her predecessors did. You may prefer tennis flannels to a dinner coat, but if you're sensible—and she is—once you put on a dinner coat you won't wear a red tie with it.

● And what is the "social season?" (Be sure to use quotes around the phrase, all the social secretaries do, doubtless to impress the newcomer with its mystic sacredness.)

Well, it is bounded by the opening of congress and the beginning of Lent. Congress always used to open the first Monday in December; the formal dinner parties began at that date. But now, thanks to the passage last session of Senator Norris' "lame duck" amendment, congress will not convene until Jan. 3. Caterers and florists, therefore, will not get into their stride until that date.

● The White House has first picks on all dates for the season. The White House, usually through the "social bureau" of the state department, announces some time in October what dates it has appropriated. That is a hands off sign for hostesses.

There are four formal dinners given at the executive mansion. One is for the Vice President. One is for the speaker of the house. It wasn't until Taft's time, at the behest of Teddy Roosevelt, that a special speaker's dinner was inserted in the calendar. "Uncle Joe" Cannon, then speaker, had a few social aspirations of his own and he objected to being classed among those present at other functions. He protested to Roosevelt, Roosevelt spoke to Taft, and the dinner was the result. At the time they little suspected that a few years later a freak of politics would make a Republican President (Herbert Hoover) host to a Democratic speaker (Jack Garner).

One dinner is in honor of the Supreme court justices. When he was on the bench the venerable Mr. Justice Holmes never attended on account of his advanced age. Mr. Justice Brandeis, who has to guard his health rather carefully, never goes out at night. It is only a Supreme court justice, however, who dares decline a White House invitation.

And one dinner is in honor of the diplomatic corps. This is the most glittering, with each head of a mission decked out in all his medals and sashes.

● In addition to these four state dinners there are, or there have been, several state receptions in honor of some particular branch of the government. These honor guests go down the line first, stand in the Blue room roped off away from the two or three thousand guests who are also invited. Of recent years these receptions have been in honor of the diplomatic corps, the Supreme court, the senate, the house, the army and the navy, and the "other government departments" lumped en masse.

Just how the Roosevelt régime will handle these is still a matter of speculation. And that's one of the reasons I'm en route to Washington and work.

Newport Fetes a British Admiral

NEWPORT, R. I.—[Special.]—Entertaining here centered about Vice Admiral the Honorable Reginald Drax and Mrs. Drax and the officers of the British cruiser Norfolk. Admiral Drax entertained in honor of the colonists who have been giving parties for both officers and crew of his majesty's ship.

Julia Berwind has returned to the Elms after a stay in New York. Miss Berwind and her brother, Edward J. Berwind, will remain at the Elms until late in the season before going to New York for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitz Eugene Dixon and their daughter, Eleanor, have concluded a stay with Mrs. Dixon's mother, Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, and Dr. Rice, at Miramar and are returning to Elkins Park, Pa.

SAUCE for the GOOSE

By D—— D——.

DID you perchance see the visitor—maybe she lives in Chicago, but she looked more as if she had come from afar to see the Fair and the big city sights—in a Scotch plaid tweed suit and pale blue satin evening slippers at the opening performance of the San Carlo Opera company last Monday at the Auditorium? Or the man in blue shirt, sans coat and with sleeves rolled up, who sat in a box in the golden horseshoe and enjoyed the music? It's an interesting crowd that is assembling nightly in the old theater to hear Sig. Gallo's opera, and for the small sum of a dollar they are hearing grand opera.

● Apropos out of town visitors whose costumes are somewhat different from those city residents usually wear, have you heard the story that's going around—the wife of the proprietor of a smart Michigan avenue shop told it to us—about the man who entered a North Michigan avenue shop recently with his coat on his arm? The haughty clerks, who are accustomed to serving well dressed women, eyed him askance and none rushed to wait upon him. He looked at the lovely clothes that were to be seen and then left, remarking as he did so: "I suppose because I'm in my shirt sleeves you think I can't buy your stuff. I could buy and sell the whole store." And he almost did that very thing in the next shop he went into, for the bill he paid for presents to take home to his "wimmin folks" was $3,000.

● Another thing we heard recently that made us realize that every one isn't as "stony broke" as we sometimes think: A shopper in a downtown department store had an order from a Memphis woman last week to buy a complete trousseau for her sister—evening, afternoon, street, and sports dresses, suits, coats, tea gowns, negligees, lingerie, hats, shoes, and stockings. No dress to be under $75 or over $150, each outfit to include a hat and a pair of shoes and six pairs of stockings, and all the necessary accessories.

● Was her face red? And wouldn't yours have been if you were a dignified dowager living in a suburb and had gone out to Sunday luncheon in a black georgette gown and had forgotten the silk slip? Pink bloomers and brassiere showed through just as much as did the "undies" in those stunning pictures recently published in a smart eastern magazine of models in cellophane gowns.

● A little unlooked for excitement at a recent Winnetka wedding was occasioned by a great big black spider that calmly crawled down the white carpet covering just before the bride and her attendants walked up the aisle. The bride's 14 year old brother saved the day by putting his foot into the aisle and making an end of that particular intruder. Some people think it's bad luck to kill a spider, but in this case it undoubtedly would have caused a small panic had the bridesmaids seen the ugly creature while it was alive.

● The best man at the largest wedding of the season thus far is still blushing to think that he forgot his responsibilities so far as to fail to put the bridegroom's luggage into the car that carried the newlyweds into town for the night. Fortunately the bride's bags had been sent in to the hotel earlier.

● One of our Lake Forest matrons who is noted for her wit has a son who has apparently inherited it. The other day when she was wondering aloud what reason she would give the headmaster of the school her son had attended last winter for having sent him to a different school this year, the boy said: "Oh, just tell him I had indigestion or B. O. or something and had to stay at home this year."

● A foreigner who speaks English with a decided accent and who claims not to think readily in English belied that claim the other day when he described some one who really isn't too smart as a "mental nudist."

● J. Bruce Mitchell of Chicago writes: "I wish to inform you of an error in spelling the location of the Onwentsia Hunt club. Your spelling of this place is Milburn, which is entirely wrong. My great grandfather, when he settled there about 1840, called it the Mill on the Burn, and I have never yet heard of a mill being spelled with one 'l.' It was called Millburn because burn means creek, and the town was made around the mill on the creek. My great grandfather's name was George Trotter." Right you are, Mr. Mitchell. Our mistake!

● A recent holdup in a popular north shore speakeasy was so cleverly pulled off that as the bandits dashed across the dance floor brandishing pistols all the customers applauded heartily, thinking it part of the evening's entertainment. But when a sawed off shotgun appeared on the scene the victims' hands quickly were stretched high above their heads.

● Betting between foursomes and eightsomes at the recent "Twa Days" golf celebration at the Glenview club grew so complicated, what with backgammon golf, bridge golf, Scotch foursomes, straight bets, and team bets, that an auditor was needed at every hole to figure out which player had lost to whose partner. Small wonder it required four and a half hours to play 18 holes—especially with beer hazards at every seventh hole!

However, the funniest sight of the day, to several of the players at least, was watching "Art" Watson take 13 strokes on the tenth hole without ever getting off the fairway.

● Quite the sensation of a dine and dance spot the other night was the woman of lean and slinky type who wore rust colored satin from her chin to her ankles, with red fox epaulets, and had her hair dyed the exact same color. And she was escorted by a pink checked lad barely out of the cradle.

When Chicago Was Young

THROUGH TEN DECADES WITH THE MARTHAS

The Sorrowful Sixties

By Herma Clark

A letter from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York. (Note: Herma Clark interrupts her story of Chicago of the Eighties to review Chicago's century of social life. Martha Freeman Esmond—the second Martha in Chicago—writes today to Julia Boyd the "Dear Julia" of the letter usually found in this column.)

Chicago, December 31, 1869.

DEAR JULIA: As I sit writing you on the last day of the year . . . also the last of the "sorrowful sixties," as mother calls this decade . . . I think of all our country has passed through during the past ten years. The war has left its reminder with our family in Will's lame leg. It hurts me to see the limp he tries so hard to conceal, but I am proud that he fought for liberty and union. I couldn't have borne it to have him stay at home, when the best blood of our city and state was being so freely poured out. Chicago still mourns the gallant Col. Ellsworth, military genius; first commissioned officer to fall in the war. Will says the course of the war might have been altered if he had lived. His was a noble life all through, and noble was the way in which he quitted it.

But there are so many others who gave their lives for the Union. Illinois, with a population of only 1,700,000, was required to furnish 32,000 troops, while Ohio, with a population of 2,400,000, was asked for only 26,000. But our new state accomplished this.

Our women did great work in the sanitary commission during the war. I shall never forget Mrs. A. H. Hoge, Mrs. Mary Livermore, Mrs. Myra Bradwell, and Mrs. Jeremiah Porter — to name only a few.

It was a Chicagoan who helped greatly in winning the war by his stirring songs, for George F. Root's "Battle Cry of Freedom" put new life into soldiers discouraged by continued defeat. How that song ran through the camps and helped them to face hardships again! But even this song, without the famous Lumbard brothers, would hardly have achieved such popularity, I think. Frank and Jules Lumbard, full of enthusiasm and possessed of beautiful voices, sang so jubilantly that the heaviest hearted had no choice but to shout the battle cry with them. Not great music, I know, but how inspiring!

N. K. Fairbank

It seems to me the war has, in a way, emancipated our women as well as the slaves. We haven't the vote, to be sure, but many ladies discovered their own powers when they were obliged to undertake the management of a business left by husband or father when he went forth to battle. I know of several women who have been successful in carrying on a farm, a small factory, a store. It seems to me it will help the cause of women's rights, for when woman shows herself so eminently worthy of the vote, it will be hard to deny it to her. So some good has come of the great conflict. But how fervently we must hope and pray that there will never be another. Surely there must be better ways of settling disputes.

In material prosperity, Chicago has had nothing to complain of, even during these troublous times. The city has increased in population since 1860, and with the close of the war building has proceeded "like a house afire," to use Will's phrase. It is rather an apt figure of speech, for new buildings have gone up rapidly—almost in a day. State street is changing so you'd hardly know it. I remember when lovely homes and gardens stood where now great stores are springing up. Carson & Pirie and Field & Leiter have nice buildings on this new business thoroughfare. We used to do all our shopping on Lake street.

With business expanding, many people have gone further out into the suburbs to live. Numbers of our friends have built in Kenwood and Hyde Park, while Lake View, to the north, seems very popular. This will always be a fine place, as it is adjacent to our new Lincoln park, which takes the place of a city cemetery, now removed. This will be the city's playground now, and I am glad it is named for our martyred President.

I sometimes think it would be nice to live in a more quiet place than our great city. Will and I visited in Lake Forest last week and think some of buying a lot and putting up a summer cottage.

I want to ask you, Julia, what you think of clubs for men. Will has recently been invited to join the Chicago club, a new organization for men, and has been voted in. He was so pleased to be asked I hated to oppose it, but I don't think I approve of these clubs. What would the men say if we women had clubs? They wouldn't like it at all, I assure you. But the men who make up the roster are the most cultivated and distinguished in the city and I don't wonder Will is glad to be included. Mr. E. B. McCagg is president, Mr. Philip Wadsworth is vice president, and among the members are such men as N. K. Fairbank, B. A. Ayer, Wirt Dexter, John Crerar, Octavius Badger, Nathan Corwith, Robert T. Lincoln, D. B. Fiske, John B. Drake, G. H. Rozet, and that young Mr. Pullman, whose sleeping cars seem to be such a success.

Ever your loving friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Heroine of '76 Shown in Roto Section Today

Mrs. Murray's Hospitality Held Gen. Howe While American Soldiers Fled.

By Kathleen McLaughlin.

(Picture in rotogravure section.)

THEY didn't know about press agents back in those tense days of our national history when thirteen oppressed little colonies battled to throw off the yoke of England. And women's place was in the home—another term for the background. So Mrs. Robert Murray, whose service to her country merits perpetuation, has had scant credit from the historians, though she halted an army with a glass of wine.

It is even more ironic that Lindley Murray, her oldest son, whose major achievement was a none too admirable grammar written in the postwar years, should not have lacked for biographers, none of whom appear to have heard of his mother's coup.

Murrays Known to Have Revolutionary Sympathies.

On the front page of the rotogravure section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE today, is depicted the incident in revolutionary history when Mary Lindley Murray lured his Brittanic majesty's officers from the scent for two hours and thereby saved the day for Washington, when they were within ten minutes of striking a possible deathblow to the colonial rebellion.

In those days, in September of 1776, Robert Murray was the leading merchant prince of "little old New York." He was also one of the town's most respected citizens, and his mansion at Fourth avenue and 36th street had given the name of Murray Hill to that section. His wife, a cultured Quaker lady, was a social leader both because of her personal popularity and by her husband's position. Both royalists and revolutionists continued to call there, though the former recognized that her sympathies were with the latter.

Colonials Confiscated Home of Roger Morris.

It was a critical period for America, and the atmosphere of upper Manhattan island was electric. The battle of Long Island was an event of the immediate past, with the Continental troops smarting over their defeat and retreat. New Yorkers anticipated an attack at any time, and were skittish and fearful.

Sept. 14, Gen. Washington had taken possession of the home of his old friend, Roger Morris, now known as the Jumel mansion, and still preserved. Morris and his wife, the lovely Mary Phillipse to whom Washington had paid court in vain, had fled to England to escape the necessity of Col. Morris having to take the field against his old friends, since he was loyal to the crown. Within the walls of the mansion in Harlem Heights, confiscated by the new government, the commander in chief a few evenings later held secret conference with the youthful and devoted Nathan Hale, and sent him forth to penetrate the British lines on Long island.

Continental Troops Routed by British Men of War.

Behind their defenses, extending down the western rim of Manhattan, about the Battery and up the East river, the Americans were preparing busily to evacuate the city, which movement was scheduled for Sept. 15. Howe, commanding the British, was aware of the proposed evacuation and determined to prevent it.

Five British men-of-war, anchored in the East river in Wallabount bay, behind Blackwell's island, drew up in line that Sunday morning close to the shore of Kip's bay, and about 10 o'clock, opened fire on the Connecticut militia under Col. Douglas, stationed at 34th street. The Continentals were driven from behind their low breastworks, affording inadequate shelter, and were quickly put to rout by a body of light infantry and grenadiers which crossed in eighty-four flatboats to land at 34th street.

Washington Caned Fleeing Continental Soldiers.

At the first sound of the heavy cannonading, Washington galloped to the scene and sought to arrest the retreat, but without success. Horrified at the panic of his men, he drew his sword, brandished his pistols, even laid his cane over some of the fugitives, and would have attempted single handed to cope with the British, had not one of the attendants seized his horse's reins and turned him again toward Harlem Heights.

Gen. Putnam, hastening down from Harlem and King's bridge, gathered up Silliman's brigade of Connecticut militia, and started back up the west side of the island, assisted by Aaron Burr. Disorder and dismay were everywhere, and only by heroic exertions did the lisping but doughty old soldier manage to lead his men through the woods, to reach Harlem at length in safety, as twilight fell.

Mrs. Murray Discouraged Howe from Pursuing Troops.

Howe was close on the heels of this column when the Murray home was reached. Unware that he was within striking distance, he dismounted at the door, to enquire of Mrs. Murray how long it was since the enemy had passed.

Mrs. Murray's report was utterly discouraging. The Continentals were long since beyond his reach, she assured him, but since the day was hot, the big old house cool and comfortable, and her cellar boasted some rare old Madeira, would not the general and his aids linger and refresh themselves? Her suave hospitality delighted Howe. His half hearted interest in ending the rebellion at that point disappeared. Few histories record the episode, the usual comment being that "for some obscure reason, Howe did not press his advantage."

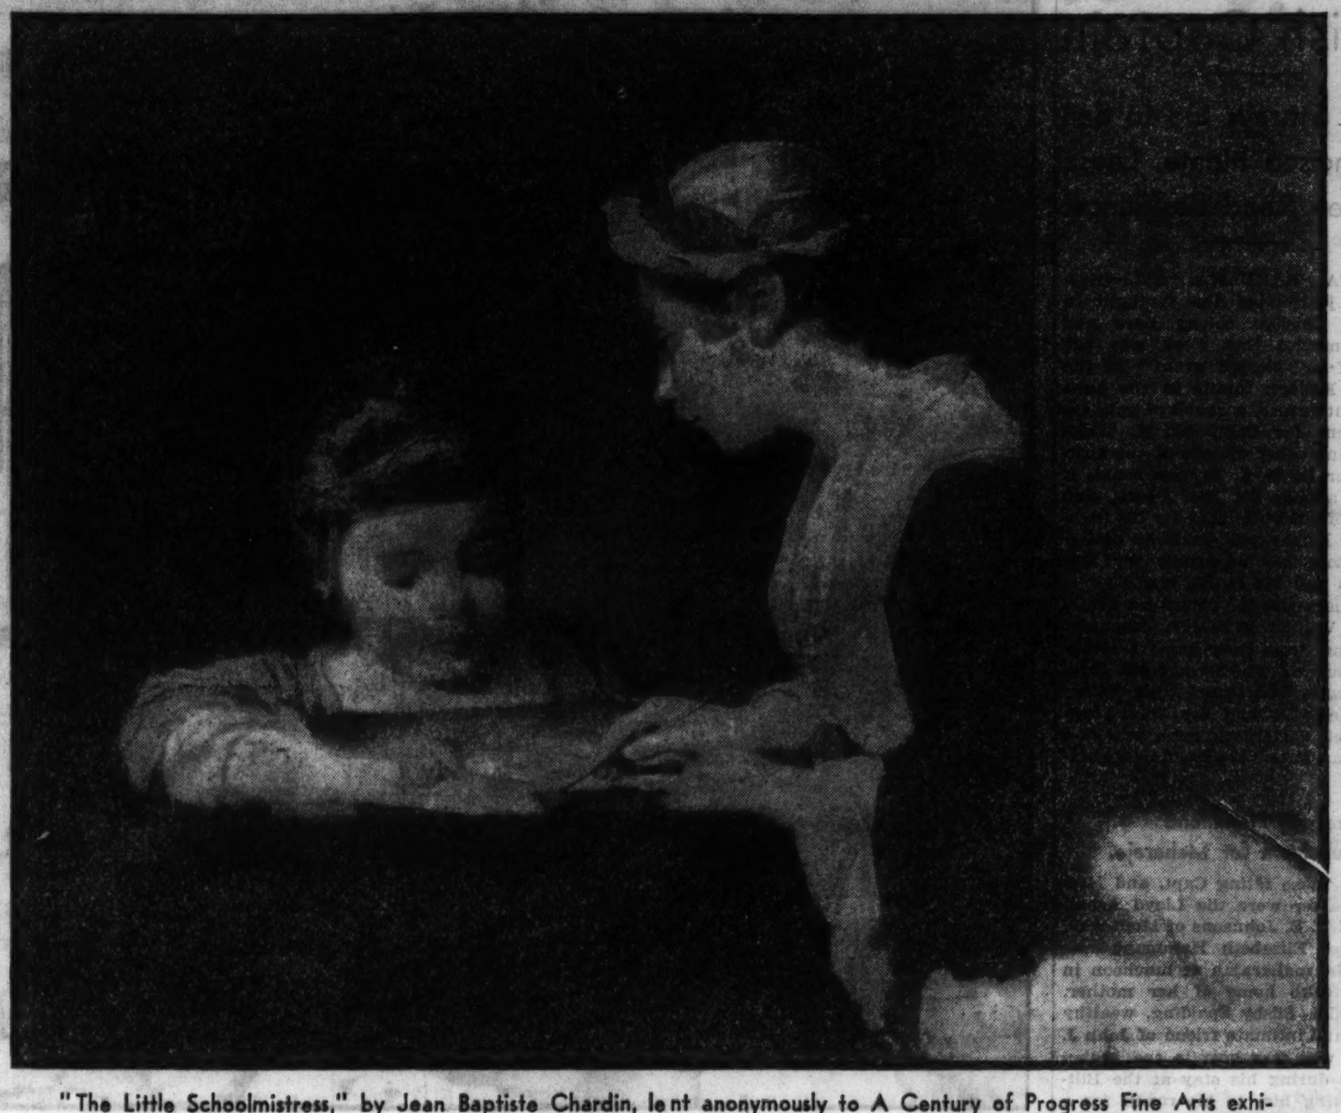
British Found Madeira Wine, American Woman Delightful.

The "obscure reason" was the pleasant social interlude being enjoyed by the British officers, Howe and his staff spending a leisurely two hours in the Murray drawing room, sampling the Madeira, which was excellent; chatting with their hostess' oldest daughter, an engaging miss, and joking Mrs. Murray about her American friends. Gov. Tryon found this a particularly amusing topic, and returned to it again and again, while his apparently guileless hostess smiled good naturedly.

Had Howe and his men known that Putnam and his scattered forces were but ten minutes ahead when Mrs. Murray intervened, the history of the American revolution might have read a different way, and have ended ingloriously there and then. But the Quaker mother of twelve children, using the only weapons permitted her, contributed her noble bit to the ultimate freedom of a nation.

She deserves more from history than she has had.

Canvases of State's Representative Painters on Exhibit in Illinois Host House at the Fair



"The Little Schoolmistress," by Jean Baptiste Chardin, lent anonymously to A Century of Progress Fine Arts exhibition in the Chicago Art institute, is one of the most charming paintings to be found among the many Old Masters.

Etchings Are to Be Shown Later.

By Eleanor Jewett.

AN interesting art exhibit opened yesterday in the Illinois Host house on A Century of Progress grounds, to continue through Oct. 1. Representative painters of Illinois are the central theme of the show, and the exhibition is intended to do honor to one facet of Illinois culture. Some 70 paintings are hung. The artists were chosen by the boards of various art organizations in Illinois, among them the Association of Painters and Sculptors, the North Shore Art league, the Chicago Galleries association, the Palette and Chisel club, the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts, the Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago, the South Side Art association, the Chicago Society of Artists, the Art Institute Alumni association, and the Chicago Society of Miniature Painters.

The etchers and water color painters of Illinois are to have a separate exhibit in October and therefore, because of lack of space, have no representation in the present exhibition, which, limiting the amount of work by any one artist, yet manages to include among the 70 paintings many of our definitely important painters. The conservative and the modern schools of practice are equally represented and the effect is satisfying. Mrs. Albion L. Headburg promoted the exhibit and great credit must go to her for having hung so good a selection of canvases as this is.

Mural in Farm Exhibit Depicts Story of Coffee.

Mrs. J. E. Jenkins, an art patron of Chicago, writes that she has seen no mention of the unusually charming mural in the Agricultural building at the Exposition, a mural which depicts the romantic story of coffee. Probably few of us, much as we enjoy breakfast coffee and coffee at almost any other time of the day or night, know that coffee is the cherrylike fruit of a small tree and that there are more than a hundred recognized varieties grown in many countries — Java, the Dutch Indies, Colombia, Arabia, Mexico, and so on. Coffee is gathered three times a year. The coffee trees bud, blossom, and the fruit ripens as with other trees. Each coffee "cherry" contains two beans.

The beauty and the work attached to this great industry are portrayed in an interesting and picturesque fashion in the mural of which Mrs. Jenkins writes. It is worth looking up and spending a few minutes before.

Hazel Crowe Ewell Has Water Color Exhibit at Allerton.

The Chicago School of Sculpture, Viola Norman director, will begin its fourth year on Monday, Oct. 2, with the opening of the fall term. The school is in the Auditorium tower, 56 East Congress street.

The exhibit of water colors by Hazel Crowe Ewell in the Allerton gallery is arousing appreciative comment. Mrs. Ewell paints with a colorful brush and her work is decorative and fresh. Many of the water colors are still life arrangements centered about flowers and a bit of pottery. The artist's use of colors is clever and her composition is original. There is nothing stilted about the paintings, which follow each other in joyous, vibrant succession. The few Taos scenes are more sober than the flower paintings, but in "Street in Taos" the figures in the foreground, their backs to us, are fascinating. Here again Mrs. Ewell's poetry of color makes an unforgettable effect.

Fair May Be Re-Lived in Increase Robinson Galleries.

The Increase Robinson gallery, Diana Court building, has a definite fall program. A week ago yesterday prints by Edward Weston, the nationally known photographer, were hung and yesterday water colors by John Pratt, a young Chicago artist hitherto little known, were installed in the smaller gallery. These two exhibits will run to Oct. 14 and then the first formal exhibit of oils will usher in a new season.

The oils will be by sixty Chicago artists and are based on the subject, "Summer in Chicago, 1933," so we may go prepared in mind to see much of the Exposition again, the crowded streets, the open air art fairs, and all the various attractions that have made Chicago the Mecca of the American traveler these last months.

Edward Weston Photographs Vegetables Engagingly.

Meanwhile, the Edward Weston photographs are very much worth while. Mr. Weston has great skill with the camera and is a great believer in the value of simplicity and the commonplace. He finds structural quality and textural quality of the greatest importance. From the vegetable kingdom, a place of cabbages and squash and carrots, he salvages the most fascinating compositions, curious developments in pattern and form. You feel you have never before rightly understood the lowly cauliflower when you stand before Mr. Weston's interpretation of its interior, neatly halved. Likewise, an artichoke, halved and photographed, is a thousand times more impressive and beautiful than one pulled leaf by leaf to certain destruction and consumed with butter.

The landscapes are similar in mood and construction, reminding one sharply of the melancholy and austere paintings of Rockwell Kent and Ross Moffett. The atmosphere snaps with severity. The details are thrown knifewise along the sky. A definite charm results, but whether in the long run one would tire of this exacting treatment is an obvious doubt that detracts slightly from too absolute an admiration of Mr. Weston's technique. His group of "nudes" is as cool in character as are the landscapes. One feels them as solutions to problems in form and not as flesh and blood portraits. Their sculptural quality is unmistakable and effective.

A Sequel to "Annie Laurie" Hangs in Art Institute.

From the All Illinois Society of Fine Arts exhibit at the Stevens hotel one of the brilliant exhibits hung in honor of A Century of Progress, comes word of the recent purchase of Adam Emory Albright's attractive child painting, "Baiting the Hook."

The Art institute's splendid A Century of Progress fine arts exhibit touches life at many points and even finds itself entangled in the romance of old songs. One of the most beloved of our familiar songs is "Annie Laurie," for which William Douglas, far back in the eighteenth century, wrote the words and Lady Jane Scott the music. The song was dedicated to Annie, daughter of Sir Robert Laurie of the Maxwelton family of Scotland. Now in the Art institute, in gallery 38, there hangs a portrait of Annie Laurie's great-granddaughter. She was the Hon. Mrs. Veitch, and the portrait is the work of Henry Raeburn (1756-1823), one of that brilliant group of portrait painters for which England is famed.

Art Institute May Be Open Evenings in October.

The Art institute is anxious to have the hours of opening and closing more generally known. The Art institute is open from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. on week days and on Sundays from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. The officials of the museum had in mind the heat of the galleries when they decided upon the closing hour of 5:30 p. m. However, as October draws near with its cooler days, the officials are considering opening the galleries in the evening. A definite announcement will be made if this change is introduced.

Montecito Fetes Indian Prince, British Captain

W. B. Storeys Go to San Francisco Home, Lease Valley Road Residence.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—[Special.]—Holding the spotlight in the Chicago colony here and Montecito this week was the rumor of a "blessed event" in the John P. Kellogg family in the none too distant future, a round of gala entertainment for Capt. W. H. Wake Walker and other officers of the British cruiser H. M. S. Dragon before it weighed anchor for San Pedro, and a round of entertainment for his highness, the Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda, before his departure for San Francisco and his native land.

Then there was the departure of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Storey, prominent Chicagoans, from their home here for San Francisco. The former rail chief and his wife, who leased their Valley road home to Dr. and Mrs. John Stewart Tanner, easterners, for a year and a half, plan to travel abroad next summer.

Miss Elizabeth Hammond Gives Luncheon for Maharaja.

Among those fêting Capt. and Mrs. Wake Walker were the Lloyd Aspinwalls and T. B. Johnsons of Montecito, while Miss Elizabeth Hammond was host to the maharajah at luncheon in the Montecito home of her mother, Bonnymede. Silsby Spalding, wealthy rancher and intimate friend of John J. Mitchell, who was host to the Indian potentate during his stay at the Biltmore, taking him to his ranch for a miniature rodeo and roundup.

Mrs. Charles Deere Wiman and her children have left for their home in Moline, Ill., where they will join Mr. Wiman, who left last week. The Wimans, who have closed their home on Twin Oaks road for the season, plan to return next February.

John A. Jamesons Entertain Film Celebrity.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Jameson, former Chicagoans, were hosts over the week-end to Mrs. Ralph Hoffmann, who returned to this city from Hollywood, where she is taking a rôle in Paramount's latest, "Captain Jericho," a yarn of the San Francisco waterfront. The local woman stole the honors in "Before Dawn," directed by Irving Picel, former Santa Barbara community arts director, and earned a place in "Captain Jericho."

Mrs. Joseph Griswold Coleman, before leaving for her Chicago home after spending the season here, was fêted at a luncheon in the little town club given by Mrs. Reginald W. Rives, who is visiting Mrs. Craig Heberton at her Montecito estate, El Hogar.

Mrs. David William Moffat of Indianopolis, is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. William McK. Moffat in their Mission cañon home. Mrs. E. Palmer Gavat, Mrs. Packard Gladwin, and Miss Gladys Turner, prominent in Chicago circles here, have returned from a short visit in Del Monte and San Francisco.

Miss Laura Louise Wilder, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Wilder of Montecito, has left for the Briar Cliff school and Thomas and Jean, the other Wilder children, have returned to Pebble Beach, where they are students in the Douglas school. Mrs. Wilder, incidentally, has been named director of the local community chest.

Louis R. H. Kennedy of Chicago is among the arrivals of the week, being a Biltmore guest.

Miss Elizabeth Hammond, sister of Gardiner Hammond of Chicago and daughter of Mrs. Gardiner Greene Hammond of Montecito has returned from a year's tour through Canada and the northwest. She was accompanied by Mrs. G. Ernest Richards of New York.

Travelers Given Wine Education

ROME.—U.P.]—If a traveler does not know his wines, he will be taught them before any blushing scene occurs. Italian steamship companies are installing tasting booths aboard, where sipping of all wines will be free. A "bicchierino," or thimbleful, of any wine will be served to all comers.

The National Institute for Exports and the major steamship companies have decided that henceforth ocean passengers must not experience one single embarrassing moment during the crossing.

Exhibitions of typical national wines will be instituted on board in those quarters most frequented by voyagers. Bottles in all shapes and colors and bearing the original labels will be on exhibit.

A special vintner will be stationed next to the show cases and answer questions regarding the right kind of wines to be sipped with hors d'oeuvres, fish, and meat dishes.

Southampton Ends Season Gallantly

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I.—[Special.]—With the season drawing to a finish, many farewell luncheons and dinners are being given. New Baths Bring London Clubmen Back Into Fold

Modern Improvements Save Famous Devonshire Place After Resignations.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON. — [Special.]—A ladies' lounge, a cocktail bar, and 15 new members' bedrooms, each with a separate bath, have together saved "Mr. Gladstone's fortress," the famous Devonshire club, from surrender.

For three years this 58 year old institution at 50 St. James street has been losing members steadily; something like 20 per cent had resigned owing to "hard times." But with the opening of the new wing, containing these modern amenities, especially the "bedrooms with baths," old members are somehow finding the money and are trooping back.

This club gets its name, not from the county of Devonshire, but from the old-fashioned Whig family of the dukes of Devonshire. However, though it has always had a strong Liberal coloring, it has been social rather than political in its aims. When it was founded in 1875 the dukes of Devonshire added immense lustre to the Liberal party. The 8th duke in particular was a pleasing and reassuring figure to those Englishmen who mistrusted brilliant and showy qualities, for he was very solid. He is famous for having once yawned in the middle of one of his own speeches.

It is possible, of course, that the Devonshire club has been suffering from too much yawning, but all that is safely over now.

Artist Arranges Showing for "The Last Supper."

Mark Symons, the artist whose sensational picture of "The Last Supper" showing the twelve disciples in modern dress was so decisively rejected by the Royal Academy, is completing arrangements for his masterpiece to be shown in galleries over the country.

Of course, the religious press will be flooded with letters of protest, much to Mr. Symons' astonishment, for he is one of our wide-eyed incorrigible innocents.

Having discovered that people in the little Berkshire village of Barkham are "holier, healthier and happier" than those of Caversham, Mr. Symons has moved from his old home at Caversham to the newly discovered paradise. Perhaps the explanation lies in the fact that he is painting two "religious" pictures, one called "Resurrection" and the other "An Earthly Paradise."

All-women polo matches are becoming quite the rage. English women have played against men for several years, and with men, but this is the first season all-women teams have met in matches. Lady Priscilla Willoughby [daughter of the earl of Ancaster] started the fashion by forming a team composed of herself, Lady Violet Pakenham [the earl of Longford's sister], her own sister, Lady Catherine Willoughby, and Miss Muriel Wright. They have been defeated by a team of Sussex ladies captained by Mrs. Henry Merckel. There are now six such teams in the country, and a number of others more or less improvised.

Princess Becomes Three Years Old.

Princess Margaret Rose celebrated her third birthday recently at Glamis castle, where she was born. She was there with the duke and duchess of York and the princess Elizabeth. The latter presented her with a set of scarlet leather reins with bright brass bells as a birthday present. The two little girls play "horses" together a great deal in the gardens of the castle.

An old diary, dating back more than 150 years, gives the key to the famous Hampton Court maze which has baffled so many thousand visitors until rescued by the guides:

> "Turn ye two first turnings on ye right, and all ye rest on ye left.
> "On coming out, turn all ye turnings on ye right, but ye two last, and turn them on ye left."

This is absolutely sound, but in practice there is still a catch, the difficulty being to know when you have reached "the two last." The real secret, used by the guides who rescue bewildered and despairing visitors, is to keep your right hand continuously touching the hedge, going round all the blind alleys.

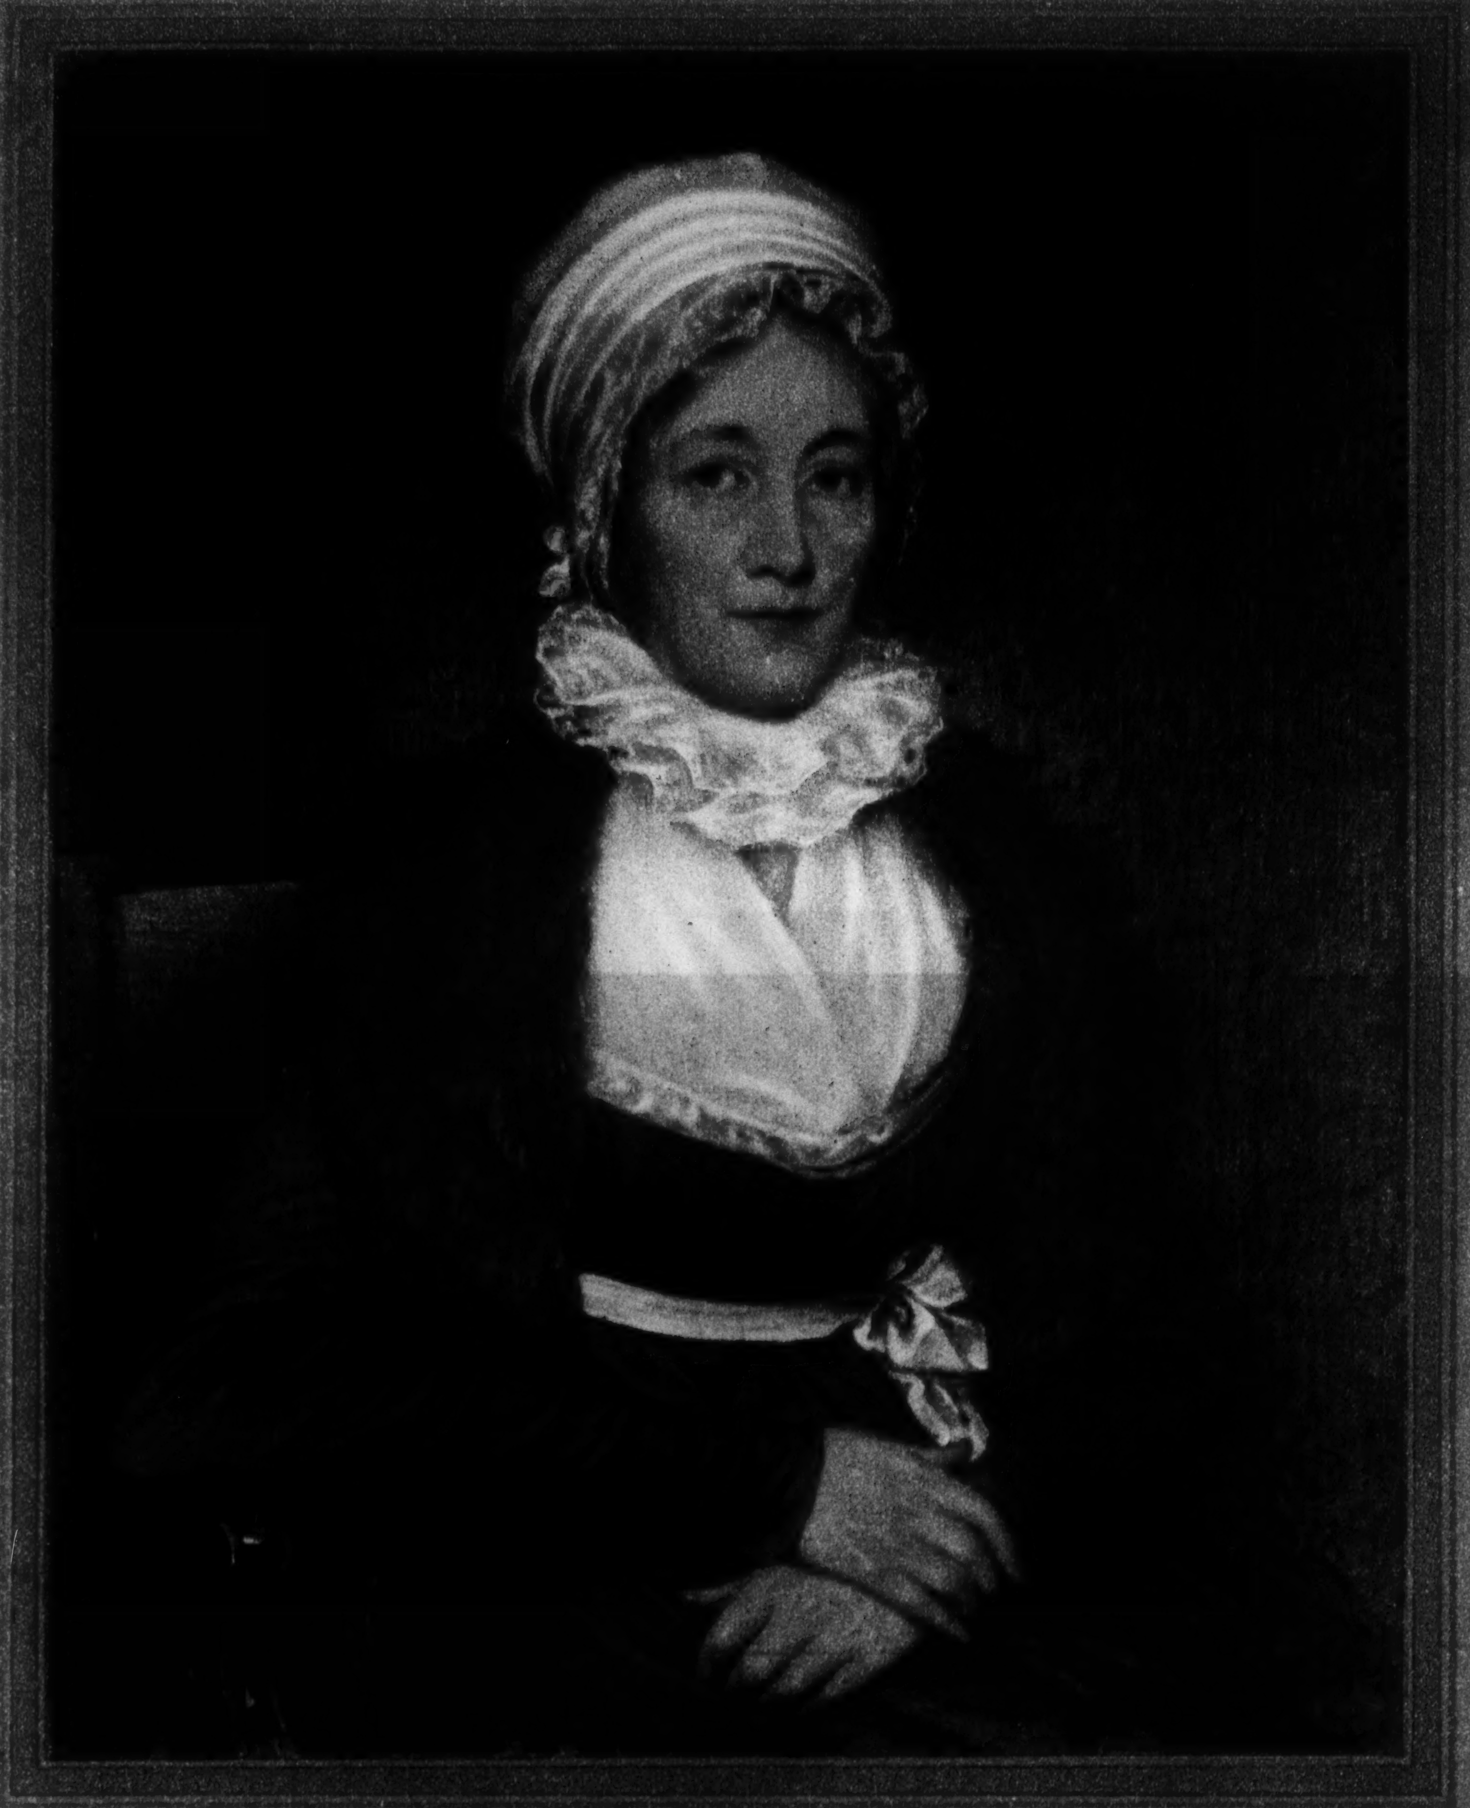
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

AT THE RIGHT: "MARY LINDLEY MURRAY," FROM THE PORTRAIT BY TRUMBULL. BELOW: "MRS. ROBERT MURRAY OF MURRAY HILL, NEW YORK, DELAYING THE BRITISH OFFICERS," FROM A PAINTING BY F. C. YOHN.



WIFE OF ROBERT MURRAY, A WEALTHY MERCHANT, MARY LINDLEY MURRAY WAS THE HEROINE OF A REVOLUTIONARY INCIDENT NO LESS IMPORTANT THAN AMUSING; IT WAS A STRATAGEM OF HER DEVICE THAT SAVED PART OF WASHINGTON'S FORCES FROM THE ENEMY FOLLOWING THE BATTLE OF LONG ISLAND. TO HER DOOR CAME HOWE, HOT ON THE HEELS OF PUTNAM, WHO, WITH A BRIGADE, WAS RETREATING TOWARD HARLEM HEIGHTS. MRS. MURRAY ASSURED HOWE THAT PUTNAM MUST BE BEYOND SUCCESSFUL PURSUIT, ADDING AN INVITATION TO THE BRITISH GENERAL AND HIS OFFICERS TO DISMOUNT AND REFRESH THEMSELVES AT HER TABLE. OVER THE CAKE AND WINE HOWE TARRIED FOR TWO HOURS; AND PUTNAM HAD BEEN ONLY TEN MINUTES AHEAD!

GULISTAN
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

...that's enough to sell me any rug!"

Illustration shows Royal Kirman design, one of the famous Garden designs of Persia. Ask to see Super Gulistan No. 315.

"Oriental rug luxury is what I crave in all the rugs in my home. I can be sure of getting it in ANY rug made by the makers of Gulistan. They are the leading makers of Oriental rugs and it's marvelous how they give that same Oriental beauty, at prices about one-third the originals. As I gaze at the rug on my floor—it's all there . . . the lovely Oriental design . . . the soft colorings . . . and that rich, silky sheen which simply transforms a home!"

When shopping for ANY Oriental Rug Reproductions, look for the label of the leading Makers of Orientals!

No matter what you wish to pay, you will find what you want made by the makers of Gulistan. Four qualities to choose from, at popular prices: many sizes and patterns in each grade. The success of these rugs comes from their trueness to the Oriental Rug tradition. The House of Karagheusian, with its production centers in Sultanabad, Hamadan and Tabriz, weaves the fine Persian Rugs of today, and imports them to America. In the Gulistan series of rugs made in America they use the same designs . . . the same type of sturdy Oriental wools . . . and the very same finishing processes as in their Oriental creations. Experts hesitate to tell the difference! Kashans, Kirmans, Sarouks (many of them museum pieces), may be found reproduced in all these qualities. See them at any good Furniture or Department store. No need to sift out substitutes. The Karagheusian name and label on the back of the rug are your guide.

"Come on, Grandma, we've got Room"

You can take the "Whole Family" riding . . . in this BIG DE SOTO SIX

LITTLE cars are all right! Certainly they get you there! But when the whole family wants to ride or you're picking up friends . . . that's when you'll be glad you bought a De Soto.

Look at its fifteen feet of smartness! Big and comfortable inside. Soft, downy cushions. Real car springs . . . good shock absorbers. And over 2900 pounds of car weight to "hug" the road. You just don't get all these "extras" in a little car.

Talk to a man who drives a De Soto. Or, get in the front seat with him . . . and drive fifty miles. You'll find that De Soto's 82-horsepower engine has the "stuff" to get you to the top of any hill you want to tackle. Press down on that gas pedal . . . go fifty-five in second . . . shift into high without a gear clash . . . and we won't have to say a word about De Soto's all-silent transmission and automatic clutch.

Ask him to let you try the Hydraulic Brakes. They're always equalized. You stop . . . when you want to. And you have Airwheel tires . . . you can "take the bumps" on a rutty back road in a De Soto and never feel a jar.

• • •

CHRYSLER MOTORS ENGINEERS designed safety-steel bodies for De Soto. Because Chrysler Motors Engineers do not think "wood and steel" bodies are as strong or as safe. Those same engineers spent $30,000 to put new carbon-resisting valve inserts in De Soto. And you won't have a worry about valve grinding for 30,000 miles. De Soto cuts down on "repair bills" . . . and it's thrifty on gas and oil.

There are 22 worthwhile points where De Soto beats competition. Floating Power engine mountings. Oilite Springs. Co-incidental Starting! Features like these really mean something.

And best of all . . . is De Soto's thrifty price tag. It amounts to only $4 a week more than the very lowest-priced cars. Talk it over with your De Soto dealer. The down payment is probably in your garage!

Youthful... confident

she keeps that schoolgirl complexion this way—with Palmolive's secret blend of olive and palm oils

SHE knows that admiration is the first step toward love . . . and admiring eyes turn toward a young, fresh, dewy complexion. So she uses Palmolive – the soap of youth – the gentle, soothing soap made of an exclusive blend of olive and palm oils.

These rich, vegetable oils are nature's finest cleansers. Palmolive is famous because of its secret blend of those oils. That blend is exclusive. It is unique.

Natural beauty oils

Palmolive seems to cast a veil of loveliness over your entire skin. That is because the olive oil provides a velvet-smooth lather, a lather which penetrates the tiny pores, freeing them of impurities, leaving skin soft, smooth, gloriously clear and fresh.

Olive oil—rich, beauty-giving olive oil—imparts to each cake of Palmolive that natural olive-green color—your assurance of safety and purity.

Here is your beauty treatment

Buy three cakes today. Then start this 2-minute treatment recommended by over twenty thousand beauty specialists : every morning and evening, massage a rich lather of Palmolive Soap gently into the skin with your hands; rinse it off with warm water, then with cold. Do that twice every day for a month.

And see how Palmolive's secret blend of olive and palm oils will give your skin new softness, new youth. See how the world, then, becomes your playground.

This much olive oil goes into the making of every cake of Palmolive

Why Chicago Women Buy More American Family than All Other Laundry Soaps

The water in this Great Lakes region is hard. American Family, created especially for this Great Lakes region, makes double the suds of ordinary soaps and flakes . . . floats out the dirt without hard rubbing . . . keeps colors true . . . saves hours of time . . . gives months of longer wear . . . is absolutely safe for the finest things. Delicate silks and linens come out of its pure double-suds as fresh as new!

WHEN Mrs. George L. Plamondon came to Chicago as a bride two years ago, she brought charm and accomplishments worthy indeed of the Plamondon name—one of the oldest and best known in Chicago.

"I shall never forget the thrill of those first dinners in my own apartment," says Mrs. Plamondon, "nor my terror lest my dainty imported linens should lose their fresh, crisp loveliness through careless laundering.

"But I was fortunate in my friends, for with one accord they told me to insist on American Family Flakes—for everything. I did—and have done so ever since.

"And what delight to see how beautifully things launder in its gentle suds! Linens, laces, lingerie, chiffon stockings—yes, and all the sturdier pieces, too—come through countless washings as fresh and sweet-smelling as a May morning!"

Throughout Mrs. Plamondon's beautiful home overlooking Lincoln Park one sees gleaming evidence of American Family's power to clean quickly and well. Colorful china, sparkling crystal—all as enchanting as though nothing but sunshine had ever touched them. Yet they are used each day.

"The maid tells me she loves to work with American Family," declares Mrs. Plamondon, "because it makes so much more pure, rich suds than ordinary flakes—works twice as fast—keeps her hands wonderfully soft and smooth."

Mrs. Plamondon's greatest joy is in her baby girl, Diane—whose innumerable woolens and adorable little dresses are kept immaculate with time-honored American Family.

"With such bewitching evidence before me, do you wonder that I permit no other laundry soap or flakes but American Family to enter my home?"
